Food Control May Be Made More Unified In New Plan

Vinson Mentioned As Coordinator After Critics Meet With President

By Robert C. Albright
Post Staff Writer

Recasting of administrative controls over food pricing and production was indicated last night following show-down conference with bipartisan congressional critics at the White House.

The Administration was reported resisting demands for single agency control under War Food Administrator Chester Davis, but to have offered closer coordination between Davis and Prentiss Brown's OPA.

Vinson Mentioned

Emerging as possible chief food coordinator, with power over Davis and Brown, was Economic Stabilization Director Fred M. Vinson, operating now in close harmony with War Mobilizer James F. Byrnes.

Demands that the Administration act promptly to prevent a possible canned food shortage were carried to the White House by a delegation of congressional leaders led by Senator George (Democrat) of Georgia.

Unified Control Urged

George proposed either a one-man food "czar" with complete authority over production, processing, pricing and distribution of food, or a single agency vested with the same power.

Chairman Fulmer of the House Agriculture Committee will lead another delegation to the White House today to ask the President to transfer food price and rationing authority from OPA to WFA, to make Davis food "czar" in fact.

At yesterday's conference War Mobilization Director Byrnes, backed by the President, was reported to have firmly opposed the single agency move. Byrnes contended it was a far better solution to leave pricing and production in separate agencies. To combine the two essential functions, Byrnes argued, might mean emphasis on production, at the expense of price control.

Coordination Promised

The "home front" chief was said to have promised closer coordination between agencies charged with various phases of the food problem.

Almost coincident with the conference, Vinson directed the War Labor Board to give favorable consideration to requests of food canneries for permission to raise wages temporarily 10 cents an hour.

Food processors, whose views were represented by many of the congressional conferees at yesterday's White House meeting, have contended they were unable to

O'Conor's Wife Called to Face OPA Quiz Tonight

Baltimore, June 14 (AP).—Judge Emory H. Miles, chairman of the War Price and Rationing boards of Baltimore, announced today that a public hearing would be held tomorrow night on charges of alleged misuse of occupational gasoline rations by Mrs. Herbert R. O'Conor, wife of Maryland's Governor.

The matter was turned over to the Baltimore board by Cornelius P. Mundy, chief enforcement attorney of the Maryland Office of Price Administration staff, after Mrs. O'Conor offered information to the OPA about a trip she took to Charleston, S. C., late in March.

Mrs. O'Conor issued a public statement Saturday which said that she made the trip in a State-owned automobile on the advice of her physician.

Senate Passes 'Patronage Bill' For Confirmation of $4500 Jobs

By Robert De Vore
Post Staff Writer

The Senate yesterday voted to accord itself the power of life and death over the jobs of some 27,000 Federal workers as it sent to the House on a 42-to-29 recorded vote the McKellar bill to require confirmation of all employes receiving $4500 or more a year.

In the voting, 34 Democrats scorned President Roosevelt's protest of last February that the measure, "the very antithesis of the merit system," would "sweep away years of civil service progress" and "would lay all of us open to the charge that we are playing politics with the war program."

Blunt characterization of the measure by Mr. Roosevelt's lieutenant, Senator Hill (Democrat) of Alabama, as "smacking of pap, pie and patronage" was no bar to its support by such Administration standbys as Senators Guffey of Pennsylvania, chairman of the Democratic Senatorial Campaign Committee, and Green (Democrat) of Rhode Island.

In striking contrast to landslide characteristics of Democratic support for the bill was the treatment it received at the hands of Republicans, 20 of whom, under the leadership of Senator McNary of Oregon, the minority party chief, joined with eight Democrats and one Progressive in opposing the measure. Only eight Republicans voted for it.

The bill appeared destined for burial in the House. Should it ever see the light of day in that chamber, and be passed, President Roosevelt is believed certain to veto it.

Backers of the measure stoutly denied aspirations for a "patronage grab." They took the line that in the swift expansion of Federal agencies since Pearl Harbor, Congress had lost touch with many Government activities, and, in the words of the Judiciary Committee's majority report, the bill offered a means of "revesting" control of the Government "in the people."

By terms of the bill, thousands of Federal workers, including many top and key officials in such vital war agencies as the War Production Board, would be unable to hold their positions after next June 30 unless their appointments were confirmed by the Senate.

For the purpose of making all policy-determining officers of the Government subject to confirmation, the bill brings within its purview the following categories of officials:

Heads, assistant heads and head attorneys of Federal agen-

A-Card Envoys Under Gas Ban, OPA Declares

Pleasure Use Barred To Personally Owned Cars, Says Spokesman

Washington diplomats who own automobiles with A ration stickers on their windshields are subject to the pleasure driving ban under the same regulations as other motorists in similar classification, OPA officials announced yesterday.

This disclosure came a day after 35 automobiles, several bearing diplomatic tags, were lined in front of Friendship, 2300 R Street Northwest, mansion of Mrs. Evalyn Walsh McLean, who entertained at one of her customary Sunday night parties.

After consulting with OPA lawyers yesterday afternoon, an OPA spokesman explained:

"There has been a general impression among some people that cars with diplomatic licenses are exempt from uniform rationing regulations. If the automobile is personally owned by the diplomat, he must observe the pleasure driving ban. However, an embassy owned car would not bear an A card and could go anywhere that is considered an official business mission."

Hjalmer Johan Procope, former president of the League of Nations, who is Finland's Minister to the United States, was among the formally clad guests who attended in personally owned automobiles.

Surprised that the driving status of diplomats should be questioned, the Finnish Minister asserted:

"Diplomats have always had Sunday evening functions to attend. We drive to them as a matter of course. Last night I was trying to do my part in the transportation crisis by taking five other persons beside myself."

Robert Brennan, Irish Minister to the United States, spoke reluctantly of being present. He said he was there from 8 to 12 p. m., but added he had no comment to make on how he reached the house. His large sedan bore A and C cards. A vigilant chauffeur, who stood beside the automobile while the diplomat was in the house, said: "You guys ought to go out to the country clubs sometimes instead of snooping around private homes."

House Unit Slashes Funds Of 3 Agencies

WMC, FSA Hard Hit; Committee Votes NYA Liquidation

The House Appropriations Committee yesterday aimed a 156-million-dollar economy blow at Paul V. McNutts War Manpower Commission and Federal Security Agency, including a recommendation for liquidation of the National Youth Administration, an erstwhile New Deal relief agency for which Congress has appropriated 700 millions.

In addition to swinging the economy axe heavily against WMC, the agency through which McNutt is directing the flow of American workers to war plants, the committee ignored the WMC chief's plea for permission to pay higher salaries for employes of the United States Employment Service, key organization for putting WMC orders into effect in the field.

Big Turnover Cited

McNutt had contended that by lifting salary restrictions against USES, the agency would be better equipped to cope with huge employe turnover which, he maintained, has reduced its effectiveness.

The committee's recommendation for liquidation of NYA by January 1, 1944, was another severe blow to McNutt, inasmuch as the WMC chairman had hoped to integrate the agency completely into

2 Soldiers Killed By Live Wires

Eighth soldiers, part of an anti-aircraft battery in the Military District of Washington, were injured, two fatally, yesterday when the flag-pole they were erecting fell across a high-tension wire. The men were rushed to Walter Reed Hospital but efforts to resuscitate two were unavailing.

The Military District said the men who were killed were Technician Fourth Grade Edward F. Sponcer of Pittsburgh, and Private Harold R. Carl of Auburn, Pa.

Dr. F. J. Broschart, Montgomery County medical examiner, issued certificates of accidental death in both cases.

Revolt Against Stifling Garb To Be Staged on Ellipse Today

The day of sense has come.

Today—and for the duration of the heat—the Brotherhood of Sensible Men discards the tie that chokes the collar that stifles the jacket that binds.

This afternoon, men with sense, which means men in slacks and sport shirts in Washington's 90-plus heat and humidity, will meet in the Ellipse to observe the beginning of the most formidable campaign against protocol in Washington and to affirm their determination to work in comfort during the summer.

The sensible men even have their own theme song, "The Battle Hymn of Sense," sung to the tune of the well-known "Strip Polka," as follows:

But this slavery to custom we have dubbed past tense
And we'll dress like men who have some sense.

Take 'em off, take 'em off, while the sweat is pouring out;
Our collars and our neckties from our throats we'll rip
While we shout—it's sensible to strip.

There's a war we are winning, working hard every day
But the longer we swelter, the less we can say;
While we're smacking old Adolf, hanging Mussy on the fence
We'll dress like men who have some sense.

The meeting of B. S. M. will be called to order by Chairman Charles E. Planck at 5:30 p. m. at the plaza, opposite the Commerce Building on Fifteenth Street be-

U. S. May Not Call Fathers Till October

Tightening Order On Job Deferments Of Childless Men In 18-25 Age Group

By Edward Ryan
Post Staff Writer

A tighter rein on occupational deferments for men 18 to 25 years old was ordered by the Government yesterday to help stave off the draft of fathers, but War Manpower Chief McNutt and his aides avoided naming a new official day for starting to call men with children.

McNutt, at his press conference, brushed aside an opportunity to agree or disagree with a prediction by Selective Service Director Hershey to a House Appropriations subcommittee that lowered Navy physical standards might postpone the general call of fathers three or four months.

That, said McNutt, was just an estimate.

Deferment Limited.

The new job order limits to six months after July 1 the occupational deferment of men 18 to 25 without children and whose employers handle their draft problem through formal replacement schedules. The exception will be jobs which are "exceptionally important" to the war effort and "extremely difficult to fill."

At the same time, the order calls on employers to include men with children on their replacement schedules for the first time, but not to schedule any father's release from his job before October 1. The effect of that, officials said, is not to fix that date as the deadline for a draft of fathers, but rather to warn each father in a key job that after October 1 his job, rather than his family, will have to be the basis for deferment.

Policy to Be Tightened

McNutt declared, however, that the rigid policy for job deferments of men under 25 in private industry would be applied with "probably greater strictness" to Government employes who hold similar deferments. He stated that policy in commenting on the report by Selective Service Director Hershey last week that a third of some 89,000 Federal employes deferred for their jobs were under 25.

In announcing the new deferment policy, manpower officials emphasized that the orders did not directly affect the date of the fathers' draft, but failed to suppress a hint that the starting date might be pushed off as late as

The Supreme Court, reversing a 1940 decision, held yesterday that States cannot compel school children to salute the American flag.

As the Nation observed Flag Day, the court, in a 6 to 3 decision, outlawed a flag salute requirement by the West Virginia Board of Education.

Big U. S. Bombers Batter Island; Another Small Outpost Taken

By the Associated Press

London, June 14.—The capture of another stepping-stone island on the Mediterranean route to Europe, tiny Lampione, was reported here tonight from North Africa, and at the same time it was learned the attack on Sicily had reached tremendous proportions, big American Liberators hurling down a quarter-million pounds of bombs on the Italian stronghold.

Most of the bombs smashed upon Catania and Gerbini in a raid of crushing force similar to the bombardments that broke the lesser islands of Pantelleria, Lampedusa and Linosa on successive days.

A Reuters dispatch announced the capture of Lampione in the Pelagie group, saying it was taken Sunday, but gave few other details. Lampione was described as uninhabited.

Others in the Pelagie group are Lampedusa, which surrendered Saturday, and Linosa, which gave in to a British destroyer without a struggle yesterday. The three form a triangle lying a little more than 100 miles south of Pantelleria, the first Italian Mediterranean island fortress to fall to the Allies.

Lampione, about 100 miles east of the Tunisian port of Sousse, is only 10 miles west-northwest of Lampedusa and approximately 35 miles southwest of Linosa.

The Reuters dispatch was credited to a "special correspondent for American forces."

A communique from Cairo announced that thundering formations from the Ninth United States Air Force hit Gerbini and Catania, both important enemy air bases, in daylight yesterday, blanketing 25 grounded enemy planes at Gerbini with bomb bursts and smashing hangars, runways and dispersal areas at Catania.

At Gerbini, three Axis planes attempting to take off were torn apart—"blown up," said the official announcement—by the guns of

Noise, Alone, Nearly Fatal, Italians Say

Allied Headquarters in North Africa, June 14 (AP).—The aerial battering of Pantelleria, Axis island stronghold, was so terrific that "the noise alone almost killed them," Italians defending it told Sergt. Pilot H. E. Love of the R. A. F. he disclosed today. He counted 90 wrecked enemy planes about the airfield. He saw equipment on hand sufficient to have sustained the defenders for many months, had they been able to hold out.

He found hangars hewn out of solid rock, big enough to house 100 planes and 60 trucks. But none of this availed, the Italian officers told him, against the "bombardamento terrifico."

Jap Pilot Maims U. S. Flier In Propeller as He Bails Out

By Leif Erickson
Associated Press Staff Writer

An Advanced South Pacific Base, June 14.—A savage attempt by a Japanese Zero pilot to cut a parachuting Marine flier to pieces with his propeller was reported by the Allied South Pacific headquarters today.

The Zero's propeller blade cut off most of the right foot of Lieut. Samuel S. Logan, 22, of Paola, Kans., and part of his left heel.

Rescued from the sea, Lieutenant Logan was brought to a hospital where his leg was amputated above the ankle. He will recover.

There have been frequent stories of Nipponese pilots shooting at United State fliers floating helplessly in parachutes, but this was the first time the Japanese were known to have used a propeller as a butchering weapon.

A headquarters spokesman said he had heard of nothing quite so brutal as that in aerial combat.

Logan was flying a Corsair with United States fighters which intercepted from 40 to 50 Japanese Zeros and bombers over the Russell Islands June 7.

Logan attacked a Zero which was firing on an Army P-40. The young flier felt his plane vibrating badly and saw his tail surfaces ripping apart. He climbed from the cockpit, crawled along the fuselage to the tail, and jumped.

The Zero firing machine guns, the Japanese made four passes under the falling flyer, coming so close the first two times that Logan had to lift his feet to escape being hit by the propeller.

When the Zero made the third pass, Logan was busy trying to

5 Zoot-Suiters Held in Death Of U. S. Soldier

Fort Bliss Private Found Fatally Stabbed in Juarez

By the Associated Press

El Paso, Tex., June 14—Private Donald C. Hemenway stationed at nearby Fort Bliss was found stabbed to death in neighboring Juarez, Mexico, and officials there said today that five youths wearing zoot suits were held for investigation.

Mayor Antonio Bermudez of Juarez, directing the inquiry into the death of the Natick, Mass., soldier, said the arrests were made after a witness reported seeing three youths wearing zoot suits attack a United States soldier on a Juarez street Saturday night shortly before Hemenway's body was found by two small boys.

He said robbery evidently was not the motive as $10 in cash was found on Hemenway's body.

To Lift Travel Ban

San Diego, Calif., June 14 (AP).—The Eleventh Naval District announced tonight that temporary restrictions against Navy personnel traveling to Los Angeles on liberty would be removed tomorrow.

The restrictions were imposed last Tuesday after trouble between servicemen and zoot suiters.

Rear Admiral David Bagley, Eleventh District commandant, said today's decision was made after Fletcher Bowron, Los Angeles mayor, gave assurance his police department was prepared to handle the situation.

Heavy Bombs Hit London's Suburban Area

Two Alerts Called Within Hour; R. A. F. Slashes at Rhineland

London, Tuesday, June 15 (AP).—R. A. F. bombers blasted Germany again last night, the British announced today, carrying the renewed allied aerial offensive into its fourth successive night as Nazi raiders stabbed twice at London in sharp reprisal attacks.

London (Tuesday), June 15.—Heavy explosives were dropped on London suburbs early today by enemy planes which touched off the capital's air raid sirens twice within an hour.

Thunderous gunfire followed both alarms and searchlights spotted at least one fast raider over the city's outskirts. The all clear sounded shortly after each alert.

The explosives fell during the first alarm but there were no immediate reports of damage or casualties.

The raid apparently was an attempt at retaliation in the Allied air offensive against Germany which had gone on unchecked through the previous night with R. A. F. attacks on the Rhineland and on Axis shipping off the Dutch coast.

Reconnaissance photographs showed that very heavy damage was wrought by American bombers in their raid Sunday on the German port of Bremen.

These photographs disclosed at least a dozen hits on and around the Atlas works, one of the port's largest shipyards.

The companion American raid on Kiel ran into such fierce fighter opposition that effective use could not be made of the cameras.

Twenty-six American planes were lost in both attacks, but a great number of German craft were shot out of the sky.

Navy Denies Officer Owns Hog Farm at Seabee's Camp

The Navy Department yesterday flatly denied Drew Pearson's story that the hog farm at Camp Peary, Va., training ground for the Seebees, is owned by Capt. W. G. Ware, commanding officer of the base, or that the profits from it go to Ware.

Pearson, however, reiterated his stand that the so-called "hog heaven" is operated by Ware on U. S. Government property; that enlisted personnel are working there and that profits go directly to the captain.

Lieut. Comdr. W. Marvin McCarthy told The Post yesterday that:

"The hog farm was started as a ship's service activity to provide food for the officers and men and had grown out of the meat shortage. Only small amounts of meat are sold on the open market and all proceeds go into the ships' service fund. Many camps have their own gardens operated by the men to supply food for the officers' and men's messes."

Ships' stores are operated privately to provide necessities such as cigarettes, candy and soft drinks to the men and all profits go into the ship's service fund to provide recreation for the men. Books of such stores are audited by the Government.

The Navy's official statement was at variance with the one given to Pearson by Ware when he was called on the phone and told the story was going to appear.

Pearson said Ware at first told him he had nothing to say. Then Pearson told the officer he knew that the Navy bulldozer B-16 was parked on the farm and that Navy dump truck No. 18924, driven by Sailor L. Bartels, was carrying slop to the farm.

"Who told you that?" Pearson reported Ware as saying.

Pearson replied that he couldn't reveal the source of his information.

Asked whether the garbage from the camp which he uses to feed the hogs was given to him, Pearson said Ware replied:

"No, I pay the contractor who takes all of the camp garbage for it."

"Is the hog meat used as part of the camp mess?"

Pearson reported his reply as: "It is sold to the men right here on the place for recreational barbecue purposes."

Later Pearson said Ware admitted that some of the meat was sold on the open market at Richmond, and said to Pearson, "I hope you're not going to write any of this, though.'"

The columnist said yesterday he had learned that the provost marshall at the camp had called in certain enlisted men and questioned them at great length on their conversations with newspa-

Green Predicts Labor Revolt If Strike Bill Becomes Law

By Ben Gilbert
Post Staff Writer

A. F. of L. President William Green yesterday told President Roosevelt that the workers of America will "rebel" against the Connally-Smith bill if it becomes a law.

Green dispatched a letter to the President thus launching what is expected to be a vigorous campaign by organized labor to persuade the Chief Executive to veto the anti-strike measure.

Asserting that Congress "was moved by anger and feeling" when it passed the bill, Green declared that it was "un-American, Fascist, antilabor legislation."

Meanwhile, the War Labor Board officials expected to reach a final decision on the coal wage controversy tomorrow or Thursday, as John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, called his international policy committee together for a meeting here tomorrow.

It is expected that the policy committee will be given a chance to consider whatever decision WLB hands down. The U. M. W.'s reaction to this decision is expected to have important bearing on presidential consideration of the Connally-Smith bill.

The President has until June 25 to make up his mind. Lewis has set a June 20 "no contract-no-work" deadline for a third general coal strike, indicating that the President can use the bill as a club against him.

It was learned that President Philip Murray of the C. I. O. plans to join with Green in calling for a veto of the measure. Murray may act today, although he has a meeting with C. I. O. vice presidents

Albany Naval Officer Is Decorated for 'Probably Destroying' Enemy Submarine

By John G. Norris
Post Staff Writer

American submarines have sunk or damaged 17 Japanese ships definitely sending 12 of them to the bottom, the Navy announced last night.

One of the enemy vessels damaged was a Jap submarine. It was "probably destroyed," the Navy said, in a battle with one of our undersea raiders.

The Nipponese ships definitely listed as sunk in a late communique included a destroyer, a large transport, 5 medium-sized cargo vessels, a large trawler, a patrol vessel, a small supply ship and 2 small cargo ships.

Another enemy destroyer was listed as damaged by an American submarine attack. The communique also reported that a large Jap tanker and 2 medium-sized transports had been damaged by our underseas attacks. One of the troop ships was described as "probably sunk" and the other "badly damaged."

Barnard Decorated

The seventeenth Nipponese vessel reported attacked—the enemy sub—was not listed in the communique. Disclosure of the action was made in an announcement of the award of the Silver Star Medal to Lieut. James H. Barnard of Albany, N. Y.

Barnard was serving aboard an American submarine "on patrol in Japanese waters," when the action occurred for which he was decorated.

"While officer of the deck," the Navy said, "his ship was attacked by an enemy submarine. Maneuvering with great skill, Lieutenant Barnard succeeded in avoiding the attack, and then launched an assault of his own with such force and accuracy that the enemy craft was probably destroyed."

No further details were given of this sub vs. sub battle, and no details at all were given as to actions in which the other 16 craft were blasted. A spokesman said the submarine reported "probably destroyed" in the announcement of the decoration of Lieutenant Barnard had not been listed in communiques.

Total 256 Jap Ships

On the basis of the communiques alone, a total of 256 Japanese ships has been reported sunk or damaged by United States submarines. Of these 181 vessels of all types have been sunk, 28 probably sunk and 47 damaged.

The "bag" announced yesterday was the largest report of successful American submarine action ever released. It illustrates the important role played by the "silent service" in wearing down Japan's ability to wage war.

Earlier in the day, the Navy reported some air action in the

'Chute Fails, Pilot Drops 2000 Feet Into Sea—Lives

An Advanced South Pacific Base, June 14 (AP).—South Pacific Headquarters today reported Lieut. J. G. Percy, 21, San Francisco, amazingly survived a 2000-foot fall with a parachute that failed to open.

Percy, a Marine Corsair pilot, had shot down one Zero and damaged another when his plane was disabled. He bailed out at 2000 feet, couldn't get his parachute open and "landed in the water feetfirst and felt something break," Percy related.

"I had my Mae West (life jacket) inflated and that kept me up."

Although his pelvis was fractured, Percy swam for three hours and finally dragged himself on a reef, then reached a beach. He lay on the beach all that night, and finally was able to hail four natives. The natives summoned aid and Percy was taken to a base hospital.

Allied Planes Ease Fears of Captives

War Sidelights

Invasion This Week, Paris Says

London, June 14 (INS).—The Nazi-controlled Paris radio, through a French commentator, Jean Paquis, said today, "It is likely the Allied invasion will begin this week."

In a broadcast heard in London, the commentator added:

"There is no doubt the Allies have stopped joking and threatening and the time for serious action has come.

"The Allies have said the invasion is imminent. Therefore we must expect the landing any day now.

"The Anglo-American armies have confidence in their numerical superiority in the initial attack against the continent. In addition, they are expecting considerable help from the underground movement in every country they invade."

Nazi Shift From Sicily

New York, June 14 (AP).—Reichsmarshal Hermann Goering has ordered the German air force in Italy to shift its headquarters from Sicily to the Italian mainland, a London broadcast said tonight.

The broadcast said reports that air reinforcements have arrived in Italy from Germany are false, but that German fighters to replace those shot down may be sent in.

10 Million Red Gardens

Prison Ship Inmates Afraid Axis Would Bomb the Vessel

By Noland Norgaard
Representing the Combined United States Press with British Forces

Aboard a British Assault Craft in the Mediterranean, June 13 (Delayed).—Hundreds of Italian prisoners—part of 15,000 taken following the surrender of Pantelleria—crowded the decks of this little British warship today and gazed happily at Allied warplanes patrolling the skies to protect them from their erstwhile partners, the German air force.

This vessel, American-built, forms part of a convoy taking off from Pantelleria the prisoners who survived not only the mighty Allied air bombardment which brought about the capitulation, but also sneak raids by German fighter-bombers.

The Germans struck four times yesterday at tiny Pantelleria harbor, where quays were crowded with prisoners ready to board ships.

They were excited and frightened when first brought aboard. They quickly rushed to don all available life preservers.

Offers Watch for Lifebelt

I saw one prisoner running from one seaman to another eagerly offering his watch to anyone who could find him a lifeboat.

Patrols of Allied fighters overhead however, soon allayed their fears and they settled down to enjoy the trip.

British troops, who were continuing to round up more prisoners pouring in from the remote hill areas, likewise found Pantelleria uninviting. They were limited the first two days to field rations and the water they were able to carry in their packs.

There are few buildings sufficiently intact to provide shelter.

Wells Hard to Reach

There are a few wells on the island, but most of them are difficult to reach. With other correspondents I spent last night in an Italian pillbox near the harbor, sleeping on the concrete floor with only a piece of canvas and a coat for bedclothing.

Our quarters were infested with fleas, but the 6 feet of solid concrete above our heads appeared to be adquate protection against German sneak raiders. Even that heavy construction, however, had failed to guarante the safety of the Italian garrison when the big American Flying Fortresses blasted the harbors and defense works.

A big block buster bomb had fallen 40 feet away and the blast had carved a great chunk of concrete off the structure. A hit from such a bomb would easily have destroyed it.

A final check-up disclosed that civilian casualties from the bombings were very light. After the first Allied raids the population abandoned the town and went to the caves on the volcanic mountain sides.

Yank Airmen Again Batter Japs in China

By the Associated Press

Chungking, June 14.—American airmen dealt fresh blows to Japanese strongholds in northern Kiangsi Province yesterday in support of Chinese ground forces whose high command reported new gains today.

The continuing Chinese counter-attack along the upper Yangtze already has eliminated the danger to Chungking.

The planes rained more than 100 bombs on the airfield at Nanchang, Japanese-held provincial capital. Direct hits were scored on two large hangars and runways at the landing field, probably the most important Japanese air base between Shanghai and Hankow.

Other attacks were made on Japanese troop and supply concentrations and for the third straight day all American planes returned safely.

The Chinese communique said Japanese troops retreating from Sungtze, Yangtze port between Ichang and Shasi which the Chinese retook Friday, had fled in three groups. One group was wiped out, the bulletin said, adding that the other two were being rounded up.

Kungan, in southern Hupeh Province, was reported retaken by the Chinese, who had lost it earlier after regaining possession for a few hours June 4. The Japanese used Kungan as one of the bases for their ill-fated upper Yangtze offensive.

Meanwhile, Chungking celebrated United Nations Day with Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek reviewing the longest parade ever staged in Free China. More than 20,000 Chinese marched past the generalissimo.

Nazi Spy's Signals Aided Japs In Making Pearl Harbor Attack

German Captured By FBI Was Paid For News of Fleet

A German spy helped the Japanese prepare for the sneak attack on Pearl Harbor by betraying dispositions of the American fleet and devising the signals which guided the attackers, the Office of War Information revealed yesterday.

Making public a report by the Federal Bureau of Investigation, the OWI told for the first time of the trial and conviction last October of Bernard Julius Otto Kuehn, Nazi agent who was arrested the day after the December 7, 1941, attack. First sentenced to be shot, Kuehn's sentence was commuted to 50 years at hard labor. Members of his family were interned as dangerous aliens.

Among signals apparently used by the Japanese was a light in a dormer window of Kuehn's residence in Kalama, Oahu, and another in his beach house at Lanikai.

Japs Had Signal System

Discovery by the FBI, Army and Navy intelligence that Nagao Kita, Japanese consul general at Honolulu, had dispatched the signal system to Tokyo on December 3 led to Kuehn's arrest. He finally admitted his complicity on December 30.

Kuehn told the FBI his collaboration with the Japs began in November, 1941, when he went to Otojuro Okuda, Japanese vice consul at Honolulu, and "offered to assist the Japanese in obtaining information about the national defense of the United States."

Okuda told him, he said, first to get information about movement of the American fleet and, second, to devise a system of signals by which this information could be relayed to the Japanese fleet.

Kuehn took his 10-year-old son, Hans Joachim, with him to Pearl Harbor and reported his observations to Okuda. A few days later he appeared at the Japanese consulate with a signal system he had worked out for furnishing information as to the number and types of American ships in the harbor and data about others that already had left or were about to leave.

Tabulated United States Ships

The Japs thought the system too complicated. Kuehn went back December 2 with a simpler system, which he gave to Okuda—along with a written tabulation of the number and types of American ships then in Hawaiian waters.

Kuehn and his family apparently were well paid by the Japanese over a period of several years.

Kuehn entered the United States at Honolulu in August, 1935, for the alleged reason of studying the Japanese language. He never returned to Germany, but made two trips to Japan.

Between May, 1936, and February, 1939, more than $70,000 was deposited to the credit of Kuehn and his wife in a Honolulu bank by the Rotterdam Bank Association, OWI said. "It was supposed to have come from investments and business interests of his in Germany and Holland."

Wife Ran Beauty Parlor

By the end of 1939, however, Kuehn was reported to be in financial difficulties. He established a beauty parlor which his wife's daughter, Ruth, operated. Mrs. Kuehn is reported to have said the shop really was opened to obtain "Navy business."

Mrs. Kuehn went to Japan in 1940 and returned home with a series of articles on "American Polynesia" which contained descriptions of various British and American islands. She also is reported to have brought back $16,000 in cash.

In the fall of 1940, the Kuehns had the dormer window built in the attic of their home on Kalama Road. Early that year, Mrs. Kuehn had purchased a pair of extremely high-powered binoculars—so powerful they could be used only on a tripod.

Nipponese Paid Cash

The FBI reported that in October, 1941, $14,000 in cash was delivered to Kuehn by Tadasi Morimura, fourth secretary of the Japanese consulate.

Although Kuehn had no previous criminal record, the FBI said he was known under several aliases and that both he and his wife "were generally known in Honolulu as pro-Nazi and took part in the activities of various local German clubs."

Kuehn was born in Berlin in 1895, the FBI learned. He entered the German navy at 18, was made a British prisoner during World War I when a cruiser on which he was midshipman was sunk. After the armistice he served six months as an ober-lieutenant on the mother ship of a mine sweeper flotilla. Later he studied medicine briefly at the universities of Berlin and Munich.

During his questioning, Kuehn proudly boasted that he was so high in the Nazi party that he once was considered for chief of the Gestapo under Heinrich Himmler. His rival for the job, he told the FBI, was Reinhold Heydrich, who became known as "the hangman," double crossed him.

Mrs. Kuehn claimed her son, Leopold, is an assistant to Joseph Goebbels, Nazi propaganda minister.

London Talks About Delaying Invasion

By Thomas C. Watson
International News Service Staff Writer

London, June 14.—Possibility of deferring invasion plans until Europe has been "softened up" by aerial bombardment was widely discussed in London tonight as a result of Vice Air Marshal Jones' assertions that the war in Europe can be won by air power alone.

Jones, chief of British air staff in Australia, said, "If the R. A. F. and the United States Air Force can increase, or even sustain, their present heavy attacks on Germany and Italy, the enemy's air power may collapse and land operations, except for the purposes of occupation, may not be necessary.

"Even if civilian morale remains unbroken the enemy's war potential would be so seriously impaired that they could not continue the struggle."

Nazis Almost Succeeded

Speaking of the destruction of enemy air defenses, Jones said:

"Germany tried it on England and went very close to succeeding. If she had achieved success she would have sent 1000 bombers over England. British communications would have been paralyzed and for England the war would have been over long ago."

Many indications give weight to Jones' observations. The Canadian and American reinforcements streaming into Britain comprise a notably high percentage of fighters and bombers with their pilots and ground crews.

The doubling and redoubling of the American air force in Britain as well as Air Chief Marshal A. T. Harris' frequently reiterated faith in the destructive conclusiveness of concentrated bombing were recalled by the proponents of air power.

All civilian building and construction throughout Britain practically has ceased since early last winter when contractors and workers switched to the construction of airdromes, hangars and barracks. This building activity is constantly continuing.

Enemy Expecting Invasion

Reports from Axis Europe, however, indicate the enemy has no doubts of the imminence of a land invasion. A list of drastic reforms, calling for "increased ruthlessness inside Italy in the face of the growing threat of invasion," has been submitted to Benito Mussolini by the directorate of the Fascist Party, the British radio said today.

These last-hour reforms, continued the British broadcast, "follow the new high level of alarm in official propaganda. Rome radio describes Italy's present position as the gravest in her whole modern history. An official spokesman has declared: "The fateful hour has come. Hannibal is at the gate of Italy."

Possibility of an Allied landing in the Balkans has intensified Bulgarian police measures, according to Moscow radio, which said that every day a district, town or village is blockaded by the police and search is made for persons "hiding from the authorities."

Myer Faces Quiz On Japs' Release

Ickes' Employes

Dies Report On 3 Japs Is Denied

By Mary Spargo
Post Staff Writer

A spokesman for the Interior Department said yesterday that three Japanese-American employes of Interior Secretary Harold L. Ickes, charged by the Dies Committee Sunday with going to a meeting of the Japanese-American Citizens League at 1324 Fourteenth Street Northwest on May 22, were attending a social at Calvary Baptist Church, Eighth and H Streets Northwest.

This statement was confirmed by the Rev. Clarence W. Cranford, pastor of the church, who told the Post the "fellowship gathering" was suggested by a young Japanese-American Baptist, now serving in the United States Army.

Arrangements for the little church social, in connection with which the Dies Committee referred to the "deadly methods of the Black Dragon Patriotic Society," were made through the Home Mission Board of Calvary Baptist Church.

In widely published stories, the Dies Committee had charged that the meeting, erroneously placed over the welding shop on Fourteenth Street, was disorderly.

Investigators were quoted as saying:

"The meeting ended in a hell of a row. We don't know just why."

Mildly surprised, Dr. Cranford said the Dies description was "rather odd" for a church gathering, and added that he knew of "no row" which had occurred in his church that evening.

Dr. Cranford pointed out that several other meetings were in progress in the church at the same time in adjacent and nearby rooms and that there had been no report of any row.

War Relocation Authority spokesmen, queried on the Dies charges, said that Ickes employes, like others released from their camps, had been carefully investigated.

"The records of all Japanese-Americans released have been checked against the records of the FBI, the Army and Navy intelligence services," WRA spokesmen said.

Representative Dies (Democrat) of Texas, committee chairman, who has been out of Washington, could not be reached for comment. Acting Chairman Starnes (Democrat) of Alabama is also out of town, as is Chief Investigator Robert E. Stripling, usual committee spokesman.

Dies Probers to Call Relocation Authority Chief

By the Associated Press

Los Angeles, June 14.—A Dies subcommittee is going to summon Dillon S. Myer, national director of the War Relocation Authority, to answer what its chairman, Representative Costello (Democrat) of California, says are reports Myer is responsible for the release of Japs from relocation centers.

"We have testimony under oath that Myer instituted the procedure of releasing Japanese evacuees without consulting any other officials of the Government," said Costello. "One of the witnesses testified that Myer told of this program in a speech before evacuees in advance of the announcement of it to Caucasians. The witness said Myer made it clear in his speech that even his office in Washington did not know what he had in mind and that he was assuming personal responsibility.

The subcommittee will reconvene its hearing tomorrow into the operation of the relocation centers.

25 Japanese-Americans Employed Here by WRA

Dillon S. Myer, chief of the War Relocation Authority, said last night that about 25 Japanese-Americans are employed in Washington by his agency, but that it was a fact neither new nor surprising.

Employment of Japanese in the WRA local offices was reported following examination of material seized for the House committee on Unamerican Activities, headed by Representative Dies ( Democrat) of Texas, in a raid by subpena-bearing investigators at the headquarters of the Japanese-American Citizens League Saturday.

Myer said, "Oh sure, we've had the Japanese employes for some time. I'm surprised that people are surprised about it."

He said that each employe had first been cleared by a joint board with representatives of the Office of Naval Intelligence, Army Intelligence, the Provost Marshal's organization, and the War Relocation Authority itself. In turn, each employe undergoes the civil service investigation.

Their jobs, he said, were those of stenographers, clerks, and statistical clerks, and none is in any policy-making position.

"They have rendered excellent service," he said. "I don't know of any exception to that statement. They are simply American youngsters doing a good job."

He pointed out that in the relocation centers some of the Japanese are employed, at pay ranging up to a $19 a month maximum, in addition to subsistence, but that outside of the centers not more than a dozen Japanese Americans "at a guess" were employed by the WRA field offices.

Colleges Honor Three From D. C.

Dr. Ruth A. Parmelee, Congregational missionary physician under the American Board of Foreign Missions, has received the honorary degree of doctor of science from Oberlin College, her alma mater, it was announced yesterday. Dr. Parmelee is the sister of J. H. Parmelee, director of the Bureau of Railway Economics, and Mrs. T. C. Brockway, also of this city.

Frances-Scott Simmons McConnell, daughter of Brig. Gen. and Mrs. James Stevens Simmons, yesterday received her A. B. degree magna cum laude from Sweet Briar College. Also honored was Miss Virginia Leslie Burgess, daughter of Mrs. Dudley Wilfred Burgess, 2800 Woodley Road, who received the junior honor scholarship as the top-ranking student in the junior class.

Countess de Laune Dies at Age of 105 In Newark Home

Newark, N. J., June 14 (AP).—Countess Virginia Violette Melanie D. D. De Laune, 105 years old, died last night at a home for the aged.

The last survivor of a family long identified with the nobility of France, Countess de Laune had lived in Newark for the last 40 years.

Countess de Laune, knew Napoleon III well, was an intimate of Empress Eugenie, and until she was 32 lived the fashionable life of a French noblewoman.

Then came the Franco-Prussian war of 1870, in which she lost seven brothers and the family lost its fortune.

After the war she taught French in Paris and other European capitals.

She came to the united States at the turn of the century and settled in Newark, where she taught French to hundreds of private pupils. She made frequent trips to her homeland, crossing the Atlantic 30 times.

She never married.

'Mission to Moscow' Ban Demanded by Boston Council

Boston, June 14 (INS).—The City Council today passed two orders requesting that the motion picture, "Mission to Moscow," be banned in Boston, because "it is a propagandizing film of distorted truth with an ulterior motive of glorifying a dictatorship government that is abhorrent to American ideals and principles."

One order declared the picture "is outright Communist propaganda" and is "a deliberate distortion of the truth and expresses contempt for our democratic institutions."

Russians Halt Nazi Attempt To Ford Donets

By the Associated Press

London, Tuesday, June 15.—An unsuccessful and costly German attempt to cross the Donets River in the south, and a bloody local skirmish in the Orel sector of the central Russian line were reported today in the Russian midnight communique.

The Germans, armed with tommy guns, attempted to cross to the west bank of the river in the Lisichansk area, where the German line cuts east across the river.

In the Orel sector, northwest of Misensk, the Soviet troops engaged in operations which the communique said were of "local importance." Three German artillery and two mortar batteries were reported destroyed and over 100 Germans wiped out.

Three German planes were reported brought down by ground fire and two German airmen captured.

The Russian air force destroyed or damaged at least 20 trucks carrying troops and supplies, blew up an ammunition dump and silenced three artillery batteries. Several trains were also reported hit by Soviet attackers.

Thrusts by the Red troops in the Orel sector were reported in the noon communique, which said four populated places were captured, counterattacks beaten off and German fortifications shelled.

40-Foot 'Crash Boat' Rescues 70 Torpedo Victims Far at Sea

The entire personnel of a torpedoed United States merchant ship in the South Atlantic was rescued by a 40-foot Army "crash boat," navigated by an Army Air Corps officer and operating far out at sea, the War Department announced yesterday.

Seventy persons, including an American naval detachment of 1 officer and 25 enlisted men, were brought back to a United States base from the four lifeboats in which they had taken refuge.

Second Lieut. William C. O'Bryan, Air Corps, of North Hollywood, Calif., was the officer in charge of the crash boat, and made two trips into the open sea to perform the rescue.

The master of the torpedoed ship was Capt. Samuel Olsen, New York City. Lieut. (j. g.) Gthrie Crowe of La Grange, Ky., commanded the naval detachment.

The announcement said that Captain Olsen evaded the submarine for eight hours after the first torpedo missed his vessel. Then a torpedo struck the ship, putting its largest gun out of action. Other guns could not be brought to bear.

Another torpedo hastened the sinking of the ship. The crew were ordered into four lifeboats, which stayed together for two days and then separated, two remaining together because there was only one set of navigational equipment between them.

Army airplanes flying the South Atlantic sighted one of the lifeboats eight days later. A portable radio and containers of water were dropped, with a message assuring help. The other lifeboats were discovered soon after, and food, water and flares were supplied by parachute.

That afternoon Lieut. O'Bryan urged that he be allowed to take the crash boat and attempt a rescue. With a crew of five men he cruised through the night and, guided by an airplane, picked up the first lifeboat the next day and removed 19 persons. Seventy miles away he found two other lifeboats tied together and began towing them toward the shore.

Having taken the rescued men from these three boats to shore, the crash boat went back, located and brought in those aboard the fourth lifeboat.

Welders' Strike At Ford Plant

Detroit, June 14 (INS).—More than 700 workers in the pressed steel department of the Ford Motor Company were idle tonight as result of a strike of 120 welders.

Half of the welders, who are demanding a 15-cent an hour wage increase, walked out during the day shift. The others followed when they reported for work on the next shift.

About 600 other employes were made idle by the walkouts.

The welders, members of the U.A.W.-C.I.O. are receiving $1.25 an hour, a company spokesman said. He added that since the scale was a negotiated figure there was nothing the company could do but place the demand before the War Labor Board.

French Seek Formula to Close Dispute of Leaders

By the Associated Press

Algiers, June 14.—Split into at least two consulting groups, the French Committee of National Liberation struggled today for a final agreement in the dispute between Gens. Charles de Gaulle and Henri Giraud over their respective military powers.

Well-informed quarters said steady progress toward a reconciliation was being made and that De Gaulle would resume his attendance at committee meetings in a few days.

De Gaullist sources maintained that the estrangement could not be closed unless Giraud consented to assignment of the portfolio of national defense to De Gaulle.

The Man-Power Problem

—and handling your payroll accounts

Management faces a complex problem in the manpower situation. The shortage of workers becomes more and more acute . . . training becomes increasingly difficult . . . and job "freezing" must be reckoned with. Always, however, there is this simple fact . . . time is at the very core of the problem.

Finding a simpler, quicker way to make a rivet, file a letter, or handle a payroll adds to our stock of time—that most critical of war materials.

▲ FOR INSTANCE, among the many things Shaw-Walker has developed is a payroll plan that effects a tremendous saving of the man-hours that war demands have made so precious.

As you write one payroll record, all figures are automatically transferred to the two or more other essential records that you now write in separate operations.

After each individual payroll entry, every record you need is complete, correct and up-to-date—ready for quarterly reports and government inspection. Rewriting of figures is entirely eliminated.

Entirely eliminated, too, are separate records for War Bonds, Social Security, Victory or Withholding Taxes, employee insurance, employee hospitalization, union dues and all other ledger records of a similar nature.

Every pay day the statement you give to each employee includes:

(1) A complete record of earnings.

(2) A detailed list of deductions.

(3) A notice telling the worker the exact amount he has on deposit with you toward his next War Bond.

All records are made in one operation. Pay checks, employee pay statement, social security and withholding tax records, War Bond Record, ledger record of other deductions, check register and payroll summary, all are made at once.

▲ SO SIMPLE is the "KOPI-SPOT" payroll system that any clerk can handle it. It can be adapted to any type of payroll whether you pay by check or in cash . . . whether you make your entries by typewriter or by hand.

A complete folder has been prepared, illustrating the "KOPI-SPOT" and explaining its application to various payroll methods. May we send you a copy of it?

Fiscal Year's End Threatens Money Bill Jam

Two weeks from the July 1 deadline for 1944 appropriations, Congress yesterday faced a money bill jam that threatened to leave many of the regular Federal agencies without funds when the fiscal year turns.

Only one of the regular departmental appropriations — the war civil functions bill — has been cleared by both houses and signed by the President. All but three of the rest have been passed by the House but were tied up in the Senate or in conference.

Chairman Clarence Cannon of the House Appropriations Committee said he still believed there was time to pass all the measures without adoption of the special resolutions used in emergencies to tide over appropriation bill deadlocks. Cannon said he hoped to clear all the pending bills through the House by Saturday "if we have to have night sessions to do it."

Representative Taber of New York, ranking Republican member of the House Appropriations Committee, said: "It's the worst jam I've ever seen. I don't believe all of the bills can be finally passed before July 15."

Four of the big bills, already passed by both houses, were in conference disputes threatening extended delay. The agriculture bill involved a Senate disagreement with a House attempt to cut out FSA funds. Treasury-Postoffice and independent offices appropriations were similarly in conflict on Senate changes.

A fourth, the urgent deficiency bill, was temporarily frozen on the House Speaker's desk because House Republicans refused to let it go to conference. The Senate had restored to the measure funds for three civilian employes whose salaries were clipped by the House because of alleged affiliation with subversive organizations.

As yet unreported by the House Appropriations Committee was the war agency bill, rife with controversies over OPA and OWI funds, and the big all-time record War Department appropriation bill.

Leaders, who have promised members a vacation beginning early in July, made it clear that no recess will be taken until all the money bills are passed and delivered to the White House.

Plane Crashes, Bomb Explodes; Pilot Still Alive

Quonset, R. I., June 14 (AP).—A piloto was critically burned and three men who were standing nearby suffered minor injuries today when a plane on a routine flight crashed at the Naval Air Station, detonating a bomb it carried and causing the detonation of a pile of explosives stored nearby.

The pilot, sole occupant of the plane, was dragged to safety from the burning wreckage by several enlisted men. The pilot and the plane were British.

Gunner's Mate Third Class Joseph Francis Little of New York was slightly burned on the hands in dragging the pilot from the wreckage, and two persons standing near the scene were slightly cut by the flying glass.

Identity of the pilot was not disclosed immediately.

Davis Calls War Effort 'Best Story'

By the Associated Press

Boston, June 14.—A United States military machine whose menace is "becoming painfully apparent to our enemies, even if many people in this country still seem unaware of it," has been set rolling in the past three years, Elmer Davis, director of the Office of War Information, said today.

"That, in my opinion, is the biggest story now current, the biggest story for a good many years past," he added in an address before about 125 delegates to the tenth annual convention of the American Newspaper Guild (C. I. O.).

Davis asserted that despite confusion and bickering, out of Washington has come "the conversion of the greatest peacetime industrial plant the world has ever known to the greatest wartime industrial plant the world has ever known; . . . the creation of an armed force 20 times as large as we had three years ago—and far more efficient man for man."

Deliberate Impression

Davis declared that in a few papers an impression that Washington is a synonym for "muddle, confusion and bickering" has been "deliberately created, for reasons on which I would prefer not to speculate."

"However," he said, "such criticism accounts for only a part of this impression that has been widely created; it is largely, I think, the result of routine, and what the sociologists call a time lag—routine reporting and routine editing, a conviction that what was big news and good circulation stuff five years ago is big news and good circulation stuff still."

"And to some extent, of course, the criticism is justified," he added.

Less Adequately Covered

Expressing the view that "Washington news seems, to my perhaps old-fashioned taste, less adequately covered than any other news in the world today," Davis said that some Washington correspondents had been covering the Capital for years. "But," he continued, "the war has suddenly compelled them to cover an immensely complicated story quite outside their familiar field.

"It is not surprising if some of them have found some difficulty in retooling for conversion to war production, and still seem to feel that a battle between a couple of administrators is bigger news than a battle between the American and Japanese navies. A row between two administrators would have been big news in 1938, but is conceivably of somewhat smaller relative importance in 1943."

Attack Antistrike Bill

Declaring the Connally-Harness antistrike bill "would place organized labor in a legal straitjacket," deleagtes to the convention today unanimously adopted a resolution urging President Roosevelt to veto the measure.

The resolution, proposed by Sam B. Eubanks, executive vice president, will be sent by telegram to the President.

"This bill, if it becomes law, would have no other result than to promote the destruction of labor organizations which have honestly and faithfully adhered to their pledge to you that war production will be maintained," the resolution said.

"The bill will not alleviate, but will intensify, the strife between capital and labor and by inviting management to make a farce of collective bargaining."

WLB Grants Wage Increase To Indiana Phone Workers

The War Labor Board further implemented a developing policy yesterday and granted a 10-cents-an-hour general increase to telephone workers in two Indiana towns to eliminate substandard wage conditions.

The wage increase was granted without regard to the WLB's "Little Steel" formula or to its power to grant increases to reach "sound and tested going rates." A panel which heard the case involving workers at Elkhart and Goshen, Ind., had recommended a 5-cents-an-hour increase to establish a minimum wage of 35 cents an hour, but the board found that the workers were entitled to a 40-cents-an-hour minimum.

Policy Explained

In discussing policy questions involved in the telephone company decision, Wayne L. Morse, public member, stated:

"Although the instant case involves only one relatively small telephone comany, it is only fair to say that the wages paid by this company are not out of line with those of telephone companies generally.

"In fact," Morse said, "the wage rates . . . are somewhat higher than the rates paid by many telephone companies and compare favorably with the rates of the larger telephone systems. Nevertheless, in this case, the board is dealing with a small segment of a very low-wage industry. It is one of our most important public service industries, vital to the efficient operation of our domestic economy . . .

"From the standpoint of a sound social policy, this country can ill-afford to have any great industry contract to pay wages so low that its employes cannot maintain a decent standard of living."

Meanwhile, WLB heard G. L. Patterson, general counsel of the United Rubber Workers, C. I. O., urge the board to reconsider its action granting Akron rubber workers a 3-cents-an-hour wage increase instead of the 8 cents recommended by a panel.

The cut in the wage increase resulted in a general Akron rubber strike which was ended only after a presidential ultimatum.

Patterson said the board acted in the rubber case without having all facts before it. He asserted that the industry-wide approach used by the board included a number of low-wage firms which actually were not part of the rubber industry as its operates in Akron.

L. M. Buckingham, attorney for the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co., countered the union demand by urging the board to reconsider its decision granting the union maintenance of membership. He asserted that the strike had destroyed justification for the order.

4 Meat Packers Decide to Quit Over Price Rulings

Seattle, June 14 (AP).—Four Washington packing companies said today that they had suspended slaughtering. Their official declared the action resulted from confusion over prices, subsidies and rollbacks.

The Gibson Packing Co. at Yakima, Schaake Packing Co. at Ellensberg, and the Acme and James Henry Packing companies at Seattle all reported they would stop slaughtering.

President Morris Gordon of the Acme Packing & Provision Co. said, "We'll wait a day or two and then liquidate. We just can't operate this way."

Hillcrest Citizens Elect W. L. Rice

William L. Rice was elected president of the Hillcrest Citizens Association last night at the last meeting of the group until September.

Other officers named were C. R. Moyer first vice president; George Absher, second vice president; John W. Martin, secretary; P. A. Willis, treasurer, and Donald Gunter, delegate to the Federation of Citizens Associations.

Why "Heat-Proofing" Your Home is so important NOW!

NOW is the time to insulate, weatherstrip, and install storm windows on your home. Materials are available. Working conditions are better than they will be next fall.

You will save two ways: For yourself, by cutting your fuel bills and at the same time being able to keep warm next winter. For the Government, by helping relieve the strain on transportation facilities and the shortage of fuel oil.

The OFFICE of WAR INFORMATION says: "There can be no assurance that conditions will be any less severe than last year unless everyone cooperates during the spring and summer."

The OFFICE of PRICE ADMINISTRATION says: "Keep the heat inside your home. To insulate a finished attic, or the sidewalls of your house, consult an expert."

The BUREAU of MINES says: "There never was a time in the history of our nation when it was more necessary to practice economy in household heating. Even with the finest heating plant, surfaces exposed to the weather are likely to become cold unless heavily insulated. The same insulation helps to keep surfaces cool in summer."

The MORRIS PLAN BANK of WASHINGTON says: Don't wait. The Government has warned that shortage of both labor and materials may develop this fall. See your contractor or dealer immediately. Ask him to give you an estimate, without obligation. He will be glad to do so.

If you prefer not to pay cash for the work, come to "The Bank for the Individual" and get a Modernization Loan. You need make no payments until November 1st. New Government regulations permit this special privilege for fuel conservation loans to insulate, weatherstrip, caulk, install storm windows and doors, and for converting oil-burners to the use of coal.

No endorsers—No collateral—No red tape

You simply fill out an application blank and sign a note. The money is available promptly and you can go right ahead with the work. You can take up to 36 months to repay the loan. Minimum monthly payments of $5.

Clatterbuck Indicted for Five Murders

By M. Grace Brooks,
Post Staff Correspondent

Leesburg, Va., June 14.—Thomas W. Clatterbuck admitted the slaying of A. Morris Love, his wife, James, a grown son, and Walter Russell and his wife, tenants on the Love farm, June 1, when arraigned late today in the Loudoun County Circuit Court.

Clatterbuck pleaded "not guilty," however, to first-degree murder as set forth in the five indictments.

He will be tried Jun 30.

Not Deliberately

Indicted first for the slaying of A. Morris Love, wealthy Loudoun County farmer-stockman, the accused Clatterbuck admitted slaying Love but insisted that he "didn't deliberately kill him."

He admitted the slaying of all those in the dramatic mass-murder in succession as the indictment was read but insisted in each case that he "didn t mean to."

Clatterbuck was brought to the coutroom from the Loudoun County Jail by Capt. Edward J. McDermott and Sergt. Charles W. Blue of the Virginia State Police, and Sheriff S. P. Alexander of Loudoun County.

The accused man has not yet obtained counsel and was advised by Judge William A. Metzger to confer with members of his family in an effort to secure a lawyer.

Indictments were filed earlier yesterday.

The foreman and five other members of the grand jury are acquaintances of long standing of all those involved in this most gruesome of Loudoun County crimes.

Harper Is Foreman

They are: W. J. Harper, the foreman, a farmer from the Leesburg district; Onslow Saunders, a farmer from Broad Run; Ray Peacock, Jefferson district; Bernard Minor, of Broad Run; Perry Mintzer, Lovettsville farmer, and C. Oliver Islelin of Middleburg district.

All of the witnesses were instrumental in the solution of the crime, which has been called the "most brutal and dramatic in this section of Virginia ever recorded."

The witnesses: Dr. John A. Gibson, county coroner; Sheriff S. P. Alexander and State Troopers M. F. Ritter and W. A. Estes.

Sergeant Blue and Trooper E. H. Howe of the State Police Force, said that Clatterbuck, who comes from a respected family in Loudoun County and who is married and has four children, admitted killing Love following an argument over a note for $2500, then took the lives of the remaining four.

Clatterbuck, husky young quarryman, weighs 240 pounds and is said by neighbors to have been devout and a substantial contributor to the little countryside church which he, with his wife and children, faithfully attended prior to his arrest and imprisonment in the county jail.

U. S. Deaths at Lowest Level In '42; New Disease Studied

The general death rate in the United States dropped in 1942 to the lowest level ever recorded.

Dr. Thomas Parran, surgeon general, told the House Appropriations Committee the rate last year was 10.3 per 1000 population, compared to 10.5 in 1941, as shown in provisional data.

"It is probable," he said, "that final figures will also show a decrease in maternal mortality for the thirteenth consecutive year, reaching an all-time low of about or less than three deaths per 1000 births.

"Infant mortality decreased to 40 or 41 per 1000 live births in 1942, as compared with 45 in 1941. At the same time the birth rate rose from 18.7 per 1000 population in 1941 to 20.7 in 1942."

The increase of fatal accidents in industry almost offset the reduction in deaths from automobile accidents.

6000 Meningitis Cases

During the first three months of 1943 he said, some 6000 cases of meningecoccus meningitis were reported, a rate above that of 1918 and probably equal to the outbreak of 1929 when over 10,000 cases occurred. He added, however, that prompt treatment with the sulfa drugs alone will save a great majority of patients, with the fatality rate having been cut to 5 per cent in some areas.

Typhus fever also increased in 1942, when 3700 cases were reported, and Dr. Parran said current reports show a continued rise. There now is under way rat extermination campaigns in the southern areas where the disease most commonly occurs. It is spread by a rat flea.

The appearance of a new and as yet unidentified disease, with a high mortality rate but apparently not widespread, was disclosed yesterday by release of testimony before a House Committee by U. S. Public Health Service physicians.

New Disease Reported

Dr. R. E. Dyer of the service said discovery of the disease was a "rather astonishing sort of thing," but declared the causative agent had been isolated in animals and expressed confidence that "given a little time we will find out what it is."

An Appropriations Committee member raised the question whether the disease had been "planted" in this country, but Dr. Dyer said there was no evidence to substantiate such a suspicion.

The disease was first discovered near New Iberia, La., with 17 cases resulting in eight deaths. Most of the deaths occurred among nurses who cared for the original cases.

UNSEEN SERVANTS Number Five STEPHEN GIRARD

He Built Up A Fortune . . .
Then Used It To Build Up Our Nation

HE ROSE from cabin boy to be the first American with one million dollars in property. But in Philadelphia's yellow fever panic, he was the unseen servant who created the miracle of confidence, that put fight into a hope-drained public. Later, when financial panic came, he poured his own fortune into the United States Bank to restore faith in our monetary system.

Conscious of physical disfigurement and sensitive from mistreatment at home, Stephen Girard did not thrust himself forward—so was not always seen behind the good he did.

Today's volunteer nurse, the Civilian Defense Worker, the buyer of a war bond, and the car-sharing, victory garden planter are all unseen servants in the fight for freedom.

This company, too, operating under wartime restrictions and pressure, with many of its key employees in the armed services, is, like many other public service companies, an unseen servant in the war effort. Extra hours are being devoted, extra facilities added, and all other steps possible are being taken to guard our standards of service. Directly and indirectly we, therefore, guard the health of thousands of unseen fighters on the home front.

in the Aegean Sea off Greece, only one Allied plane was lost.

Two enemy ships were set afire in the Aegean and a third was damaged.

These far-ranging sweeps by the Cairo-based air arm were carried out while the northwest Africa air forces operating under this headquarters were taking their first Sunday holiday in more than six months.

General Eisenhower's communique disclosed that the Northwest Africa forces had confined themselves to patrol and reconnaissance, suffering no loss.

This meant that most of the personnel got a rest earned by their spectacular victories over Pantelleria, Lampedusa and Linosa while the commanders prepared for the next all-out air push—the push, it was generally believed, against Sicily.

Fathers' Draft May Be Delayed

October 1, in contrast with the August 1 deadline generally taken as "official."

The belief that the fathers' draft will be delayed was strengthened as Hershey told the House Committee that many of the more than 2,000,000 men previously rejected for physical reasons may be inducted because standards are now lower.

Induction Reduction Seen

McNutt testified that by the end of this month, the armed forces will have 9,200,000 of the 10,900,000 men they plan to have by the end of this year, and that after next December induction into the Army may be reduced about 60 per cent.

However, both McNutt and Hershey said that before the war ends the "great majority" of physically fit fathers may be in uniform.

Reason for Speculation

Officials said the new limitations on deferment of childless men specify those aged 18 to 25 because few men that young are likely to hold jobs so important that they can not be replaced.

Replacement schedules may request occupational deferment for listed key men for periods ranging from two months to more than a year. When State draft directors approve them, they stamp their approval on forms to be sent by the employers to local draft boards asking deferment of each man in accordance with the schedule.

The local boards have authority to refuse deferment for any man, even though the State director has approved it, but in practice they seldom do. The boards must review within six months each deferment they grant, but they usually grant renewals to men for whom longer deferment is suggested in replacement schedules.

Although all "essential" employers may file the schedules, Selective Service headquarters said that only about 6000 had done so, listing something over three million employes.

The instructions included this advice:

1. "Generally speaking, those who will be replaced first will be those in occupations having the shortest training and replacement time."

2. "Due consideration should be given to previous and existing periods of deferment."

3. Where men are equally replaceable, single men should be listed for release before childless married men, and the latter should be listd for release before fathers.

4. Where men of the same family status are equally replaceable, they should be "listed for replacement by order (draft call) number with the lowest order number first."

Hershey Tells What 'Father' Means in Draft

Washington Bureau of Chicago Sun

Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, director of Selective Service, gave a House Appropriations Subcommittee his definitions of the terms "father" and "hardship," yesterday.

"What is a father?" a committee member asked Hershey.

"He is a man who conceived a child prior to Pearl Harbor," the general responded.

"What is a case of extreme hardship?" another member queried.

"I would say that would be the case of a man with two or three children and whose wife is an invalid and who has nothing except what he earns, and who, when he went home, had to take care of his wife and children, who gets the meals and washes the children's clothes before he goes to work," Hershey replied.

At another point in the hearing Hershey disclosed that in official Selective Service thinking, a child is not just a child. Answering a question about how many children exist in families with fathers of draft age, he said:

"Do you mean administrative children, or just children?"

He referred, of course, to pre-Pearl Harbor children. The others don't exist, in the eyes of Selective Service.

Improper diet, overwork, undue worries, colds, the flu or other illness often impairs the stomach's digestive functions and reduces the red-blood strength.

A person who is operating on only a 70 to 75% healthy blood volume or a stomach digestive capacity of only 30 to 60% normal is severely handicapped.

At such times Nature needs extra help to restore its proper functions and balance. Undigested food places a tax on the system...insufficient blood strength is a detriment to good health.

UNCONSTITUTIONAL RULING OF THE WAR LABOR BOARD

June 12, 1943

National War Labor Board
Department of Labor Building
Washington, D. C.

Case No. 761 (2888)

Gentlemen:

We have the National War Labor Board's directive order of May 31, 1943, which orders the United States Gypsum Company to incorporate in its contract with the Union at Warren, Ohio, a clause establishing a form of closed shop called "maintenance of membership" together with a check-off of Union dues and initiation fees from wages.

The Company is unwilling to accept this order for the following reasons:

1. The War Labor Board has no authority to impose Union maintenance and check-off upon the Company. The Board is not empowered by Congress to order any employer to adopt this requirement. The Company's employees are being confused and deceived into believing that their Government desires them to join a labor Union when in fact the national policy, as declared by the Congress, is that employees are free to join or not to join as they wish. The Board is destroying the very essence of democracy, that is, the right of the people to make laws through their chosen representatives in Congress.

2. Under this maintenance of membership form of closed shop employees would surrender their freedom to the Union and would not be free to resign from the Union. The Company would be compelled to discharge every Union member who fails to maintain his Union membership in good standing (non-payment of dues, non-payment of fines, etc.). Maintenance of membership is the starting phase in establishing the closed shop, which inevitably leads to a dictatorship.

3. The order violates those fundamental principles of liberty which the Company and its employees now enjoy. The employee has the inherent right to work, and in doing so, should be free to join, to refuse to join, or to resign from a Union without losing his job. The Company has the right to be free to employ the person best suited for the work.

4. The order requires the Company to discriminate against an employee in direct violation of the National Labor Relations Act. It requires the Company to interfere with the free choice of its employees to resign from the Union. It requires the Company to give support to the Union by a check-off of Union dues and initiation fees from wages. It requires the Company to discriminate against its employees if they resign their membership in the Union or if the Union declares them not in good standing.

5. The Union appealed to the War Labor Board for Union maintenance and check-off because of the Board's established practice of granting these provisions in every such case coming before the Board. The War Labor Board has no power to adopt any such standard practice in violation of the provisions of the Federal Constitution. Congress alone has the power to legislate.

6. In view of the Board's attempt to legislate, we believed we were entitled to our day in court and demanded a hearing before the Board. This you denied and a majority of the Board (industry members dissenting) issued a directive order in disregard of our constitutional rights.

The Company is willing to pay the small amount of retroactive wage covering the period July 20, 1942, to September 1, 1942, requested by the Board. The Union and the employees have declared themselves satisfied with the wages. There is no issue over wages.

The Company respects the right of its employees to join a Union and has no objection to legitimate Union practices. However, the Company strongly objects to the War Labor Board's attempt to compel it to enter into a contract which it believes to be illegal or to compel it to join in a surrendering of its fundamental freedom. If administrative commissions are allowed to go unchallenged in cases like this our constitutional form of government is imperiled.

The Company desires to continue to obey the law, to preserve constitutional government, to maintain management by undivided responsibility, to remain competitive, and to leave its employees the freedom preserved for them by the Constitution and the Bill of Rights.

Therefore, in keeping with good citizenship the Company rejects the Board's order.

Very truly yours,
UNITED STATES GYPSUM COMPANY
William L. Keady, President

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson

So many Presidents and Prime Ministers have been visiting Washington that State Department protocol experts have worked out a production line system for handling visiting dignitaries. The pattern of entertainment is set from the time the basic structure is begun at the White House, until the finished product is delivered aboard the outgoing plane at Miami.

Whether it be the President of Bolivia, Liberia, Czecho-Slovakia, or Paraguay, there is always a one-night-stand at the White House with a formal dinner, followed by three days at the stately Blair House across Pennsylvania Avenue, where new green sod was laid in the front lawn just before the season opened.

Detroit is the next stop, where a tour of Willow Run wearies the visitors' legs but amazes their minds at American production, and where Henry Ford (now that Edsel is dead) entertains at lunch. In the afternoon, they see skeletons of tanks at one end of the Chrysler line, then finished tanks at the other. Finally they take a ride to see what the interior of a tank is like.

Buffalo displays its aircraft next day, with luncheon by Burdette Wright of Curtiss-Wright, and dinner by Larry Bell of Bell Aircraft.

At New York, the visitors stay in the presidential suits at the Waldorf, and move about the town behind motorcycle police.

From one city to another, they ride in a pair of luxury Pullmans, of which the presidential car is equipped with five bedrooms and two lounge rooms.

All in all it's a breath-taking experience. Axis countries started entertaining Latins abroad before we did, but if we learned the trick from them, we added wrinkles they never thought of.

Most important wrinkle is that we give an indelible impression that the United States is producing the men and the materials which will win the war.

New Tax Czar

Here is one inside reason why the President lost 75 per cent of his battle against the Ruml tax plan, and also why he has finally put Jimmy Byrnes in the job of tax coordinator.

It happens that Henry Morgenthau, who has done a good job as Secretary of the Treasury, is extremely pernickety when it comes to anyone else barging in on his preserve.

No one outside of the White House knows it, but Henry actually went to the President some weeks ago to complain that Jimmy Byrnes was meddling in the tax picture. Henry didn't like it, said that taxes were his domain.

F. D. R. passed it off good-naturedly, but did not back up his Secretary of the Treasury. After all, Jimmy Byrnes was then economic stabilizer and taxes are one of the most important means of preventing inflation and bringing about economic stabilization.

When Byrnes heard about Morgenthau's complaint, however, he decided to keep absolutely aloof from taxes. The President didn't want him to keep aloof, but Jimmy's feelings were slightly ruffled and he let Henry handle taxes all by himself.

If Byrnes had taken off his coat and gone up on Capitol Hill, the tax bill might have been different, for he packs powerful persuasion.

Later Bernie Baruch was offered Judge Vinson's job, replacing Byrnes as economic stabilizer. But Bernie refused unless he could control taxes. This would have put him over Morgenthau, and the President refused to supersede Henry. But now, Roosevelt has officially made Byrnes the coordinator of taxes. He will coordinate between Morgenthau and Congress.

Jesse Wants a Ride

Jesse Jones would like to hitch-hike to Newport News next Saturday, and take Mrs. Jones along. For the moment, he doesn't see any other way of getting there.

The occasion is the launching of the new cruiser Houston, for which Jesse's home town folks raised 84 million dollars in war bonds, after the sinking of the old Houston in the Pacific.

But the boats that used to run from Washington to Norfolk and Newport News are limping along with a limited service, while a train ride would involve day coach travel from Richmond, possibly standing in the aisle.

As for taking a plane, Mrs. Jones puts her foot down firmly, remembering all too keenly that accident a few years ago when her husband escaped death in Louisiana only because the pilot, wrapped in flames, remained at the controls, and made a landing which caused his own death but saved the passengers.

Finally, Jesse is scrupulous about using his own car for what would be pleasure driving.

So Mr. Jones, a wealthy man, who controls more Government agencies than any other man in town, is hoping somebody will give him and the Missus a ride to Newport News next Saturday.

Cox Back-Tracks

It's a closely guarded secret, but the Cox Congressional Committee, now probing the Federal Communications Committee, recently tried to nab all FCC records relating to Station WALB of Albany, Ga., which paid Congressman Cox $2500 for representing it in a license renewal case. Cox has been turning the heat on the FCC, which had recommended that he be prosecuted for taking the check.

The Cox-WALB file was demanded in a terse letter from Fred R. Walker, assistant counsel of the Cox committee. Some FCC officials were for turning over the material, but Commissioner Clifford Durr put his foot down at a closed-door meeting called after the Walker letter arrived.

"We still have the WALB license renewal case under consideration and will have to stop working on it if we relinquish our files," protested Durr. "Furthermore, Mr. Cox has a personal interest in this matter, having been paid a fee by the station."

Durr even went so far as to threaten his fellow commissioners that he would issue a public statement if the Cox files were surrendered.

Somehow Eugene L. Garey, chief counsel of the committee, got wind of what happened in the meeting, including Durr's threat to denounce the proceedings. Next day FOC Secretary Thomas Slowie was astounded to receive a special letter by messenger from Garey stating that the request for the WALB records was due to an "error." With profuse apologies Garey contended that the committee meant Station WAGA, Atlanta, instead of WALB.

Barkley Calls Debt Reduction Postwar Necessity in America

By the Associated Press

Hot Springs, Ark., June 14.—Senate Majority Leader Alben W. Barkley (Democrat) of Kentucky said today one of the postwar necessities facing the Nation is the reduction and "ultimate payment" of the "greatest public debt in the history of our Nation or any nation."

Listing what he termed the "10 postwar obligations of the Nation," Barkley in his address prepared for Flag Day ceremonies here, said the payment of the public debt "will make the reduction of taxation to the basis of prewar levels impossible during our generation."

Barkley did not elaborate on his 10 points, saying that they represented "an outline of some of the great human problems that call us to high accomplishments in the game that is played by nations and people," and that "it is not necessary to draw a complete blueprint of plans for the postwar period in order to look the future frankly in the face."

Domestic Problems

Five of his "obligations" dealt with the problems of the Nation at home, and the other five with international affairs.

For the home front, he listed, in addition to the payment of the debt:

Demobilization of the "greatest armed forces" in the Nation's history, and "redistribution of the largest industrial force ever mobilized in our Nation;"

Provision for care and rehabilitation of those injured in the war and their dependents;

"Greater security from fear and want among the aged and unemployed;"

Speedy reconversion of the industrial structure from war to peace.

Of international affairs, he said:

"We must be ready and willing to help provide food and clothing and other essentials to the starved and depressed populations of occupied countries in order to prevent chaos and revolution, and in order that we may help reestablish real self-government among them.

International Trade

"We must cooperate in the reestablishment of international trade and international credit on a basis that will afford the necessary outlet for labor and goods and services among the nations of the world.

"We must not only cooperate in rendering impotent from a military and war-making standpoint the nations which precipitated this cruel war, but we must at once share our full responsibility in bringing about a peace that will contain the germs of permanent justice among nations and then assume our share of the responsibility of making the breach of that peace impossible.

"There must be set up a tribunal to which aggrieved nations may bring their grievances with the conviction that justice can be secured from an international organization based upon equal treatment of all nations regardless of size or location.

"We must convince ourselves that in this complex and highly organized world, nations go up or down together; and we must as soon as practicable let it be known that we shall not attempt to insulate ourselves from any of the burdens or effects of world events."

Nearby Area Men Reported Captives

Several Maryland and Virginia men were among 560 United States soldiers reported by the War Department yesterday to be held prisoners of war by the enemy—264 by Japan, 291 by Germany and 5 by Italy.

Maryland men interned were Pvt. James K. Stow of Parkville, by Italy; Pvt. Fred M. Mowbray of Cambridge, Pvt. First Class Martin C. Johnson, Baltimore, and Pvt. John P. McGuire, Cumberland, by Germany.

Court Upsets Ruling in Case Hospital Patient Lost

Declaring that the District Court erred when it instructed a jury to consider only the expert testimony of physicians to the exclusion of all other evidence in a malpractice case, the United States District Court of Appeals yesterday reversed a decision returned in favor of the defendants.

The defendants in the case were the Eastern Dispensary and Casualty Hospital, and Dr. Joseph Russell Young, who was a physician there, and is now in the armed forces.

They were charged by Mrs. Callie Byrom, 713 Twelfth Street Northeast, with malpractice in connection with the treatment of a wrist injury sustained in 1938. Mrs. Byrom sued for $25,000, charging the wrist never had healed properly. Woodsum Byrom, her husband, also sued for $5000 on the grounds that he had been deprived of his wife's services and society.

Pride in our MANPOWER

Instead of just two or three classes of factory manpower, A.M.&M. employees include toolmakers, patternmakers, heat treaters, machinists, welders, metalsmiths, platers, polishers, assemblers, millwrights and woodworkers. In addition, there are numerous others in the semi-skilled class. Throughout the years, the management has built a loyal working force capable of highly diversified production. ¶ This ability for diversified production has enabled the company to turn out an impressive variety of war equipment in excess of increasing quotas. The Army-Navy "E" Award for high achievement in war production is evidence of the skill and the will to produce, that is characteristic of A. M. & M. workers. ¶ The years required to develop this high degree of craftsmanship are revealed in the long service records of many employees. To maintain and to further the high standards of these workers, a continuous training program enables experienced men to pass their knowledge along to newer employees. ¶ After Victory, these workers will again turn their skills to the building of finer, more efficient products for peacetime industry. ¶ A. M. & M. is proud to have its facilities in the hands of such capable manpower.

Withholding Tax

Some taxpayers doubtless will suffer severe headaches trying to figure out the amount of unpaid obligations owing by them or refunds due them before they get the hang of the new pay-as-you-go system. Once the difficulties of the transition period are over, the taxpayers' tribulations will be mitigated, though there is no denying that the new system of collection-at-source is much more complicated, from the taxpayers' viewpoint, than the accustomed method of making a declaration and paying the amount due. For computations of taxes on the basis of income yet to be earned are necessarily tentative, so that frequent adjustments have to be made to allow for over- or underpayments.

However, for the time being the wage earner or salaried employe subject to the withholding tax does not need to worry. His employer is the man who has to struggle with the extra clerical work involved in computing the new withholding taxes. All the employe has to do is to fill out a brief statement to show the amount of exemptions to which he is entitled under the income tax laws. After July 1 the employer will simply deduct 20 per cent from the amount payable to employes after allowing for exemptions. Next September those taxpayers whose liabilities are not fully covered by these deductions will have to make supplementary declarations, and pay any excess amounts due. For the great majority of wage earners, however, the 20 per cent withholding levy will take care of the next two quarterly installments of their income tax obligations. And for everybody the system of deducting a limited amount regularly at the source provides protection against involuntary defaults and assures to the Government a more even and a more certain inflow of revenue.

It should again be emphasized that the withholding tax does not add anything to the amount of taxes payable, though it does bring into the tax system a little sooner some individuals who were not taxable on 1942 incomes. It is, in short, a method of collecting taxes that we have to pay anyhow. If the Government by inadvertence gets more than it is entitled to, the taxpayer is credited with the excess. Only the 25 per cent tax of "unforgiven" taxes payable by all but a minority of taxpayers is in effect a tax increase. But these additional taxes, which are payable in two installments, are not due until the spring of 1944 and 1945.

Underground Press

News continues to be one of the potent weapons of this war. How greatly the Axis fears it is best attested by the lengths to which it has gone in order to cut its subjects off from all communication with the outside world. The press in Germany, Italy and all the conquered countries is rigidly controlled. And the penalty for listening to radio broadcasts from any of the United Nations is the concentration camp or even death.

Yet news seeps into the European fortress. Day and night American and British broadcasters fill the ether with information about the progress of our struggle against Naziism, giving the imprisoned people the armor of hope and the buckler of truth. So rigid is the Nazi surveillance over radio reception, however, that these messages at most can reach but a tiny audience directly. Their chief value is in giving ammunition to the valiant underground press which, despite every effort of the Gestapo, relays news to eager readers.

In his column in Sunday's Post William L. Shirer directed attention to the British Broadcasting Corporation's estimate that 500 underground publications on the continent rely on its special broadcasts for practically all of their foreign news. As quickly as they can do so with their improvised and inadequate printing facilities, these clandestine newspapers translate the spoken word into printed form and distribute it through trusted channels. As one Netherlands newspaper put it, readers know that it "is not only written in ink but with the blood of dozens."

Someday, after the war, the full story of these secretly issued newspapers will be told. We shall be able then to pay tribute to the resolute and daring men and women who published them—whose faith in the truth was such that they were willing to risk death to make it known. In the final reckoning, theirs must be counted among the great and heroic contributions to a United Nations victory.

Wartime Sop

The first major dilemma by which Economic Stabilization Director Vinson was confronted in his new office was a choice between higher prices for canned vegetables and another Federal subsidy. Higher wages in canning factories had been found to be necessary by the War Labor Board to assure operation of the canneries in this period of acute labor shortages. Everybody agrees that the canneries must operate. To close them would mean the loss of precious food which may save this country from hunger and many people in war-torn lands from starvation. In the absence of effective controls over manpower, therefore, Mr. Vinson had to authorize some means of enabling canners to pay wages that will give them the labor they need. The method he chose was the subsidy.

Presumably he decided to grant subsidies in order to avoid further strains upon price ceilings. By this means he hopes to hold living costs to consumers in check and to discourage demands for higher wages. His move would thus be a notable gain if accompanied by real stabilization of prices and wages. But no such stabilization is in sight. Inflation sweeps on from week to week and in these circumstances consumer subsidies merely add fuel to the fire.

We have favored subsidies to encourage production of essential commodities in our war economy and shall continue to do so. But Mr. Vinson's plan to help pay the grocery bills of consumers raises a very different issue. We must remember that funds to pay subsidies have to come from somewhere. Since the war is costing more than the people themselves pay to the Government in taxes and the purchase of bonds, subsidies will have to come from money created by the banks. Thus they are highly inflationary. Ultimately, moreover, the money borrowed to pay subsidies to consumers will have to be repaid. We would be naive to assume that it will be easier to pay these debts, along with our other staggering war debts, than to pay out of our own pockets the full cost of getting our food canned.

The Post strongly believes that the public ought to pay its own cost of living without leaning on the Government when it is already shouldering such heavy burdens. The unavoidable fact is that the people as a whole are now making more money than they can wisely spend because of the shortage of consumers goods. Ways and means of absorbing this excess income are under consideration by Government officials and members of Congress. Obviously nothing would be accomplished by taxing away surplus income and then giving it back as part payment on consumers' grocery bills.

In these circumstances the growing tendency to pay subsidies to avoid necessary increases in the cost of living is only an expedient means of dodging the real issue that we must ultimately face. The cost of this war must be paid by the people. While the war is going on there is every reason for demanding of those who are not risking their lives a heavy sacrifice in their standards of living. On the whole the people are now more willing to bear the essential hardships of the war than they ever will be again. We believe that the Government is making a grave mistake in trying to shield them from this necessity by piling consumer subsidy debts upon legitimate war debts. The American people are not jellyfish who have to be pampered by consumer subsidies in a total war. But if the Administration continues to place that low estimate upon their stamina and patriotism, the strength that will be needed to finish the war and meet the staggering problems of reconstruction will inevitably be undermined.

Shape Of The Future

Out of the welter of vague talk about the postwar world concrete propositions are emerging. A common citizenship between Americans and Britons was suggested in a talk here not long ago by Col. J. J. Llewellin, British Resident Minister and chairman of the British Supply Council in North America. On Sunday evening, as a participant in the American Forum of the Air, Supreme Court Justice Owen J. Roberts urged a world federal union patterned on the structure of the United States. The concept is not novel, of course. Clarence Streit, who originated the first detailed plans for such an international association, has been advocating it for several years. But it loses nothing in prestige from the support of a member of our highest court.

Whatever the merits and defects of these specific plans, they have the undeniable virtue of bringing unfocused discussion down to brass tacks. It is through arguing over the pros and cons of practical ideas that we shall arrive at some understanding of the problem and of the concrete difficulties to be overcome. This is the way in which democratic opinion develops and crystallizes; it must have a definite project to debate.

The idea that the full rights of citizenship should extend beyond national boundaries is appealing and worth our careful consideration. If it seems to us a radical innovation, we would do well to recall how radical the notion of a federal union and the relinquishment of state sovereignty must have seemed to the average American in the days immediately following our Revolutionary War. Yet that notion came to be considered sound and practicable after Madison and Hamilton and others had propounded and explained it in their famous Federalist papers—and after the average American had had a chance to mull it over and weigh its advantages.

It was way back in those days that Benjamin Franklin said: "God grant that not only the love of liberty but a thorough knowledge of the rights of man may pervade all the nations of the earth so that a philosopher may set his foot anywhere and say, this is my country." Perhaps the time has not yet come. Perhaps a more gradual approach will set us more surely on the road toward this ideal. The beginning, in any case, must be made through free discussion. And it can be made only if the choices before us become clear. We know that we shall be faced soon with great decisions.

Ramirez Recognized

The recognition which our Government has extended to the new Ramirez regime in Argentina does not mean that we approve of that regime and its policies. The action merely indicates that in the opinion of the United States Premier Ramirez and his colleagues are in control and are capable of maintaining law and order. However, it is an encouraging sign that one of the first steps taken by the new Argentine government was to do away with the right previously enjoyed by Axis diplomatic missions to send 100 words a day in code to their home governments. In this way they were enabled to transmit valuable information regarding ship movements and other military secrets to our enemies. Axis diplomats at Buenos Aires will no longer be able to do that.

But if this action of the Ramirez government is a useful step in the direction of restricting the use of Argentina as a base of Axis espionage, it is only a step. The people of this nation and of the other nations of this hemisphere that are allied to us in the war against the aggressors will be satisfied with nothing less than the severance of all diplomatic and commercial relations between Argentina and our enemies. Only in that way can the danger that arises from the presence in Argentina of agents of Mussolini, Hitler and Tojo be eliminated. And only if that is done can the Ramirez government claim that it is actually living up to the obligations which Argentina assumed at Rio, and which, up to now, have been observed only in the breach.

Soldiers' Ideas

The enlisted men of the Fourth Ferrying Group, stationed at Memphis, Tenn., have put their brains and their native talents together to issue the first GI publication dedicated to creative writing. By ordinary literary standards they have turned out a thoroughly creditable piece of work. Beyond this they are to be congratulated on a significant contribution to Army life. For their little magazine, The Ferry Wheel, as Pvt. Fred J. Ringel, its editor, put it, has "opened the way for those who want to share their ideas."

The Ferry Wheel is neatly vari-typed and reproduced by multilith. It contains verse, humor, fiction, cartoons and serious articles—all the products of non-commissioned men stationed at the ferry base. As Editor Ringel points out, the Army's special service section has "provided—and provided well—for that part of our personnel which finds its recreation in sports, variety shows, parties, dances and girls. For the creative talents on this base—for those who write prose or verse, draw or merely sketch, toy or wrestle with ideas—The Ferry Wheel now offers an outlet." It seems a useful outlet, for any Army tends, because of its size, to subordinate the individual and to promote conformity in thought as well as in dress and in physical behavior.

In his foreword to the new magazine Private Ringel made an interesting observation: "The Army wants you and me to be good soldiers, to be good fighters—and good thinkers. For winning the war will mean only half a job done; the other half will be to maintain the peace. And that will depend on us. This, after all, is the world's best educated army, the most capable of thinking out to a sane conclusion the whys and wherefores of this war—the way it wants the world to be after the final shot has been fired." The Ferry Wheel offers a heartening glimpse into the ways in which servicemen's minds are working.

Traitor's Death

In Occupied Belgium

A COUPLE of months ago, the foremost Belgian traitor among the newspapermen, one Paul Colin, was killed by a patriot. He was a man of great literary ability, an abundant writer on matters of art and letters, and none of his publications was really inferior. But everything he wrote was sour, leaving the reader impressed by his vast factual knowledge, but at the same time ill at ease and unsatisfied. So strongly conscious was Colin of his own character that he wrote at the end of 1918, when Belgium was still occupied by the Germans: "The defeatist that I am made every effort to resist my habits of treason, but they finally got the best of me." But so weak and kindhearted are people that this man, a few years later, having published a book to glorify the country he had betrayed in 1914-18 and grossly insulted afterward, was welcomed again as a convert to decent behavior. But from the moment when Germany under Hitler's impulse began gaining strength, Colin, like the dog of the Scriptures returned to his own vomit, and when the Wehrmacht had overrun Belgium, Colin was present again to become the Number One pamphleteer of the New Order. In that capacity, he attacked and denounced his own countrymen Whenever a loyal newspaperman, out of a job on account of the war, was given a meager writing job in some municipal welfare organization, Colin was there trying to take his private vengeance and pointing these men out to the vindictive Germans. There are few depths of human baseness he did not reach. His presence, his publications were a constant provocation to all patriotic citizens. He was killed on April 15, 1943.

American Public

The film producers as well as the novelists in the United States have tried to give to the American public a clear picture of the mentality of the Axis-occupied countries. The results of these endeavors have been extremely effective from a dramatic point of view. From the standpoint of psychological probability they are often puzzling. A German newspaper in Belgium prints the account of the trial of the three boys who were accused of killing Colin. It is a remarkable and enlightening document. The principal accused was a young man of about twenty—Arnaut Fraiteur of Brussels. He belonged to a well-to-do family. The Nazi newspapers stresses the fact that he was well dressed and that he looked more like an Oxford student than a Belgian boy. Says the Nazi newssheet, "He was very calm." His accomplices were two simple boys who declared that they were making a living by acting for a secret organization. When the Germans tried to make them confess names, they gave only a few names as reference.

"So I Shot"

Fraiteur was questioned on his reasons for committing his "crime." "As I could not join the army of liberation," he said, "I wanted to take part in one of the patriotic activities. I was approached by an emissary of a group, but I asked first if this group was Communistic. When I found out it wasn't, I joined. I was ordered to take part in an attack on Colin. I obeyed. I was only to watch out, not to shoot, but when the moment for the shooting had come, the boy who was supposed to do it was absent. So I shot. I had a number of addresses where I could hide. I was supposed to go to France, but things went wrong."

The prosecutor asked Fraiteur if he felt any remorse about his action. The boy gave no clear answer, but when he was questioned about his motives, he stood up straight and said that he claimed the full responsibility for his political action.

At every moment of the trial the German prosecutor tried to find proof that the underground movement was Communist-inspired. All three accused denied it. Cross-examining Fraiteur, the prosecutor asked if he believed in God. The boy gave this remarkable answer which bears testimony to his bravery as well as to his intellectual honesty: "I do believe in God," he said, "but I'm no Catholic."

It is not astonishing that a young man of such mettle when hearing that he was sentenced to be hanged by the neck—according to the Nazi newspaper—remained perfectly calm. He had done a good and righteous thing, he had exterminated an individual whose sole existence was an insult to human decency. He had not betrayed his comrades. He had tried to take full responsibility for the entire "crime." He had not given in an inch to German anti-Russian propaganda tactics. He went to his death with the knowledge that he had followed the old sound advice—"Morte la bete, mort le venin." "When the beast is killed, the venom dies too."

In its utter simplicity, the account of this trial sheds more light upon the forceful soul of the saboteur and avenger than a thousand pages of comment or fantasy written on this side of the ocean.

Divide And Conquer

By Barnet Nover

Splitting The Axis

THROUGH THE CAPTURE of Pantelleria, Lampedusa and Linosa, the Allies have come into possession of three useful stepping stones for the air and water route between Africa and Europe. By the same token, obstacles that once stood in the way of the free flow of Allied shipping in the Mediterranean have now been removed.

These points have been emphasized and are worth emphasizing. What has generally escaped notice however, but which is not less important, is that the Allied capture of these islands has permanently split Axis naval and shipping strength in the Mediterranean and will place new strains on the already heavily burdened German and Italian transportation systems.

FROM THE TIME of Italy's entry into the war in June, 1940, until very recently, the Mediterranean was, generally speaking, closed to Allied shipping.

Through that period the British were, to be sure, in possession of the entrance and the exit, that is of Gibraltar and Suez, but because of Italian control of Sardinia, Sicily, Pantelleria and the other islands in the Central Mediterranean, the middle passage was dominated by the Axis.

A few Allied convoys did get through, though always at a heavy price, but the great bulk of the supplies and reinforcements sent from Britain to Egypt went by way of the Cape of Good Hope, adding 9000 miles to the distance and requiring four times the tonnage that would have been required had the Mediterranean been open.

ON THE OTHER HAND, domination of the Sicilian Strait made it possible for Italian warships and merchant vessels to move in relative safety between the western and eastern Mediterranean.

That day is now over. Italian war vessels berthed at Taranto will have to stay there, or at least be confined to the waters east of the Italian peninsula. By the same token that part of the Italian navy which is at Spezia will be restricted in its movement to the waters west of Italy. And since it is unlikely that, before the fall of Pantelleria, all of Italy's naval strength was concentrated at one point, the Italian fleet can no longer be regarded as a fleet in being.

The Italian fleet took practically no part in the defense of Tunisia. It was conspicuous by its absence in the period leading up to the surrender of Pantelleria. Split in two, it is doubtful if it now can be used at all, even in the defense of Italy herself.

ITALY'S shipping situation has also been made very much worse by the transfer of control in the central Mediterranean from the Axis to the Allies.

The sea route between Italy's western ports—Genoa, Leghorn and Naples—and Axis-held Albania, Greece, Crete, the Ionian Islands and the Dodecanese has now been cut off.

That traffic will now have to be rerouted so that it goes overland, which means piling up a new load on Axis rail and road transport on the continent, or moves via Italy's new and inadequate east coast ports.

TO BE SURE, the three-mile-wide Strait of Messina which separates Sicily from the toe of of the Italian boot is still, nominally, in Italy's hands. But it may not remain open for long and already, in fact, is within range of Allied bombers.

In the meantime, the Battle of Sicily has begun. There is a possibility that this large island—it is roughly the size of Maryland—and its garrison of six or seven divisions, will fall the way Pantelleria fell, that is through air attacks alone. But we can be sure that the Allied high command is not taking that for granted and is prepared, if necessary, to supplement air attacks with an actual invasion.

We can be sure that before an invasion is attempted the Allies will do everything in their power to cut the supply line between Italy proper and Sicily, so that the Axis forces on the island will lack the oil and food and munitions and other essentials they need to carry on indefinitely.

THIS MEANS an intensification of the bombing of Naples, Genoa and Leghorn and Allied air assaults, as well, on the rail lines running down the spine of the Italian peninsula.

In this way the Allies will kill three birds with one stone: They will soften up Sicily for ultimate invasion; they will deal a heavy blow to Italian economy by disrupting land communications; and they will force the Reich to depend more and more on overland communications to supply the Axis garrisons in the Balkans.

In a little book, "Lifelines of Victory," published last year, a book which deserved far more attention than it received, Squadron Leader Murray Harris quoted General von Willisen, author of a standard German textbook on strategy as saying: "Strategy is the study of communications."

This lesson, it is evident, the Allied leaders have learned and are now applying with brilliant success.

Cost Of Living

In reply to the letter of F. P. M. in The Post, May 30:

During the first months of 1942 wages were frozen in accordance with the "Little Steel Formula." Prices were not frozen. Nor have they yet been frozen.

Attention is called to the article on the front page of The Post, May 30: "Total cost of living up 1.1 per cent during the month," . . . "All food costs averaged a total increase of 2.3 per cent during the month, with cabbage going up another 24 per cent, onions 20 per cent, apples 19 per cent, potatoes 30 per cent." "The last-named food on April 15 had advanced 61 per cent within a year."

These increases, it will be noted, are for one month and are in the foods considered staples by middle and lower-bracket families. The families of moderate and meager means have been bearing the brunt of similar increases since before the attack on Pearl Harbor.

It is unfortunate that these facts have become tools in the hands of John L. Lewis and his ilk. But such is the case. The miners, seeking relief and receiving none, turned as a last resort to John L. who helped them to score some notable victories in prewar days. The coal strikes followed.

Now another finger in the pie. The Smith-Connally bill and similar antistrike legislation were pressed. According to "Representative" Smith this bill is the ideal panacea for all our troubles. Would it in any way stop the sabotage of the tools of the home front (food, clothing, housing) by the profiteers?

Red Cross Symbol

I am very much interested in a letter-to-the-editor in The Post by Miss Julia C. Stimson, president American Nurses Association. She makes a request that commercial companies cease using the Red Cross symbol as a feature in advertising wares, as was stipulated at the Geneva Conference. The letter is well worth reading. I hadn't realized that this was the case until I read her letter. Certainly this matter should be attended to immediately. Using any part of the Red Cross set-up for profit is too much like stealing the pennies off a dead man's eyes.

WAVE's Allowance

Any WAVE who can't manage to eat heartily on an allowance of $1.50 per day must be feeding a tape worm or eating in the wrong places.

The civilian working girl can manage to get a breakfast in one of the cleanest cafeterias anywhere from 15c to 25c, the latter including a single egg.

Lunch obtained in the Government cafeterias average 30c, or with dessert, 40c.

Adding the maximum figures we have already spent 65c. This leaves 75c for dinner, also in a cafeteria, which is 25c too much, as any normal girl can get a dinner from 45c to 65c including a salad, in this very clean cafeteria, where the food is first-rate, even if not to the taste of a gourmet. However, this is wartime—the cafe society standards must be compromised.

I wonder if you are fighting for the right kind of girls, who would try to get along on this most generous allowance, as the civilian working girl, trying to keep her food budget down to $1.00 per day so that she can enjoy a movie or two during the week, and allow her salary to cover contributions home, fairly decent living conditions, generous bond contributions, full-rate rail fare, etc., and to cover all the mandatory deductions from her salary.

A CIVLIIAN WAR-WORKER.
Washington, June 8.

Inflation

Inflation is on its unhappy way. This is so because of superficial curb on prices. Prices will continue to advance until a ceiling overall is established. The spread of inflation is in full evidence at every corner and alley in Washington. In eating places, for instance, prices have doubled in the last two years. Quality and quantity are no more. An inflation dinner costing, say, $1, is far from being as good as a dinner that cost but 40 cents before the war. Washington restaurant keepers, if they have their way, will, it is obvious, stop at nothing to skin their defenseless patrons. It is about time for the price control administrator to stop playing the part of a helpless old lady and take over the reins of price control. We are well on our way to disastrous inflation which can lead only to a depression worse than that of the Hoover days.

The Once Over

All-out Arlene Hears From Dad

Dear Arlene:

Your mom is very busy like all women these days and asks me to write you for her. She's an air-raid spotter and in a first aid unit now, and she is also working two afternoons a week in a war factory, which keeps her pretty occupied except when she is not ragging me about keeping weeds out of the Victory Garden. She is also reading folders about the WAFC, or Women's Auxilary Ferry Service which she thinks has something to do with ferryboats. She always liked riding on ferryboats.

I have passed my VDW (Volunteer Dish Washers) tests, your mother says and am now a regular for the duration. I am also doing well in the HTC (Housework Training Corps) and will complete my basic in a few days. The only requirement for getting into the VDW and HTC is that a man may be too old for combat and pass an aptitude test to prove if he is any good around the house.

I can cook, bake, mend, make beds and everything now and do not mind it. What gets me is that I am alone so much now with you in the WAACS and mom in almost everything. The solitude is beginning to bother me. I sit alone so much waiting for your mother to come home and pay some attention to the house.

Did you know Rags is quitting me, too? The pooch was about my only company, but he is acting pretty belligerently lately and I have a hunch he is trying to get into the Dogs for Defense service. That will leave just me and the cat at home regularly.

Well, we men mustn't beef. We must all be little home builders these days, I suppose, and keep the home fires burning while the womenfolks are taking care of the war. Every time I kick a little your mother says that I should remember that the women today are keeping us men from slavery under the Axis, and we should keep our traps shut and get on with the dishes.

Everything is going all right. I haven't been able to use the car for two weeks, the bus line has suspended, our butcher sells only jowls and kidneys with now and then a little tripe, and there is a milk strike. Another training plane hit the barn last week. The cutworms are in the tomato plants, the beans have a blight of some kind and I got poison ivy weeding the beets.

Well, take care of yourself in the Dimpled Dragoons, and your mother says to remember to wear your rubbers when you drill in the wet grass. Also she wants to know if you have enough blankets for cool nights. If not she will send you one off my bed.

Your affectionate
DAD.

COMPLAINT

How splendid every morning would be if
There was no bleak necessity to shave;
(I sooner would be jumping off a cliff
Or meditate the comforts of a grave!)
The razor blades, too sharp or, often, dull
They either cut you, else leave half your hair,
Or if you're lucky to look beautiful
One moment, soon another beard grows there!
What blight is this on humans, that we must Forever scrape, while ever it comes back!
A thing unknown, unwished, yet, though we bust,
We get, and must combat as some wolf-pack!
The earth finds peace in winter—which is sound;

ALFRED AUGUST SCHENCK.

There must be a pretty difficult traffic crisis in Washington when the north and southbound administrators meet the ones going east and west.

Did you ever try to borrow a dime from one of those fellows who have a complete plan for giving everybody an equal share of wealth?

Soviet Union

We are inclined to think of the Soviet Union as just another one of our Allies to defeat Hitlerism, and not of what she has done in the past to aid us and the entire world. Lately a picture has been released explaining Russia's foreign policy. This picture is Ambassador Davies' "Mission to Moscow." Every critic who lambasted Soviet Russia in the past suddenly disappeared when Russia, in spite of their predictions, not only held out for more than six weeks actually wresting the offensive from the Germans and smashing them back on every front but took the offensive herself. These so-called critics condemned Russia when she demanded that the League of Nations take action when Italy seized Ethiopia; when the Soviet Union asked the League to take action in aiding republican Spain in the heroic battle against Germany, Italy and their puppet Franco, and we see today what a great victory it would have been for the Allied cause if we had an ally on the Continent of Europe.

Democratic Chile

By John W. White

Future Of Communist Party

SANTIAGO, May 27.—One of the most surprising results of the voluntary dissolution of the Third International by its Moscow headquarters will be the reorganization of Chile's democracy from the French multiparty political system into a three-party system similar to that of the United States, in the opinion of the country's leading political authorities.

The freeing of Chile's powerful Communist Party—the largest outside Russia—from any further responsibility to Moscow opens the way for the creation of a great national labor party in Chile, according to labor leaders. The first move toward the organization of such a party will be a reconciliation between the Socialist and Communist Parties and steps were taken in that direction within 48 hours after the receipt of the Moscow announcement.

Socialists

So far, the Socialists always have refused to cooperate with the Communists, charging that they were not a genuinely Chilean party but a branch of an international revolutionary party that was inspired and directed from Moscow. Both the Socialist and Communist Party headquarters here have published declarations that the dissolution of the Third International has removed the most serious barrier that has separated Chile's Socialists and Communists.

The projected union of the strong Communist and Socialist Parties is expected to lead to the absorption of three other parties of some importance—the Socialist-Labor, Democratic and Agrarian—and several smaller labor, agrarian and Marxist groups. This would create a national labor party with decidedly leftist or Marxist social aspirations and with a voting strength of approximately 250,000, making it by far the strongest party in the country.

Political leaders expect this movement for the creation of a strong workers' party to bring about the defensive union of the two old rightest parties, the conservatives and liberals, which had a combined strength of 138,000 votes in the 1942 elections that made Juan Antonio Rios President of Chile. A few days after the leftist leaders announced their plans for organizing a national labor party, the liberal party's election for national chairman was won by the right wing of the party, which favors amalgamation with the conservative party as a defense against the rapidly growing leftist movement.

Since the total number of votes cast in the last presidential elections was 416,000, the projected national labor party, with its predicted 250,000 votes, would have a wide advantage over the rightest party formed by the amalgamation of liberals and conservatives.

Labor leaders hope to elect a purely labor government at the next presidential elections which are still more than four years off.

Political Circles

While it is admitted in political circles that the proposed national labor party will stand for most of the political, economic and social aims that the Communists have been upholding, it is expected that the strong Socialist bloc will prevent the new party from going to leftist extremes. It also is predicted that the radical party, as a strong centrist force, will serve as a brake against leftist extremes, since it probably could bring about the defeat of leftist legislation at any time that the radicals considered it advisable to vote with the right against the left.

Neutral observers point out the interesting fact that the Communist Party is the only one of the democratic groups now giving its undivided support to President Rios in his program for Chilean cooperation in the war effort. All the other parties which voted for President Rios, including his own radical party, have split since the election and now have important blocs that have been voting against bills introduced by the administration. The four Communist senators and 15 deputies, on the other hand, have continued to vote solidly in support of all the administration's war measures.

When Chilean newspapermen asked the Minister of the Interior about Mr. Wallace's reference to the fact that Chile's Communist Party is the largest one outside Russia, the minister said the best reply to that was contained in the words used by Mr. Wallace: "Chile is proud of its democracy."

At the last presidential elections the Communist Party was the fifth most important party in the country and cast 53,000 votes. During the last year the Communists have increased their strength rapidly and are now conceded to have 75,000 voters, being exceeded in strength only by the radicals, Socialists and conservatives in the order named. At the recent local elections in Antofagasta the Communist vote was double that cast there in the last presidential elections.

Consumers' Debts Drop

Off 4½ Billions

With more money to spend than ever before, Americans are making purchases for cash, buying less for credit and using surplus funds to pay off old debts. The Federal Reserve Board reported this yesterday, saying that during the past year and a half consumer credit outstanding has declined $4,500,000,000. Cash purchases in department stores, which formerly were less than half the total sales, now account for almost three-fifths.

The change in consumer buying habits is attributed to increased wartime incomes, decline in the available supply of goods and Government regulations limiting consumer credit.

The regulation of consumer credit, the board's monthly bulletin said, has diverted into liquidation of consumer debt current income "that otherwise would have increased inflationary pressures.

"The volume of consumer credit outstanding at the end of April, 1943, was $5,200,000,000, which represented a decrease of $4,500,000,000 since September, 1941.

"According to current estimates almost one-half of the reduction was attributable to declines in credit on motor vehicles alone but substantial liquidation has occurred also in the amounts outstanding on all the other principal types of consumer indebtedness.

"At department stores it now appears that the average installment contract is completed in five or six months, whereas a year ago it was eight or nine months.

"Even at jewelry stores, where the typical terms have always been shorter than the maximum maturity established under regulation, there has been some shortening of maturities.

Navy to Operate Bearings Plant Now in Difficulty

Acting on orders issued by President Roosevelt, the Navy announced last night that it would take immediate possession of the plant of the Howart Pivoted Bearings Co. at Philadelphia.

This step is necessary, a Navy statement said, because "under its former management, the company experienced production and financial difficulties."

Operation of the plant, which manufactures thrust bearings and other types of bearings for ships, will be continued without interruption, the Navy said.

"The Government furnished approximately 90 per cent of the machinery and equipment of this company, including the buildings and land, and has advanced and guaranteed loans for working capital," the Navy said.

Rear Admiral Harold G. Bowen, special assistant to the Undersecretary of the Navy, will represent the Secretary of the Navy in operation of the plant.

Evidence Of Resurgent Democracy

WAR HAS quickened the pulse of democracy wherever men and women are free to speak their minds. We are all more keenly aware of what freedom and self-government mean to us. So we are also more apprehensive about the denial of democratic rights, wherever that occurs, among our own people. There is nothing strange about this reaction. It simply means that the right to control our own destiny becomes more precious when we have to fight for it. And, being more precious, people who are deprived of that right feel the loss more keenly.

PUSEY

Wendell Willkie noted this resurgence of the democratic spirit on his recent world tour all the way from the Near East to China. He came home with the conviction that "men and women all over the world are on the march, physically, intellectually, and spiritually." That is the strength of the United Nations. Our power is growing on every continent not only because of the force of arms that has been marshaled but also because of the widespread hope that the United Nations will extend their task of liberation to all peoples capable of governing themselves.

We do not have to search on distant continents, however, for this resurgent spirit of democracy. It will be in evidence this week right here in the Capital of our own Nation. Beginning tomorrow, an almost fully united community will make a plea for restoration of the ballot to the District of Columbia. Behind this apeal for an elected spokesman—a District Delegate in the House of Representatives—lies the same yearning that is actuating politically suppressed peoples everywhere.

CONGRESS is responding to this local manifestation of the spirit of the times with commendable understanding. Able legislators are sponsoring the delegate bill. Many leaders and rank and file members have already indicated their approval of it. At least there are encouraging indications that the spirit of resurgent democracy is stirring Congress as it has stirred the hearts of many peoples.

Yet the Walter bill, on which a House Judiciary Subcommitte is to conduct hearings, is not a mere gesture to test the response of Congress to the spirit of the times. It is a practical measure intended to establish a closer relationship between Congress and the Capital City in a time of emergency for both. For the last 69 years Congress has been trying to govern the District without even a spokesman of the local community to keep it informed on local problems and to share the burden of getting District bills into shape for congressional action. The result has been a strain upon both Congress and its municipal ward. In this war period, when Congress is overworked and emergency legislation for the Capital must frequently be passed, the need for a closer working relationship springs to the eye before an argument can be made.

It is true that the Walter bill is a very modest piece of legislation. The election of a District delegate would not give the people of Washington voting representation in Congress nor a local government of their own choice. But no community can afford to wait for reforms which it considers to be ideal but knows to be unattainable under prevailing conditions. To men and women who are trying to shape the new world a ballot box into which votes for a spokesman in the halls of Congress may be dropped now is much preferable to no ballot box at all, regardless of how this gaping breach in our democratic system may be camouflaged by vague hopes for the future.

SO THERE are two compelling reasons for prompt approval of Congressman Walter's challenging bill. Perhaps the practical reason of easing the burden of local legislation upon Congress and of facilitating emergency measures essential to keep the Capital functioning properly in wartime is foremost in importance. For Congress really cripples its own machinery when it attempts to legislate for a city of nearly a million people without a representative of that city to aid its inquiries and to steer it away from time-wasting pitfalls. But surely the ideological reasons for support of this bill are equally compelling.

"When we talk of freedom and opportunity for all nations," wrote Wendell Willkie in 'One World,' "the mocking paradoxes in our own society become so clear they can no longer be ignored." One of those mocking paradoxes is the complete suppression of democratic government in our own Capital. There is no good reason for this mocking paradox. The shameful fact is that Congress suspended all semblance of democratic government in the Capital 69 years ago as an emergency measure and then neglected to restore, much less to expand, the rights it had taken away.

We cannot ignore the fact that this protracted indifference to our own principles is a cause for cynicism at a time when we are trying to mobilize our entire strength in the fight for the four freedoms. If Congress gives this issue the serious consideration that it demands, it is impossible to believe that it will let wounded and maimed soldiers return to a great American city that is wholly barred from participation in the democracy for which they have fought.

Sailboat Upsets, 4 Saved in Bay

Annapolis, Md., June 14 (AP).—Four Baltimoreans were rescued from Chesapeake Bay yesterday by the ferryboat Governor Nice, inbound for Annapolis, after their sailboat overturned.

Officers of the Governor Nice said the four young people told of hanging onto the overturned craft for 30 minutes. They were listed as Susan Travers, 17; Ann Coppinger, Thomas M. Kenny and John T. Reipe.

Another rescue, this one of A. C. Crouch and his son Billy, along with Theodore Pierce, all of Baltimore, was made in the Patapsco River by two unidentified youths in a rowboat. The craft in which the Crouches and Pierce were riding also overturned.

McNally, a professor of law at St. John's University in Brooklyn since 1925, was recommended by Attorney General Biddle and indorsed by both New York Senators.

Compulsory Salute to Flag Barred by High Court Decision

By the Associated Press

Speaking out against the use of coercion to weld national unity, the Supreme Court held yesterday that States cannot compel school children to salute the American Flag.

"Compulsory unification of opinion achieves only the unanimity of the graveyard," said the court's 6-3 opinion by Justice Jackson, handed down as the Nation observed Flag Day.

"To believe that patriotism will not flourish if patriotic ceremonies are voluntary and spontaneous instead of a compulsory routine is to make an unflattering estimate of the appeal of our institutions to free minds.

"If there is any fixed star in our constitutional constellation, it is that no official, high or petty, can prescribe what shall be orthodox in politics, nationalism, religion, or other matters of opinion, or force citizens to confess by word or act their faith therein. If there are any circumstances which permit an exception, they do not now occur to us."

1940 Decision Overruled

The court thus overruled its 1940 decision upholding the constitutionality of the Flag salute. It outlawed in the case before the court, a Flag salute requirement of the West Virginia Board of Education. In both cases, the Flag salute was challenged by members of Jehovah's Witnesses on grounds of religious freedom.

Justice Frankfurter, who wrote the majority opinion in 1940, dissented today with Justices Roberts and Reed. Frankfurter asserted that an act promoting good citizenship and national allegiance is "within the domain of Government authority, and is therefore to be judged by the same considerations of power and of constitutionality as those involved in the many claims of immunity from civil obedience because of religious scruples."

State Antisedition Law

At the same time, the court unanimously declared unconstitutional a Mississippi law prohibiting statements or the distribution of literature "which reasonably tends to create an attitude of stubborn refusal to salute, honor or respect" the Flag or Government of the United States or Mississippi.

Noting the court's decision in the Flag salute case, Justice Roberts declared that if the Fourteenth amendment bans enforcement of the salute it also prohibits the "imposition of punishment for urging and advising that, on religious grounds, citizens refrain from saluting the Flag."

The decision reversed the conviction of members of Jehovah's Witnesses charged with violating the law through statements criticizing the President for sending the army overseas and through the distribution of literature.

The West Virginia board of education has required school children to salute the Flag and repeat the oath of allegiance. Expulsion from school was the penalty for failure to do so. Parents of expelled children could be prosecuted on truancy charges.

Saying there was no question in this case whether officials may foster national unity by persuasion and example, the court declared the problem was "whether under our Constitution compulsion as here employed is a permissible means for its achievement." The opinion added:

"Probably no deeper division of our people could proceed from any provocation then from finding it necessary to choose what doctrine and whose program public educational officials shall compel youth to unite in embracing.

"Those who begin coercive elimination of dissent soon find themselves exterminating dissenters. Compulsory unification of opinion achieves only the unanimity of the graveyard. It seems trite but necessary to say that the first amendment to our Constitution was designed to avoid these ends by avoiding these beginnings."

Other Cases Before Court

Among other actions, before adjourning until next Monday, the court:

Refused to review the conviction of the Rev. Kurt E. B. Molzahn, pastor of the Old Zion Church in Philadelphia, of charges of conspiring to violate the Espionage Act by aiding an attempt to deliver military secrets to Germany and Japan.

Uphold in a 5-to-3 decision an Interstate Commerce Commission (I. C. C.) order permitting railroads to charge local rates for grain reshipped from Chicago to Eastern destinations after arriving by water over the Illinois waterways.

Agreed to review a decision thta Associate Industries of New York State, Inc., with a membership of 1356 persons, firms and corporations, had a right to test in the courts the validity of price-fixing orders of the bituminous coal division of the Interior Department.

Refused to review a decision that land granted by the United States to a State to be used for school purposes, and not to be disposed of except at public sale, may be obtained by the United States through condemnation proceedings.

Motion Picture Decision

Refused to review a decision that a 1940 motion picture entitled "We Who Are Young" had not infringed the copyright on a book with the same title published in 1936.

Refused to review a decision that the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad Co. had the right to acquire by condemnation proceedings a group of tracks serving industries located in the north Kansas City (Missouri) industrial district.

Refused to review a decision that "one conducting a business inseparably connected with gambling" may not recover, under the Sherman Antitrust Act, for injuries resulting from "a competition-squeezing combination of his competitors."

Refused the wage-hour administrator a review of a decision denying an injunction against violation of the Wage-Hour Act by T. Buettner & Co., Chicago, which was said to have already stopped the alleged offenses.

Bankruptcy Case

Refused review to Paul Douchan, convicted in the Federal District Court at Detroit of concealing from his trustee in bankruptcy real estate bonds with a par value of $26,200.

Refused to review a decision holding unconstitutional a section of the Federal Firearms Act providing that the possession of any firearm from which the manufacturer's serial number has been removed shall be presumptive evidence that the firearm was received from across a State line.

Agreed to review an Interstate Commerce Commission order denying the Chicago & North Western Railway Co. a certificate to operate a motor vehicle service between designated points as an auxiliary to the railroad.

Refused to review a decision that Ferdinand A. Kertess, identified as a German national, had no legal right to appeal from a decision by the Federal District Court at New York accepting a plea of nolo contendre from the Chemical Marketing Co., Inc., to charges of unlawfully exporting metals.

Navy Denies Story About Hog Farm

permen concerning the hog farm. One of them wrote to Pearson that "there's really hell to pay."

Pearson had reported in his column that all of the work on the hog farm was being done by enlisted men. The farm is being run by First Class Petty Officer O. L. Hoobury, he said, and revealed yesterday that Hoobury recently showed a reporter a large roll of bills which he said was his share of proceeds from the sale of some of the hogs.

Pearson said Hoobury was asked, "You're doing all right in this business, eh?"

"I'll tell the world I am," he is said to have replied. "And I'm going to stay right here until I've got a roll twice this big."

Pearson said he told the reporter that he sold the hogs at the Kingan Packing Co. in Richmond.

"Been getting pretty good prices," Pearson said Hoobury was asked, and replied, "Hell, yes. Why, just a week ago I sold 6000 pounds for $15 (a hundredweight) and a few days ago another 10,000 pounds for $13.40."

Pearson pointed out that Hoobury bragged about the special treatment he received while taking care of the hog farm, of his special pass to eat in any mess hall he wanted to and not even being required to wear socks.

Green Sees Peril In Anti-Strike Bill

Following the meeting, Murray and Green are expected to ask for an audience with the President to discuss the measure.

"The workers of our country," Green wrote the President, "would never become reconciled to this legislation. They would protest against it and rebel against it in the eevnt it would become the law of the land. The representatives of all the procurement divisions of the Government made it clear to the members of Congress that the enactment of the Connally-Smith bill would adversely interfere with production and to that extent injure the war effort.

Moved By Feeling

"Congress was moved by anger and feeling when it passed this legislation. Such emotions constitute an unsafe guard for the enactment of legislation which affects the liberty, freedom and fundamental rights of millions of people.

"I appeal to you, Mr. President, to follow the opposite course and through the use of calm judgment, exercised free from any feeling of any kind whatsoever, veto this un-American, Fascist, antilabor legislation."

Representative Ramspeck of Georgia, the House Democratic whip, predicted meanwhile that the President would sign the measure.

Finland to Resume Debt Payments

Finland, which never missed a payment on its war debt to the United States until it became involved in war with Russia, is going to resume paying again today.

The Helsinki government has notified the United States it will pay $168,945.56 which is due today, under a financial agreement between the two countries.

Food Controls May Be Shifted

hire labor for canning at recent wage levels, and that price ceilings weer too low to process many of the steeply price vegetables now coming on the market.

Following yesterday's conference, Senator George told reporters that he feared a serious food shortage unless one man or a single agency is given complete authority over food.

"If we are confronted with a choice between adequate production of food, and maximum prices, then I think prices should yield," said George.

Subsidies Seen Alternative

The Georgian said the only alternative to increased food prices is subsidies. President Roosevelt apparently left no doubt in the minds of the conferees that the Administration will continue to follow the subsidy route in an effort to roll prices back within range of consumers with fixed incomes whose wages have not advanced with the war. Both the President and Brynes were said to have stressed the advantages of subsidies as cheaper in the end to both the Government and the consumer. The congressional group was told that a general break through in "hold the line" objectives would cost $3 for every dollar expended on subsidies.

Administration Backed

The Administration meanwhile found support for its price policies in a group of Congressmen from urban districts now getting organized behind the rollback. Representative Scanlon (Democrat), of Pittsburgh was elected temporary chairman of the group at a preliminary meeting last week. Scanlon sent out 100 invitations to another meeting of the group called for this afternoon.

Representative Wright Patman, (Democrat) of Texas last week had led another desertion from the OPA opposition. Patman, fearful of the inflationary consequences of any tranfer of price powers from OPA to WFA, believes that shift of over-all food authority to Vinson, without cracking up OPA, would satisfy congressional critics.

Most of the bipartisan group participating in yesterday's White House conference shared George's view that more centralization of authority is needed. Republicans in the delegation uniformly spoke out against further use of subsidies. Besides George, the group included Acting Senate Majority Leader Hill, Senate Minority Leader McNary, Senators Connally of Texas and Thomas of Utah, (Democrats), and House Majority Whip Ramspeck House Minorit, Leader Martin, Representative Wadsworth, (Republican) of New York, and Representative Flanagan, (Democrat) of Virginia.

To these categories the bill adds the provision that all employes, except "artisans and craftsmen," who receive $4500 or more a year shall be subject to confirmation.

Exempted from having their qualifications for employment passed on by the Senate are workers appointed under the classified Civil Service, employes of the Federal Bureau of Investigation and persons receiving their salaries from the appropriation for the White House.

Senator Hill led a fight for the amendment of Senator Hatch (Democrat) of New Mexico to exempt some 400 employes of the Tennessee Valley Authority from provisions of the bill. The amendment was defeated, 57 to 15.

House Unit Slashes Funds Of 3 Agencies

One-Vote Margin

NYA's liquidation was approved by the 17-to-16 vote in the committee as it reported to the House a $1,089,562,499 appropriation bill for the Labor Department, FSA, and WMC, covering expenditures for the 1944 fiscal year.

By reason chiefly of a $47,068,769 increase in funds for the Railroad Retirement Board, the economics effected on McNutt agencies were lowered to an over-all saving of $111,093,524 under appropriations for the year ending June 30, and $114,468,611 below Budget Bureau estimates.

A total of $156,482,873 was lopped from current appropriations for McNutt's agencies, as follows: From the Federal Security Agency—$92,746,996; from the War Manpower Commission $25,935,877; from the National Youth Administration—$37,000,000.

Debate Scheduled Today

Consideration of the appropriation measure is scheduled to start on the House floor today, after Representative Hare (Democrat) of South Carolina, chairman of the subcommittee in charge of the bill, appears before the Rules Committee to obtain a resolution protecting some items which Congress has not authorized, from elimination on points of order.

In its report on the bill, the Appropriations Committee served notice on Federal department heads that henceforth, if they expect to continue any activity on more than a temporary emergency basis, they will be expected to ask Congress for specific legislative authorization.

In reversing its subcommittee, which had voted 5 to 2 to appropriate $40,800,000 to continue NYA's activities for another year, the full committee reflected congressional opposition to the agency of several years standing. Elimination of NYA had been recommended to Congress by the Joint Committee on Reduction of Nonessential Federal Expenditures of which Senator Byrd (Democrat) of Virginia is the chairman.

Converted To War-Training

The agency, originally an organization for aiding needy youths but converted into a war-training agency shortly after the start of the war, was allowed nearly 58 millions for the current fiscal year. If the committee's recommendation is approved by House and Senate, it will have three million dollars for the first six months of the next fiscal year to cover liquidation expenses.

McNutt appeared to take lightly the reductions in appropriations for his agencies—he is Federal Security administrator as well as WMC chairman—when asked at his press conference how they would affect his organizations.

"After all, this is nothing but a committee report," he stated. "I do not like to comment on pending legisaltion, and have no comment to make on this bill. I shall make my representation to the Senate."

In cutting McNutt's funds, the committee ordered WMC's Bureau of Program Requirements killed because, it said, the bureau duplicates work done by the Bureau of Labor Statistics. Funds were also refused for setting up 66 additional WMC field offices which McNutt stated were necessary, while $10,027,000 was slashed from Budget Bureau requests for the USES.

More Offices—More Confusion

Establishment of additional field offices of WMC, the committee declared, "would only serve to provide further confusion."

"Rather than to increase the number of offices, the commission should give attention to more efficient operation of its existing offices and to clarification of its management methods," the committee asserted.

As the House committee was making its report, the Senate Appropriations Committee approved an appropriation bill whose total it increased by almost as much as the proposed saving on NYA.

The Senate committee added $33,940,358 for civilian pilot training in reporting a $226,105,758 appropriation for the State, Justice and Commerce departments. Senator McCarran (Democrat) of Nevada, said the added money would finance the training of 8648 pilots of whom 7200 would go to the Army.

Women's Unit Carries Colors With Marines

Traditions tumbled yesterday when a color guard of Marine Corps Women's Reserve marched with their male counterparts in evening parade at Marine Barracks bearing the flag of their country and the colors of the United States Marines.

It was one of the most stirring of the many Flag Day observances in the Nation's Capital.

The ceremony was witnessed by 200 civilians and a contingent of the National Society of the Colonial Dames of America, whose national president, Mrs. Ethelburt Lowe, a few moments previously had presented the colors to Maj. Ruth Cheney Streeter, director Marine Corps Women's Reserve, who in turn presented it to the all-woman color guard.

The color guard was composed of Corpl. Leona Pahl, Great Falls, Mont.; Corpl. Florence Sharp, Denver, Colo.; Corpl. Loraine Dolan, San Francisco, Calif., and Private First Class Norma Allen, Toledo, Ohio.

First Time in Public

Significant also, as the 70-piece Marine Barracks band swung into the parade after a fanfare of bugles, was the march it played. It was "The Marine Corps Women's Reserve March," and the first time it had been heard in public. It was written especially for the occasion by Musician Second Class Louis Saverino.

Brig. Gen. L. W. T. Waller, jr. of the Marine National Headquarters, attended the review. Presentation of the colors was arranged by Miss Louis G. Zabriskie, Colonial Dames' service chairman.

Other members of the Colonial Dames present included Former President Mrs. Joseph B. Hutchinson, Mrs. Hugh M. Morris, first vice president; Mrs. Robert Garrett, second vice president, Mrs. Edward C. Moo, treasurer; Mrs. Agnes Peters, assistant treasurer; Mrs. William H. Wilmer, trustee of the Sulgrave Endowment Fund.

Officers of State societies were: Mrs. H. Schuyler Cammann, president of the New York society; Mrs. J. B. Gribbel, president of the Pennsylvania society; Mrs. G. Freeland Peter, president of the District of Columbia society; Mrs. Gilbert Hitchcock, honorary president of the Nebraska society; Miss Dorothy Seldon Spenser, former Louisiana Patriotic Services chairman; Mrs. Enos Campbell, second vice president of the New Jersey society and Mrs. Joseph Stiles Wall, member, National Services committee.

Dames' Color Guard

The Dames' color guard included Mrs. William Seward Allen, New York; Mrs. Everett Horgan, New York and Mrs. John L. Sullivan, who represented her mother, Mrs. Charles Bartlett Manning, New Hampshire society president.

Far more widespread than in former years the various Flag Day programs throughout the District reflected graphically the united determination and unity of a war-geared National Capital.

Yesterday's programs included:

10 a. m.—On the east center steps of the Capitol was displayed "The Star-Spangled Banner." The Banner C has traveled from State to State since last September, adding a star from each State to its firmament.

The last of the 48 stars was attached in Richmond Sunday by Mrs. C. W. Darden, jr., wife of the Governor of Virginia.

11 a. m.—Labor Department Auditorium, sponsored by Legion Post 42, with Senator James J. Davis (Republican) of Pennsylvania, guest speaker.

2:30 p. m.—District Society, Sons of American Revolution, presented flag to Kramer Junior High School.

6:30 p. m.—U. S. Navy Band, Flag Day program, east front of the Capitol. Followed by exercises sponsored by the Women's Relief Corps.

8 p. m.—Jewish Community Center, sponsored by Jewish War Veterans, with military musicale revue by Sylvia Kaplowitz and her all-girl entertainers.

8 p. m.—Bond rally and Flag Day celebration, meeting of Billy Mitchell Post, No. 85, of Arlington, at Washington-Lee High School. Principal speaker was Miss Ruth Mitchell, sister of General Mitchell.

Frank Portillo, widely known Washington clown, will then address the assembly of sensibles on "The Fifth Freedom—Freedom From Swelter." His point of view will be illustrated by two attractive girls who will demonstrate, "Here's How, Boys."

Contest to Be Launched

Planck, whose letter to Jerry Kluttz was printed in the Federal Diary and met with wide approval, will then announce a contest for the selection of the Most Sensible Man of Washington.

The contest will be open to all those who wish to participate. There is no entry fee, but participants must be dressed sensibly. The winner will be selected, it is hoped, by the applause of assembled Government girls from agencies throughout the city.

All of the Government girls in Washington are invited by the Brotherhood of Sensible Men to act as judges. No formal invitation is required. If you are a Government girl, you are requested to appear at the Ellipse at 5:30 p. m. and act as one of what the BSM hopes will be a multitude of judges.

The winner of the "best dressed man" contest will be selected by the women's popular applause, and Jerry Kluttz will award the title of "Most Sensible Man" to the favorite of the ladies.

Before the meeting adjourns, a celluloid collar will be burned in a symbolic bonfire and the entire assembly will join in the singing of the B. S. M. battle hymn.

Business Told To Prepare for Postwar Boom

Special Dispatch to The Post

Chicago, June 14.—American businessmen must be prepared to produce from 35 to 45 per cent more goods and services after the war than they did in 1940 if they want to insure prosperity, Paul G. Hoffman, president of the Studebaker Corp., said today.

"It can be done," he told the twenty-fourth annual meeting of the United States Junior Chamber of Commerce. "Given a favorable economic climate, given the courage to plan boldly, . . . we have every chance of meeting the challenge of postwar production and employment successfully because the potentialities of a great market are there in a big way.

"The desire for goods will be in the people's hearts, the money to buy them will be in their hands. If we swing into peacetime production quickly enough, if we sell and advertise aggressively, that new high level of production can be obtained."

Much of the program advocated by Hoffman has been approved by the committee for economic development, of which he is chairman.

Business Briefs Of D. C. Interest

Postwar Credit Proposals

The return of retail credit control to American business after the war, free from Government restrictions or supervision, was urged yesterday in a resolution adopted by the board of directors of the National Retail Credit Association.

Directors resolved further that:

(1) Merchants and credit grantors throughout the Nation be urged to base postwar credit policy on a sound and sane attitude which would permit credit to be extended only within the limits of certain well-defined terms.

(2) That the National Retail Credit Association exert its best efforts to secure the termination of all consumer credit regulation at the end of the war.

No Vacations for Many

The practice of making pay allowances in lieu of vacations will rise sharply this year, a survey of 150 companies in a wide variety of industries made public yesterday by the National Industrial Conference Board disclosed.

Over 49 per cent of the 148 companies which answered concerning both last year and this reported some or all of their wage earners were expected to be given pay in place of vacation time against 42 per cent last year.

Forty-three companies, or 28.7 per cent of 150 companies reporting said all or some of their salaried employes would get money instead of time off this year, while 33, or 22 per cent, followed the practice last year.

Week's Steel Output To Increase Slightly

New York, June 14 (AP).—Steel operations will increase slightly this week to 97.8 per cent of capacity against 97.5 per cent in the preceding week, the American Iron & Steel Institute estimated today.

Production will amount to 1,693,600 net tons, compared with 1,688,400 a week earlier.

A month ago mills operated at 98.6 per cent of capacity and turned out 1,707,400 tons and a year ago the rate was 98.3 per cent and output 1,669,700 tons.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, June 14 (AP).—Light but persistant liquidation, coupled with a sharp drying-up of buying power today dropped all grain prices more than a cent. The market showed no tendency to rally and at the close quotations were on the day's lows.

There was no specified news upon which the selling might be blamed, but grain men were impressed with fairly heavy arrivals of wheat at Kansas City and Minneapolis. Hedging pressure, although never very large, was a factor sending wheat into lower territory. Rye and oats encountered profit-taking.

At the close wheat was 1⅝ to 1¾ lower, July 1.44⅛@1.44, September 1.44⅛@1.44; corn was unchanged; July, 1.05; oats were off 1⅛ to 1⅝, and rye was down 1⅝ to 3⅛.

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

Where was it we left off with Lefty Gomez? Was he telling about the time Tony Lazzeri stuffed the raw eggs in the toes of Babe Ruth's baseball shoes, or the day when Benny Bengough was picked off second base by the pitcher's throw to the center fielder?

POVICH

Anyway, Gomez was saying that "there never was a guy who could pull the hidden ball trick like Frankie Crosetti. He had a way all his own. Frankie could slip that ball out of sight inside his glove and act as if he didn't have an evil thought in his head.

"I was pitching in Detroit one day when Goose Goslin touched me up for a double. It was a lousy pitch, anyway, and I was disgusted. While the ball was being relayed back to the infield, I reached for the resin bag, and walked over toward Crossetti who faked handing the ball to me, and gave me the sign he was trying to pull something.

"I walked away from there and went back toward the mound, still holding that white resin bag in my glove. From where Goslin was standing, it must have looked like a ball to him. Bill Dineen, the umpire, knew what was up, and he said to me under his breath: "Don't you step on that rubber." I knew what he meant. If I stepped on the rubber without a ball in my hand, it would be a balk.

"I made a motion as if I were going into my wind-up, and Goslin started prancing off second base. Then he felt something hit his shoulder, and it was Crosetti, tagging him.

"'Yer out!' yelled Dineen.

"'Not me!' aid Goslin. "Gomez has the ball.'

"I stopped laughing long enough to throw Goose the resin bag. He saw what it was, and threw it over the second deck of stands."

Our favorite hidden ball story, though, will always be the one that involved Rabbit Maranville, who played 20 years in the National League before he was victimized by the hidden-ball trick in a game at St. Louis.

Maranville was disgusted, of course, and was still dejected that night when the manager of the hotel invited him to dinner in an effort to cheer him up.

It was an eight-course feast, and Maranville was stowing away the food with evident relish and forgetting his embarrassment of earlier in the day. No mention was made of anything like a hidden ball.

His host knew of Maranville's weakness for chocolate ice cream. For dessert, heaping platefuls for himself and the Rabbit. It was great, up to a certain point. Then Maranville's spoon struck something firm and he couldn't understand it. Eventually he uncovered a round, white object in the center of the ice cream. It was, you guessed it, a hidden ball.

"But the day Bengough was picked off second base gave me the biggest laugh I ever had in a ball game," said Gomez. "You tell 'em what happened, Benny."

"Well," said Bengough, "it was like this. I led off the inning with a clean single. That made me feel pretty good, of course, and when the next batter got the sacrifice sign, I was on my toes. The bunt was good, and I hot-footed it to second. You know a bunt had to be pretty good to get me to second.

"I wasn't any speed king, and second base was as far as I could expect to go on a sacrifice, so I never bothered about rounding second very far. I was standing out there pretty close to the bag, and slapping my hands, and making a lot of chatter for the next hitter.

"I wasn't worried about being picked off base. All the infielders were playing close. I could see the shortstop and second baseman, both of whom were 20 feet from the bag.

"All of a sudden the pitcher whirled around and threw toward second. I couldn't figure out what was going on, or who he was throwing to.

"Anyway, I started back to the bag just to be on the safe side, and imagine my embarrassment when I see Tris Speaker holding the ball ready to tag me.

"That Speaker had sneaked in behind me from centerfield to take the throw to second from the pitcher. He was holding it very daintily in two fingers, and when I started back to the bag, Speaker says 'Hi Ya, Ben' and put the ball on me."

Beau Jack, Starr Meet Here Monday

Beau Jack, lightweight champion until two weeks ago when he lost the crown to Bob Montgomery, will meet Maxie Starr of Wilmington, Del., here next Monday night at Griffith Stadium over the 10-round route, Promoter Joe Turner announced yesterday.

Jack, the former bootblack at Augusta, Ga., C. C., who has been the sensation of the lightweight ranks for the last 18 months, will be making his second local appearance. He won a preliminary bout here on his way up.

Starr, a youngster who is a puncher wiht plenty of courage, was signed after Turner had been steered away from three other prospective Jack opponents. Oscar Wright, Pete Galiano and Charley Petro.

Starr has fought here three times, twice gaining draws with Baltimore's veteran Pete Galiano and winning over Collier Ostwalk, a former Golden Gloves semi-finalist from North Carolina.

Chase Goes To Giants for Babe Barna

KEN CHASE

Red Sox Southpaw Pitched for Nats Five Full Seasons

Boston, June 14 (AP).—Ken Chase, Red Sox southpaw who gave 11 bases on balls yesterday in the four innings he pitched against the Washington Nationals, was traded today to the New York Giants for Outfielder Babe Barna, Secretary Phil Troy announced.

Chase, who pitched for Washington through five full seasons, lost four straight this season for the Red Sox. Last year he won 5 and lost 1, appearing in only 13 games.

Chase, 30 years old, had only one good season with the Nats, 1940, when he won 15 and lost 17 with a seventh place club. His wildness was always a drawback. The Oneonta (N. Y.) milkman was known for his effectiveness against the Yankees and Indians.

After winning only six games against 18 defeats in 1941, Chase was traded to the Red Sox with Johnny Welaj for Stan Spence and Jack Wilson. His lifetime record in the majors is 49 victories and 72 defeats.

Giants Recall Two

New York, June 14 (AP).—The New York Giants, who earlier today traded Outfielder Babe Barna to the Boston Red Sox for Pitcher Ken Chase, followed up this deal by exchanging two pairs of pitchers with their Jersey City farm in the International League.

They recalled Hugh East and Babe Fischer and replaced them at Jersey City with Ray Coombs and Ken Trinkle. All four are righthanders.

A's Buy Heffner

Philadelphia, June 14 (AP).—The Athletics purchased Infielder Don Heffner from the St. Louis Browns today for an undisclosed amount of cash.

Manager Connie Mack, in announcing the purchase, said he made the deal to give the A's additional infield insurance.

"I'm satisfied with Irv Hall at short, Pete Suder at second and Eddie Mayo at third," Mack said. "I contemplate no change at this time."

Heffner, a former member of the New York Yankees, is 32, married and a father. He is expected to report to the A's in Boston tomorrow.

Old Si Johnson Not So Old, Army Advises Phillies

By the Associated Press

Philadelphia, June 14—The Phillies' hopes of landing in the first division this season received another jolt today with the announcement by the club's front office that Si Johnson, veteran pitcher, has been ordered to report for his first Army physical examination about June 30.

Johnson is the third member of Manager Bucky Harris' team in line for Army call before the 1943 campaign ends. Babe Dahlgren, hard-hitting infielder, and Jimmy Wasdell, outfielder-first baseman are the others.

Johnson, 37, married, but childless, has won four and lost three this season.

Griffith Presents Tide Cup Today

Clark Griffith will present Eastern High School the interhigh baseball championship trophy at an assembly this morning at 9:30 o'clock. Team members will also be rewarded with letters.

Eastern's victory over Wilson High last week was the Tide's eleventh diamond triumph since 1925 in the interhigh series. Including the playoff games, Eastern won eight and lost one in the series schedule.

Four Errors, Walks Hurt Ewald Pyle

Chandler's 6-Hit Pitching Bests Nats' Trio; Rally In 8th Falls Short

By Shirley Povich
Post Staff Writer

The Nats yesterday put the Yankees more firmly in their place—first place. They couldn't stir up a hit against Spud Chandler until the sixth inning and flunked out, finally, by a 4-1 score in the sour presence of 6000 customers.

The first game of what was supposed to be a crucial series was excruciating for all concerned except the Yankees, who lengthened their league lead to three full games. The Nats botched matters with four errors and were stopped by two kinds of pitching—their own, and the Yankees'.

Ewald Pyle was the losing pitcher. If he had won with the sort of performance he turned in then it would indeed, have been a miracle. Pyle lasted only three innings, turning over a 4-0 deficit to his successors, Rae Scarborough and Dewey Adkins.

Big Error Hurts

Pyle allowed only two hits during his three-inning turn, in fact the two clubs accumulated only six hits each during the afternoon, but Pyle was evidence of the old saying, you can't hit what you can't reach. He gave the Yankees four bases on balls, and his aim toward first base wasn't so hot, either.

Two of the Yankee runs scored in the third inning, when Pyle fielded a bunt with two on base and with a complete disregard for all ceilings, heaved the ball 8 feet over First Baseman Mickey Vernon's head, letting two runs score and the bunter, Joe Gordon reach third.

Scarborough and Adkins attempted to keep the Nats in the game with six clever innings of scoreless relief pitching, but it was useless what with Chandler out there making duck soup of the Nats.

Six Double Plays

Until Johnny Sullivan beat out a single to Stirnweiss with one out in the sixth, the only Washington athlete to reach base was Kampouris, who drew a walk in the fifth. The Yanks promptly erased him on one of the game's six double plays.

Pinch-hitter Sherrard Robertson followed Sullivan's hit in the sixth with a single to right, but Case and Spence couldn't get the ball out of the infield.

The Nats messed up a chance for a big inning in the eighth, after Jake Early led off with a single and Sullivan drew a walk with none out. Pinch-hitter Gene Moore bounced a ball to Chandler, who started a double play. A bit later Case was hit by a pitched ball and Spence singled home a run, but Vernon bounced out to Chandler.

Two Errors in First

In the ninth, Johnson led off with a walk, but Kampouris took a third strike for the third time. Priddy followed with a scratch single off Gordon's glove, but Gordon rescued Chandler from serious trouble with a lunging catch of Giuliani's Texas Leaguer.

The Yanks couldn't score in the first inning despite fumbles by Kampouris and Priddy and two walks. Priddy started a double play on Gordon's grounder with the bases full.

Pyle set up a run for the Yanks in the second when he walked Etten and wild-pitched him to second. Johnson got him home with a single to center.

The only Yankee hit in the third inning was Keller's safe bunt down the third base line at the outset, but it touched off a three-run rally. Pyle walked Lindell and then watched them both scoot home on his wild heave of Gordon's sacrifice. Gordon, who pulled up at third, moved home on Etten's fly.

That gave the Yanks a 4-0 lead and the ball game.

Braves Edge Dodgers, 4-3; Take Series

By the Associated Press

Brooklyn, N. Y., June 14.—The Boston Braves rose up against Ed Head in the eighth inning today to score two runs and nose out the Brooklyn Dodgers, 4 to 3, in a twilight game played before 9041 paying customers.

The victory gave the Braves a 3-to-2 edge in the five-game series with every contest being decided by one run. It also dropped the Dodgers two games behind the St. Louis Cardinals, National League leaders.

The Dodgers made nine hits off Al Javery and nicked him for single runs in the second, third and fourth innings. Doubles by Dolph Camilli and Paul Waner provided the first run; two singles and a fly brought in the second, and a double by Waner and a single by Mickey Owen accounted for the third.

However, Connie Ryan punched home a run for the Braves with a single in the third and doubled another across after Eddie Joost had tripled in the fifth.

Then with one out in the eighth Ryan, Tommy Holmes and John McCarthy hit successive singles to tie the score and force Curt Davis to come to Head's relief. Charley Workman hit a long fly to center to count the winning run.

Cards Beat Reds, 5-3, As Cooper Bros. Star

Morton Scores His 8th Win of Season; Harry Walker Hits Safely in 21st Game

By the Associated Press

St. Louis, June 14.—The Cooper brothers, Morton and Walker, put on a show today that cinched a 5-to-3 victory for the World Champion Cardinals over Cincinnati. In addition, Harry Walker hit safely in his twenty-first consecutive game.

The contest had developed into a nip-and-tuck pitching duel between Mort and Ray Starr until the fatal sixth inning.

Lou Klein, first man up, got hold of one then that carried him to first. Walker went down on a pop up but Debs Garms doubled Klein to third. Stan Musial was intentionally passed. Walker Cooper crossed up Cincinnati's strategy by ripping a triple to left center, scoring three runs.

The husky catcher was run down between third and home a few moments later when Whitey Kurowski hit to shortstop Steve Mesner, but the Cards gained another tally on a single and a fumble, Kurowski crossing the plate.

Ray Starr retired in favor of a pinch hitter in the seventh inning, but the die-hard Reds had to go into the eighth before scoring. Frank McCormick did the trick by slugging his fourth home run of the year to score behind Lonnie Frey who had doubled ahead of him.

In the meantime, the Redbirds had picked up a counter in the seventh on a single, sacrifice and another one-base blow, and although the Reds came back with a run in the ninth on Eric Tipton's triple and Pinch Hitter Estel Crabtree's single, Pitcher Cooper blasted their hopes by forcing Bert Haas, batting for Pitcher Clyde Shoun, to hit into a double play.

Cooper was touched for eight hits but he proved adament in the pinches and worked the entire contest for his eighth triumph against three setbacks.

Leonard Faces Yanks Tonight

Dutch Leonard will attempt to give the Nats some satisfaction out of the Yankee series when he goes to the mound tonight with his knuckle ball.

Leonard will be opposed by Charley Wensloff, Yankee righthander from Kansas City, who is taking a record of three wins and three defeats into the game.

Griffith Stadium officials vision the season's largest night crowd, as indicated by advanced sales.

Spud Chandler was wavering throughout the late inning of yesterday's game, as testified by the fact that the Nats got only one man on base in the first five innings. . . . And 10 on base in the last four. . . . Kampouris had a dismal afternoon. . . . After making an error in each of the first two innings, he went to the plate for the first time and struck out. . . . He took a called third strike in both the seventh and ninth, with the help of Umpire Bill Grieve. . . . Chandler was booed when he struck George Case on the arm with a pitched ball in the eighth. . . . It was Pyle's first start since he injured his hand on a line drive last week. . . . Young Wensloff, who pitches for the Yanks tonight, is the only Yankee pitcher who has not been knocked out of the box this year.

Lewis Carpenter, big righthanded relief pitcher who had been unimpressive in four relief appearances and in several exhibition games, yesterday was optioned to Chattanooga. Carpenter signed with the Nats after the season started after turning down two other major league offers. He quit baseball in midseason last year while pitching for Memphis. Carpenter did not win or lose a game with the Nats. His release leaves the Nats one below the player limit of 25.

Bettina Stops Brooks in First Round by TKO

By the Associated Press

Philadelphia, June 14 — Mello Bettina, returned to the ring tonight after a year's absence and scored a one-punch, one-round technical knockout over Lou Brooks of Wilmington, Del.

The end came unexpectedly after 1:49 of what was scheduled as a ten-rounder on Promoter Herman Taylor's first outdoor show at the Arena Stadium.

Bettina, now a corporal in the Army, had taken two hard rights to the face in the first round without a return when it happened.

Brooks' mouth popped open in pain. He started to put up his hands to continue fighting, but then turned his back to Bettina.

Strothers Entry One and Two In Charles Town Feature

Saran First, Twotimer in 2d Position

By Walter Haight
A Staff Correspondent

Charles Town, W. Va., June 14.—Saran, a 5-year-old mare, and Twotimer, a 3-year-old filly, ran first and second in the featured purse race today while carrying the old rose and green of Dr. G. T. Strothers of Brunswick, Md. Seven lengths from second money came Mrs. P. G. Simms' Silver Beam to be third in the field of six going about 7 furlongs. The entry ran just as the majority of fans believed and the winner paid $3.40. Saran was clocked in 1:24 3-5 over a lightning-fast track.

Twotimer, with Buddy Root aboard, took command at once, but Stanley Austin rated Saran close to the pace to the backstretch. At this point Saran took command. Twotimer raced along with her stablemate to midstretch and then was eased up. Silver Beam made a mild bid leaving the backstretch, but tired and was a beaten-off and tiring third.

L. S. Stewart of Washington, D. C., saw his colors win two races. Laugh and Play, purchased by Stewart on Saturday, came back today to win the first race at a $9 mutuel. His Rough Egg proved the best in the third event, winning by six lengths and paid $14. Those who coupled Laugh and Play with Meadow Sun, the $8 winner of the second event, received $30.40 in the daily double.

Apprentice Jockey Arnold Kirkland carried off the saddle honors for the day. He was aboard Laugh and Play and Rough Egg and followed up these victories by winning the fifth event with the Eastview Stable's Hard Loser, an $8.80 shot. Hard Loser was up in the final strides to nose out Discretion in a photo finish.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SINGING STEEL, $4.60, $3.20, $2.80; TRUE PILATE, $8.20, $6.20; MISS DEFIANCE, $4.80.

SINGING STEEL, steadied while closest to pace of PONE, took command when asked, drew out and was kept to pressure to end. TRUE PILATE improved position on outside, lugged in during stretch run and closed willingly. MISS DEFIANCE gained on inside and Fitzgerald was unable to do mount justice when blocked by TRUE PILATE at end. MIGHTY BUSY was bothered by TRUE PILATE in early stretch run.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SARAN, $3.40, $2.80, $2.40; TWOTIMER, $2.80, $2.40; SILVER BEAM, $2.40.

SARAN, steadied closest to pace of TWOTIMER, took command on backstretch and continued gamely under mild urging. TWOTIMER set early pace, continued gamely and was eased in final 30 yards behind winning stablemate. SILVER BEAM improved position on backstretch and then weakened. BALLACON was in close quarters going to first turn, saved ground and tired.

SEVENTH RACE—Six and one-half furlongs. Purse, $300. For 3-year-olds; claiming. Start good. Won handily; place driving. Went to post at 4:06. Off at 4:06. Winner, E. P. Minor's b. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—EVENING SHOT, $17.20, $6.40, $4.00; INDIGNATION, $3.20, $2.40; JUNE PENNANT, $2.80.

EVENING SHOT, allowed to settle into stride, moved to contention on outside, responded to urging, lugged in during stretch run and won going away. INDIGNATION was in first flight and under intermittent punishment from start, disposed of JUNE PENNANT but could not resist winner. JUNE PENNANT was hustled to front, set good pace and tired in closing test. WAUGH SCOUT had speed in spots.

EIGHTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $400. For 3-year-olds; claiming. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 4:32. Off at 4:32½. Winner, Mrs. F. A. Woolridge's br. c. Two-dollar mutuels paid—SUN TARGET, $15.00, $8.60, $3.60; HOT MAN, $4.40, $2.60; TIME PLAY, $2.80.

SUN TARGET took command by circling leaders, saved ground while setting pace and was under punishment at end. HOT MAN was under steadying restraint early, came out for racing room, was taken under strong grip on backstretch and closed with little help from rider. TIME PLAY moved up on inside and faltered in closing test. QUATRE SONG had speed in spots and can do better.

HERE LIE MOTHER'S PETUNIAS

THERE are no pretty petunias in this garden this summer. But mother doesn't mind. Not these days.

Instead she'll have extra food to stretch those precious stamps in the ration books.

So the whole family's pitching in to get the victory vegetables under way. It takes time. It takes muscle. But it's turning out to be fun.

Dad isn't fretting for missing his golf. Junior's not teasing to be driven to the beach. Sis has forgotten there are no more dances at the club.

And working this way is fundamental in American life.

America grew as families planted the soil and reaped their living.

America expanded as families pioneered and moved westward.

The story of America's progress is the story of her families.

And today these families are reunited as they haven't been for years. They are again planning together, working together, playing together.

The strength of the American family as a whole has returned. And this is a power in American life which has never been beaten.

Here at LOOK, it has been our purpose to understand that family as a social unit, as a reading unit, and as a buying unit.

We believe that it has been this understanding that has enabled us to develop an editorial pattern that informs and entertains every member of the family.

And we believe this is the reason 2 million American families buy LOOK regularly.

Problem Unsolved

Emmett, Idaho.—The defendant, convicted for hunting without a license and out of season, told Justice of the Peace Margaret Smoke: "This meat rationing is starving me, so I decided to get some pheasants." His problem still wasn't solved. He had fired seven shots and missed each time.

Souvenir Millinery

Richmond, Va. (A.P.).—A Richmond hotel manager thought he had seen all of the tricks of souvenir hunters until—A woman, unable to secrete a wicker bread basket in her handbag, perched it on her head and walked out of the dining room. "And she almost got away with it," he sighed. "Women's hats are so crazy."

The Federal Diary

By Jerry Kluttz

President Expected To Liberalize Leaves

President Roosevelt now is expected to order all Federal agencies to adopt a more liberal leave policy in order to give employes time off to attend to personal chores. If the President acts to lay down a uniform system, the employes won't feel guilty of absenteeism when they are compelled to take a few hours of annual leave to go to the doctor, to do shopping and tend the Victory garden. In brief, the agencies will be told to allow employes short snatches of annual leave wher they can be spared. A great number of employes and a few officials are hoping to have hours adjusted so that each employe can get a half a day off each week. It's a swell idea but it has again been turned down by the bigwigs. Instead, the more liberalized leave policy will be instituted.

William Lewis and the Office of War Information have severed relations. He was associate director, and several weeks ago 15 top-flight members of the news staff resigned in protest against his news policies.

And speaking of the B. S. M., today is revolution day. It's the day men will throw off the shackles of high collars, ties and coats, and start wearing sensible clothes in Washington's sweltering summer, open-neck slack suits. The men's revolution will take place officially this afternoon from 5:30 to 6:15 o'clock under the thickest shade trees on the Ellipse. The thickest shade trees that could be found are on the Fifteenth Street side of the Ellipse across the street from the Commerce Department. Government girls (they're invited, too) will be selected from the crowd to choose the best dressed man in slacks. Several attractive girls will give the brothers a lesson on sensible dressing, and other hot weather entertainment will be provided.

Charles Planck, the Civil Aeronautics employe who wrote the letter to this column that started the brotherhood, has been christened "chief panty-waister" by several of the brethren. The chief will m. c. the [illegible]. Everyone is invited. The [illegible] will have its fun, but it has many deadly serious aspects and they are: (1) Slacks are much more comfortable and cooler than ordinary suits; (2) dry cleaning has become a real problem; (3) the Army permits officers to do without coats for the summer, why not civilians, and (4) men are aching for a change in dress and wartime is the best time to put over a revolution in dress. Government men did it during World War I when they did away with their office coats, unbuttoned their collars and rolled up their sleeves. Some of them even wore overalls to work. The stuffed shirts will oppose the revolution and some Washington restaurants will refuse to serve the brethren, but they'll be sorry, because slacks will catch on pretty well this year and they'll have widespread acceptance before very long. That is, if the men stick together and revolt.

Yesterday stories had the C. I. O. members on the War Labor Board threatening to withdraw. The truth is that C. I. O. Members Van Bittner and John Brophy refused to participate in a WLB case last Saturday on the ground that they didn't want to have anything to do with an agency that was going to enforce the Connally-Smith antistrike bill. It's now a good bet that the President will sign the bill and the WLB will be reorganized into a three or five-man group made up of public members. . . . Mail carriers are petitioning the Postmaster General to allow them to wear lighter and more comfortable clothes during the hot summer months. They got the idea from the B. S. M.

Albert Einstein is now a Navy Department employe. He's a staff member of the Ordnance Bureau and he'll try to work out some of the mysteries of explosives. The scientist, however, will do most of his work in his Princeton, N. J., home. In commenting on the appointment of the bushy-haired Einstein, the Star Shell, Ordnance employe publication, notes that his Navy contract "carries no stipulation about a Navy haircut." It also reports that "Dr. Einstein will not be in uniform—he thinks better in his old windbreaker with his trousers rolled up." That makes the good doctor eligible for our Brotherhood of Sensible Men.

However, the matter is being worked out.

3 Generals Of D. C. Area Decorated

Three officers of the Washington area were awarded the Legion of Merit decoration, one of them with the Oak Leaf Cluster, for meritious service in the Tunisian campaign.

Brig. Gen. Edmond H. Leavey of 3637 Upton Street Northwest was given the Oak Leaf Cluster to the Legion of Merit; Brig. Gen. Howard A. Craig of 815 Islington Street, Silver Spring, Md., was given the Legion of Merit award and Brig. Gen. Arthur W. Pence, 905 Washington Street, Alexandria, Va., was given a similar decoration.

General Leavey was decorated for his skill, energy, foresight and insistence upon cooperative service in the Tunisian campaign which, the citation said, contributed in a marked degree to the success of the campaign.

General Craig was rewarded for his part in planning the Tunisian campaign as well as his efforts to make the landings and the actual fighting successful. He ended the campaign as Chief of Staff of the Mediterranean Air Command.

General Pence was honored for his part in organizing efforts in securing a smooth and efficient operation of the supply services during the campaign. He also was credited with a large part of the credit in winning the campaign by his organization of the Eastern Base Section.

Car Inspection Modifications Promised Soon

Modifications of the District automobile inspection program will be introduced within a week, Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer told the District advisory board of the American Automobile Association yesterday, and will result in a substantial saving of rubber, gas and man hours.

Under the proposed changes, which have gained the tentative approval of the District Commissioners, motorists would not have to drive to inspection stations to have minor irregularities of their cars' equipment checked. Instead, they would have to fill out a prepared postal card and have it signed by their service station attendant, indicating that the necessary repairs had been made, and mail it to the Department of Vehicles and Traffic.

Pyke Johnson, president of the Automotive Safety Foundation, delivered a short speech at the luncheon meeting in the Washington Hotel, and presented a sound slide-film on the importance of the Victory Highway program in conserving critical transportation materials.

Ringling-Barnum Circus to Show Twice Daily All Week

Capacity crowds of nearly 15,000 persons who had purchased war bonds as the price of admission went into raptures yesterday afternoon and last night over the Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey Circus in its first Washington performances of the year.

The circus has abandoned its streamlining of the past three years and the keynote throughout was the "circus of yesteryear." Gone was the blue tent, the red, white and blue sawdust and the old "straight" show was stressed.

The two shows yesterday netted the Treasury Department a cool million and a half dollars in war bond sales.

The old-time keynote was brought into play with the very first act, "Hold Your Horses," a reproduction of the street parades of the latter "90's," complete with steaming calliope and the bright red and gold cages and wagons.

Patriotic Pageantry

Extravaganza of the shows was "Let Freedom Ring," with all of the United Nations represented with pageantry and special musical scores. Along the same line was the "Changing of the Guard," a parade drill by more than 50 uniformed girls and 21 elephants, ending with all of the elephants forming a pyramid.

There were real belly laughs at the revival of the toppling tables clown act and the clown firehouse, but the real hit among the clowns again was the droll and sad-faced Emmett Kelly, whose victory garden act brought howls of delight. It wouldn't be fair to give away the point of the new clown car-sharing act, introduced for the first time at yesterday's performance, but be sure not to be looking the other way when that goes on.

Revival Is Complete

The old-time revival was complete in every tradition dear to the hearts of old-time circus fans. There was Alfred Court's great animal training show, with thrills and chills as they lunged at their trainers; the "Cloud Swing Beauties," four girls in an aerial act; the dancing horses with high school educations; a new high aerial act by five teams simultaneously; Truzzi, the amazing juggler, whose five whirling torches in pitch darkness were breathtaking; the aerial ballet with 42 girls and featuring LaLage, who left the spectators dizzy with her 72 consecutive one-armed giant swings; the dashing Liberty horses; the high acrobatics of the Flying Costellos, Randolls and Comets; the bareback riding Loyal-Repensky troupe; the new equilibristic acts of unicyclists and skaters; the incredible high-wire Wallendas and the great finale "Drums of Victory."

Street cars Nos. 10 and 12, on H Street or New York Avenue, marked Benning and Kenilworth, go direct to the circus grounds at Benning Road and Oklahoma Avenue Northeast, but for last night's performance hundreds of cars were parked near the grounds.

The circus will present two performances each day this week, through Saturday, beginning at 2:15 and 8:15 p. m.

Half of Big Spud Shipment Found Rotten

Rotten potatoes, 600,000 pounds of them, arrived on the Washington market from California, Florida and South Carolina yesterday—the result of a Government regulation preventing the icing of the potatoes in the cars.

The Food Distribution Administration report of potato receipts for the day showed a total of 40 cars arriving here. Seven were from California, two from Florida and 31 from South Carolina.

Each car carried 30,000 pounds of the spuds. From 50 to 60 per cent of the spuds were rotten when wholesalers opened the cars yesterday morning.

Havoc Continues

Last night, due to the labor shortage which prevented immediate sorting of the good from the bad, a large number of the cars lay on their sidings, doors sealed, and hot weather working further havoc.

Two carloads from Georgia, not arriving in time for the Government report, and received by one dealer were good. However, this same dealer received three cars on Sunday that were 60 per cent or more rotten.

With the potatoes valued at approximately 4 cents a pound, the loss due to rotting here yesterday amounted to $24,000.

Only at Shipping Point

The new order, however, allows only for icing at the shipping point and does not care for further attention while in transit.

The cars here were standing in the sun in a temperature ranging up to 87 degrees.

Wholesale dealers said that so great was the demand in Washington for potatoes, despite recent heavy shipments, that they could have sold the entire shipment, if the potatoes had been good quality.

Police Join Hunt For Missing WAVE

The public relations division of the Police Department was requested last night to join the search for WAVE Hope Fletcher, 33, seaman second class, who has been missing from WAVE Barracks D, Massachusetts and Nebraska Avenues Northwest, since 2 a. m. Saturday.

WAVE Fletcher, whose home was reported as Portland, Me., was described as being 5 feet, 5 inches in height, weighing 130 pounds, with hazel eyes, brown hair, erect carriage and wearing a WAVE uniform.

Pedestrians Blamed In Consensus by Police, Citizens on Accident Causes

Traffic deaths this year ..... 35
Deaths this date last year .. 52
Total deaths last year ..... 108

Samuel W. Vass, 45, Negro, 307 M Street Southwest, who was injured Friday in a streetcar accident on Seventh Street Northwest near Massachusetts Avenue, died yesterday at Casualty Hospital, as Washington began observance of Pedestrian Safety Week.

According to police, Vass was struck by a southbound streetcar operated by Lester A. Kline, 24, of 503 Third Street Northwest, and knocked into the front of a northbound streetcar operated by John A. Wharton, 41, of 6519 Eighth Street Northwest.

Henry Myers, 83, of 2769 Naylor Road Southeast, was in a critical condition last night at Casualty Hospital suffering from fractures of the skull, nose, collar bone and ribs and multiple lacerations and abrasions and shock, received when he was struck by a streetcar in front of 1352 Pennsylvania Avenue Southeast. Police listed the operator as Clarence B. Kenisley, 56, of 1850 Potomac Avenue Southeast, with 22 years' experience.

Applied Emergency Brake

Kenisley applied the emergency brake to avoid hitting Myers and stopped so suddenly his streetcar was jammed in the rear by another streetcar operated by Glenn O. Taylor, 41, of Sliver Spring, with 19 years' experience.

A passenger in the second streetcar, Sadie Maddox, 58, of Bradbury Heights, fainted but refused treatment, police said.

In another accident, Joseph E. Thomas, 11, of 704 E Street Southeast, suffered a compound fracture of the right leg. Thomas was struck at Eleventh and M Streets Southeast by an automobile operated by Aaron Bothanas, 29, Negro, 161 Adams Street Northwest, police said. The youth was admitted to Gallinger Hospital.

Meanwhile Police Superintendent Edward J. Kelly told a WMAL radio audience that 75 per cent of all personal injury and fatality cases involve pedestrians and in the majority of those cases the pedestrians are engaging in some dangerous practice.

Major Kelly spoke on the first of six programs which are part of the Junior Board of Commerce Pedestrian Safety Week campaign that began Sunday and will continue through Saturday.

John Wathen and William Boardmen of the Junior Board of Commerce, sponsor of the campaign, yesterday interviewed typical traffickers to learn their opinions of the local pedestrian traffic problem.

Interviewed were a taxi driver, a streetcar operator, a pedestrian and a pair of schoolboy patrolmen. Each was asked: What is the cause of the great number of pedestrian accidents in Washington? What do you think should be done to lower the pedestrian accident rate in Washington? All blamed pedestrians for being either careless or negligent.

Thousands of Taxpayers Race To Beat Midnight Deadline

It looked like the days just prior to March 15 at the collector's field office of the Internal Revenue Bureau all day yesterday, as immense crowds lined the walls of the building waiting to personally pay their second quarter income taxes.

The crowd was partially due, officials said, to the fact that tax bills were late in being mailed out this year. Too, many of the taxpayers are paying their first taxes this year and wanted to make sure they were "doing just right by Uncle Sam."

While no official count was made, estimates ran as high as the 20,000 mark. High point of the crowds this year was on March 15 when 20,525 persons were waited upon.

Total personnel of the collector's field office was assigned to handle the crowd. There were 107 persons working on the returns and the crowd was kept moving very rapidly. At times, however, it extended a total of 3½ blocks in the building's corridors.

It was half a block long before the office opened and never got below that point throughout the day.

Officials of the office anticipate another large crowd today and plan to make a count of it. All of the bills are in the mail now, after some delay occasioned by lack of envelopes, and a big last-minute rush is expected as taxpayers are suddenly reminded that midnight is the deadline for returns to be in the mail.

The field collector's office was no end amazed by the deluge of payers, but swung into high gear immediately. One official rationalized, "I guess they like to see it go through the windows rather than just go out in the mail. Sort of makes it seem more official."

Man Gains Custody of His Son After 2-Year Battle in Courts

Child's Mother Was Sent to Jail for Mistreating Him

A father's three-year fight for his 9-year-old son ended successfully in District Court yesterday when Chief Justice Edward C. Eicher signed an order giving Kenneth A. Ford, 32, full custody of his son, Kenneth J. Ford.

The order concluded two years of court battles which began when Ford's former wife, the mother of Kenneth was sentenced to serve 60 days in jail for beating the boy and then placing him in a bathtub full of hot water. The child had to have hospital treatment.

The mother had received the custody of Kenneth when the couple was divorced in 1937. It was after her remarriage that the charges of cruelty were brought.

In the ensuing court battles Kenneth waited the decision at the Washington City Orphan Asylum where the court ordered him placed until the case could be decided.

Kenneth Ford, the father, who is an official with the United States Public Health Service in Louisville, was a beaming parent when he talked with reporters in District Court after receiving the order giving him back his son.

His attorney, Miss Marie E. McCathran, was with him as were his second wife and their 3-year-old daughter. They had phoned the orphanage and it was all set that Kenneth would be released to them as soon as the order was presented.

However, he paused long enough to express his relief that the two years of litigation was at an end and that within the next few days the family would be in Louisville and Kenneth would have a home again.

"You know," he said as he left to get the boy, "they tell me at the orphanage that Kenneth has distinguished himself as a boxer. I used to be pretty good myself once but maybe he can give me a few lessons."

Crusading Editor, Under Bond In Libel, Visits D. C. for Talk

Rives Matthews, the crusading editor of the Somerset News in Princess Anne, Md., who attacked State Comptroller J. Millard Tawes for violation of gas rationing laws, was in Washington yesterday for his radio address.

Six feet tall and apparently unimpressed by the fact that he faces an unlimited penalty under the Maryland criminal libel statute, the genial young newspaperman said it was his first visit to Washington in four years. In place of the blue denims and sweat shirt which he wears in his corrugated tin office, "church clothes," a brown suit with blue and white striped shirt and bright tie.

Matthews, who spoke last night on Earl Godwin's radio program over N. B. C., said: "I hitchhiked and boarded eight different automobiles, buses and a train to get here. This afternoon I called on Harold L. Ickes because I'd written him an open letter in my paper about Tawes.

The county newspaper editor, who is free on $2500 bond after being charged with malicious slander, said he'd like "to stick around here for a few days but I've got to get back to my victory garden. All this political commotion and my arrest a few days ago kept me away so much that the weeds are about to take over. I've got to get in a good crop of vegetables because I might be indicted in September." He laughed heartily and said that he intended to draw no punches meanwhile in attacking gasoline ration violators.

Mrs. Ida Allnutt Dies; Rites Today

Funeral services will be held at 2:30 p. m. today for Mrs. Ida Mae Allnut, 51, of the Etchison, Md., neighborhood, who died at her home Sunday.

The services will take place at the home of the Rev. Dillon B. Groves, pastor of the Methodist Church at Etchison, and interment will be in the church cemetery.

Mrs. Allnut is survived by her husband, Walter T. Allnut; two daughters, Mrs. Harrison King, Woodfield, Md., and Miss Hazel Allnut, and four brothers, Russell, Clifton and William Moore of Etchison, and Luther Moore, Damascus, Md.

Larger Funds Favored for 2 Hospitals

House Committee Recommends Budget Cuts for Howard U., Institution for Deaf

Appropriations for Freedmen's Hospital, St. Elizabeth's Hospital and Howard University were reported out yesterday by the House Appropriations Committee in the Department of Labor-Federal Security Agency Appropriation bill for 1944.

Freedmen's Hospital was allotted $686,000, an increase of $31,690 over 1943.

An appropriation of $1,963,000 was approved for St. Elizabeth's Hospital, an increase of $544,700. The increase was held to be necessary because of the increasing number of patients from the armed forces.

A slash of $30,260 was recommended in Howard University's budget, with the sum of $747,240 approved for 1944.

Columbia Institution for the Deaf also received a budget cut. Recommending an appropriation of $155,200, the subcommittee sliced $15,300 from the budget request.

The Office of Education was alloted the sum of $25,000 to carry on vocational rehabilitation work in the District of Columbia.

Among the highlights of the report dealing with District institutions was a recommendation that one man not fill the posts of dean of the Medical College at Howard University and superintendent of Freedmen's Hospital.

"The two positions," the report said, "are of such importance and require such close attention to detail, that one man should not attempt to serve in both capacities."

The report, however, complimented the improvements made at Freedmen's under Dr. John W Lawlah. In the hearings released yesterday, Dr. Lawlah described steps taken to control supplies of drugs and alcohol at Freedmen's, following the scandals about control of those items two years ago.

City News In Brief

Shortly before noon yesterday failure of a generator in the power plant of the Capitol caused building engineers to rush out oil lanterns to guide the morning stream of visitors through the labyrinth of subways. In Capitol restaurants candles solved the lighting problem. For some time Senators, hurrying from their office building, walked instead of whisking through the tunnel in the electric car. The "blackout" lasted only about 15 minutes.

Maj. Sedley Peck of the Civil Aeronautics Board, who was in Europe during the Nazi blitz, will recount his experiences at the monthly luncheon meeting of the Civilian Defense Public Works group to be held in Harvey's restaurant, 1107 Connecticut Avenue Northwest, at 12:30 p. m. Friday, it was announced yesterday. Major Peck was in France in connection with the delivery of American ambulances.

Capper Renews D. C. Vote Pleas

Terming the failure to admit Americans living in the Nation's Capito lto citizenship a "cloud on our title to the claim of being a free democracy," Senator Capper (Republican) of Kansas, yesterday renewed his pleas in the Senate for District suffrage.

Capper's speech urged the importance of the constitutional amendment, he, in cooperation with Representative Summers (Democrat) of Texas, has introduced in Congress to bring about suffrage for the District.

Look Pleasant, Please

By Jeanne Contini

Powerful humidity doubtless makes us all feel mighty unlike a rose. Still, our job takes us on a daily odyssey through town where we get a good squint at a cross-section of Washington femininity. At the risk of sounding waspish, may we point out that the following foibles let down your own morale, to say nothing of the other half of the population (whatever you think of them) and don't make you any cooler.

THE ZEBRA-LEG SCOURGE

Perhaps the most unhappy sight of all is the normally beautiful American leg splotched with misapplied cosmetic stockings. Fine on a pinto pony, the effect is most discouraging on a woman. Make-up is an art as much on the limb as the face. It requires practice. Patience, please—or bona fide stockings.

THE SLAPPED-TOGETHER LOOK

Any old slip has no place under sheer fabric. When you go to buy the coolest costume you can find, consider that thin, transparent cloths carry the obligation of immaculate lingerie. There is nothing provocative about veiled glimpses of foundation garments, or pink slips under white blouses; falling shoulder straps are in a class with falling arches.

THE SLACK MENACE

There are several times and places where the wearing of slacks is eminently right. Excluded is the midtown shopping area any hour of the day or night, unless you are on your way to or from a defense job where trousers are mandatory. Would you think of walking down F Street in a bathing suit? It would be just as appropriate.

"WHITE" SHOES

The sporting of the sad saddle oxford, whose value increases as the grime ages into the leather, is the exclusive privilege of children and college students. Snow-white shoes look cool and clean on the feet; they complement tanned legs and afford a crisp pedestal to your cottons. Dingy, tattle-tale gray pumps, like chipped nail polish, can give the kiss of death to an otherwise flawless costume.

THE PLAYSUIT PLAGUE

From the Pentagon Building come ominous rumblings from a disillusioned Army and Navy who, thinking they hired secretaries, discover suddenly that the office force is simply marking time until it's time for the midday sun bath. Startled members of the armed forces (in crisp, warm uniforms) look from their windows at lunch hour on a scene of tropic abandon in the court. There, sprawled on the grass under the gay awnings, are the efficient Miss Smiths and Miss Browns in shorts, drinking in the sun, having doffed their skirts somewhere between Coca-colas. What is wrong with this picture? Well, Government girl, if you don't see for yourself once you have the overall perspective, you are not the person we know you are.

Whew—it's off our chest, and you can now get a word in edgewise.

Smooth, Delicious Creme Custard

A custard, when made correctly, is a joy to serve as well as to eat. Here is a recipe for making custard which will produce a smooth, delicious dessert.

CUSTARD CREME

Beat 4 eggs or 8 yolks, ½ to ¾ cup sugar, ¼ teaspoon salt and 1 teaspoon vanilla to blend. Add 3 cups scalded milk, stirring to combine. Pour into lightly greased casserole, set in a pan of hot water and bake in moderately slow oven, 325 F., until firm in the center. Chill thoroughly.

Sprinkle a half-inch layer of brown sugar over the entire surface. Set under broiler, 4 or 5 inches from heat, long enough to melt the points on the surface of the sugar. Remove from broiler, let stand until sugar almost entirely melts. Chill thoroughly before serving. Serves 6 to 8.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Strife Entered Home of Formerly Very Happy Pair, Who Have Six Children, When Man's 23-Year-Old Niece Arrived to Live With Them and Work Here

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: My husband and I have had a very happy home until now. We have six children, ranging in ages from 2 years to 15 years. Just one week ago, his sister's daughter, a girl of 23, arrived unannounced (from a distant State), and said that she had come to stay with us and get a job. The Civil Service immediately took her on, as she is a good typist;—and now our home life has become completely disarranged.

Nothing is the same. My husband and I have quarreled. He says that she is his sister's child and that he will not send her away. I resent her being here, especially since she didn't even have the courtesy to write and ask our permission to live in our home;—or even let us know she was coming. I have no help whatsoever, and she is just one more person to cook and care for. Am I selfish in insisting that she should live elsewhere,—since she is financially independent? Or should I let relatives come and stay just as they please, simply because this is "wartime Washington?"

It isn't a question of room. We have a large, comfortable house. But it is a clash of personalities; and nobody to do the extra work. Also, it is a question of precedent. She has eight sisters, who probably will follow her example;—and I am only happy when we have our home to ourselves. Your impersonal advice will be much appreciated. Sincerely, F. M. G.

Man Is Falling Down On Duty to His Wife

DEAR F. M. G.: My opinion of the situation is that your husband's niece is guilty of inexcusable rudeness and insufferable effrontery, in descending upon you unannounced, with the selfish intention of "settling down" on you for as long as it suits her convenience to do so. And I hold that your husband is totally without justification in defending,—much less "taking sides" to perpetuate,—her thick-skinned imposition.

The fact that it is "his sister's child" who has seen fit to high-handedly intrude into your cherished domestic intimacy does not put him under obligation to indulge or condone the offense. On the contrary, his close blood relationship to her clearly confronts him with responsibility to take the lead, in the circumstances, in easing her out of the house,—as a friendly service both to her and to you. As I see the picture, he has a manifold responsibility to promptly and firmly undertake that delicate bit of business,—firstly, because the girl obviously presumed upon her relationship to him to "put you on a spot;" secondly, because the imbroglio she has callously created is beginning to raise hell with the family's peace and security; and thirdly, because by virtue of the quasi-parental nature of his blood kinship to her, he is strategically in the best position to bring mildly authoritarian pressure to bear, in persuading her to correct her mistake.

Wife Must Be Blunt In Defending Her Rights

If he lacks the fine discrimination and moral courage to come to your rescue in the matter;—if he refuses to concede the plain fact that it is one of his minimum duties as a loyal husband to protect you against selfish exploitation by his kinfolk,—then I feel he will have made it necessary for you to speak directly to the girl about the general advisability of her living elsewhere, if she plans to stay on here indefinitely. And I think that is exactly what you should do,—after warning him, with placid assurance, that you are going to serve "polite" notice on her to move out as quickly as possible, in the event he continues to leave you behind the eight-ball.

It will be awkward, of course, for you to take the bull by the horns (which is just another facet of the discomfort brought on you by this selfish girl); and it is probable that "bad feeling" will develop between his sister's household and yours, and possibly also between your husband and yourself, if you do act forthrightly to rid yourself of this unwelcome guest. But if the situation does take that nasty turn, your husband and his relatives will be in the wrong. You will owe them no apology for standing your ground against their tacit conspiracy to impose upon you.

She Has 'Veto' Power Concerning House Guests

Your husband must not forget,—and neither should his sister's family,—that this is YOUR home, quite as much as his; and that inasmuch as you are sole cook and bottle-washer for a large family of children, you are very definitely entitled to decide whether you shall or shall not take on the extra burden of "doing" for a permanent guest. M. H.

How to Block Wool Garments Into Shape

Sometimes a new hand-knit garment or a laundered knit garment needs blocking—light steam-pressing (without mashing)—to give a finished look. Or block this easy way: Sprinkle two heavy bath towels slightly and spread the garment between them. Cover with a board or other firm, flat surface. Weight this down and leave until the garment is dry.

Your Figure, Madame!

By Ida Jean Kain

Almost every war plant today has its quota of so-called "older" workers who are doing a grand job and are getting a kick out of doing it. They make us wonder how old is older and what are our chances of being as young when we reach their age.

There is an intensely interesting article on this subject in the May issue of Hygeia Magazine. From Anton J. Carlson, professor of physiology and chairman emeritus of that department at the University of Chicago, who wrote the article, we learn some surprising and cheering facts.

It is true, from what this eminent scientist says, that older people of today have better health and more energy and are better qualified to do useful work than they were, on the average, 100 years ago. And in 50 years from now, when it is estimated that 15 out of every 100 persons will be over 65, the fitness average will be even higher.

We have science to thank for prolonging our youth. Our scientists and doctors are not satisfied with being able to cure us when we become ill. They want to keep us from getting sick.

"While we do not know what may be the optimum diet for optimum efficiency at any age, we do know enough to say with certainty that the older worker will keep most fit by eating enough food to avoid underweight, and not eating so much food that he or she becomes overweight."

Life insurance statistics show that the life span is shortened by either extreme underweight or overweight, but Dr. Carlson says that prevention of obesity in all workers past 30 appears to be a must.

By making use of the science of nutrition, we can control weight on a diet that is high in all the protective essentials. We can cut down on the calories without missing out on the vitamins, minerals and protein we need.

One of his strongest recommendations for fitness is "moderation in all things"—which would include exercise, as well as food. For the older person, he also advises a thorough physical check-up twice a year.

This may come as a shock, but some age impairments appear as early as our 30's. As far as hearing goes, some of us begin in our 20's to lose sensitivity to tones. But there are men and women of 80 who hear as well as others in their 50's. There is a gradual narrowing of our field of vision, too. Generally speaking, after 40, the eyes adjust less quickly to dark. All the changes in the aging process are gradual. We are not young today and old tomorrow. And if we take advantage of what science is trying to teach us about keeping our health, we can hold on to our prime even longer than the generation just ahead of us—which is doing very well.

HERSHEY Hair Designer

WITH the fall of France, the mystery of the coiffure has been replaced by the simple American Hair-do that a woman can brush to beauty. The era of razor peeling is gone, the hair must be left with sufficient body to snap into position after a good brushing.

Your permanent must be adjusted so that it is neither too loose or too tight. If too loose it will not snap back; if too tight it will not be flexible at all. The setting of this snapping hair design must be placed so that the hair falls into its natural position. This means the end of finger twisting curls.

When properly cut, permanently waved and set, the hair becomes more beautiful with each succeeding day of brushing, and if you want a coiffure it can be executed with greater success than by the antiquated method of doing hair.

Your Baby And Mine

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

All persons interested in good child care are perplexed as to the reasons mothers do not take every advantage of the aid provided them from countless sources.

With small differences, all of these sources emphasize the same things, good feeding, an understanding of children, patience and love.

As Mrs. V. C. writes, "Why do mothers, when they read about what should be done for babies, always think it means someone else's baby?"

Why do they? Sometimes, one may surmise, it might be due to pure laziness. Taking care of a baby in the right way is not a lazy woman's job and those who shirk when possible would tend to slough off advice that semeed to make work for them.

Again, it may be young mothers have been imbued with the ideas of older members of their family so anything strange or unusual is repudiated by them. To a new mother, anyone who has ever had a child may seem to be an authority on baby care.

No one knows better than the mother of several how faulty is this opinion. Every thoughtful mother learns something with every child and has to hustle to keep up with the new development in both science and ideas year by year.

Mrs. V. C. continues, "Why, for instance, do mothers insist on pushing or rocking a baby carriage? Why do they sympathize with me because I have two boys?

Usually a baby reacts to being rolled or rocked in a carriage by being so entertained he is motionless and so, lying thus, it is easier for him to go to sleep.

Babies should go to sleep independently of persons or their services. Mothers who put the new baby down in his soft little bassinet, comfortably covered, will discover for themselves that he needs neither rocking nor rolling. If occasionally, a baby is restless and this small attention will quiet him, there is nothing wrong with doing it. You know a mother will do it whether anyone advises it or not. It seems natural.

As for sympathy, because you have two sons, the only idea behind that is parents long for an assortment of the sexes. But two boys or two girls born within two or three years makes an excellent start for any family.

Your suggestion that the baby who sleeps late in the afternoons and poorly after he goes to bed could be helped by waking him in the afternoon, seems to have worked well with your friends. Sometimes a baby gets off on the wrong sleeping foot and has to be helped to get adjusted to more ordinary habits.

Long, cool drinks are in order these summer days. After a busy time in your victory garden a refreshing milk drink with some crunchy cookies will tide you over until meal time. Make your between-meal snacks count. Eat foods that are not only appetizing but nourishing as well. Here's the way a Ginger Cooler will look if you make it by the receipe given today. Crunchy cookies or tempting sandwiches made of enriched white bread will also give renewed energy. This is a drink children will adore after school

Martha Ellyn

We are staying at home now on summer evenings instead of taking drives to cool spots. Those refreshing ice cream sodas, root beers and other cold drinks now have to be served in the home where we are taking our diversion.

Lemonade is always a favorite, but then every hostess should know how to make several cool drinks which she can offer to guests, neighbors and her family. Oranges can be made into a thirst-quenching drink too.

Let's see how easily some of these drinks can be made. First let's consider a Ginger Cooler. This drink will not only offer a refreshing drink but also be nourishing because of the milk and ice cream used in making it. The following recipe for Ginger Cooler is so simple to make and the beverage so delicious you will want to serve it often. Here is the recipe:

GINGER COOLER

Pour 1 cup milk into a tall chilled glass. Add a pinch of salt and stir in ½ cup ginger ale. Top with 2 to 3 tablespoons vanilla ice cream and serve immediately. Makes 1 tall glass.

If it is the flavor of oranges you especially like then make an orange quencher. It is as nutritious as it is delicious. Follow this recipe:

ORANGE QUENCH

Combine ¾ cup milk, 1 teaspoon sugar and ¼ cup orange juice. Beat until thoroughly blended. Serve chilled. Makes 1 serving. To vary it ¼ teaspoon cinnamon will provide the spicy flavor.

If you want a drink that can be kept indefinitely in the refrigerator Clove-Lemonade is such. Here is the recipe for making it:

CLOVE-LEMONADE

Mix 1 pint water with 1½ cups lemon juice, 1 teaspoon whole cloves and 2 cups sugar. Bring slowly to the boiling point and boil for 2 minutes. Cool and strain. Use 3 tablespoons of this mixture to each glass, filling up with water and ice. This drink may be kept indefinitely in the refrigerator. Mint or lemon slices may be added to the individual servings if desired.

News of the Women's Clubs

By Genevieve Reynolds

Precedence was rationed at the American Newspaper Women's Club luncheon yesterday honoring associate members. As the guests entered the Mayflower all rank has dropped. Where guests sat depended upon the number drawn from a bowl. Yet, nobody cared, as the party proceeded with fun, hilarity and good fellowship.

GENEVIEVE REYNOLDS

Over at the Women's National Democratic Club informality also was the order of the day as Mrs. Francis B. Sayre, the president, inaugurated a summer speech class. Laughing at their mistakes, yet correcting them, the members who showed up got down to the serious business of improving their oratory. Determined to carry the message of the Four Freedoms to all parts of the country, the members first are taking speech lessons so as to become effective in their interpretation.

But back to the American Newspaper Women's Club luncheon. Miss Alice Eversman, president, introduced the new officers and a few of the guests. Then the other officers in turn introduced guests and associate members, among them Mrs. Cordell Hull, wife of the Secretary of State; Mme. Espil, wife of the Argentine Ambassador; Mrs. Arthur H. Vandenberg, wife of Senator Vandenberg; Mrs. Lucile Foster McMillin, Civil Service Commissioner.

Still others were Mrs. Dolly Curtis Gann, president of the District of Columbia League of Republican Women; Mrs. Edgar Morris, Mrs. Charles Stanley White, Miss Vera Bloom, Mrs. Robert Whitney Imbrie, Mrs. Gilbert M. Hitchcock, Mrs. Rudolph Max Kauffmann, Mrs. Atherton Macondray, Mrs. John Gallan O'Laughlin, Mrs. Will Leonard Lourie, Mrs. Nellie Tayloe Ross, Mrs. Luther Sheldon, jr., Mrs. Clarence Norton Goodwin, Mrs. Arthur Ramsey and Mrs. Gann's house guest, Mrs. Anna Paulina Moore of New York City.

Mrs. Edith Sadler, department president of the American Legion Auxiliary, is the principal speaker. Others on the program include Mrs. Ethel Fowler, Mrs. Myrtle Spudis, Mrs. Rae R. Zaontz, Mrs. Ethel V. Fowler and Capt. James C. Clark.

When the annual art awards were made by the D. C. Federation of Women's Clubs Mrs. Walter Miles received first prize in the oil painting division ($25 war bond) for her panting, "Wild Flowers." Miss Minnie Briggs received first prize (book of war savings stamps) in the water color division for "Jack in the Pulpit." Honorable mention went to Mrs. Mabel Gauss for her oil painting. Mrs. Charles Morgan for her flower study in water color and to Mrs. Walter Miles for her work in the crafts.

Mrs. James H. Underwood is the fine arts department chairman of the federation.

To the Capitol Hill History Club, which contributed the most money per capita for war bonds, goes the coveted first prize oil painting. The Columbia Heights Club, which contributed the second largest sum per capita, will receive the first prize water color.

Are Women Sensible?

A propaganda campaign denying that women are sensible in dress has been launched by Mrs. Henrietta DeGoofey, noted reformer. "I understand the Brotherhood of Sensible Men has been inspired to shed coats, collars and ties because of the so-called sensible summer dress of women," Mrs. DeGoofey told her press conference yesterday. "Now, speaking for American womanhood, I want to deny emphatically this libel."

Mrs. DeGoofey

"But, Mrs. DeGoofey," protested a news photographer, "look at all the girls with bare legs——"

"No; you look at 'em!" interrupted the reformer. "It is more than I can stand to see them hobbling along in their high-heeled pumps with nothing between their hide and the leather. They no longer have even the protection of peds. And by the way, if women had any backbone or were as 'sensible' as they are depicted, they would raise Cain with the WPB or the manufacturers, or whoever it is that stopped the manufacture of peds."

Silly Shoes Versus Stiff Collars

"Furthermore, I contend that 75 per cent of the shoes worn by women are fully as uncomfortable as men's stiff collars and as unrelated to the life women lead today as were the bound feet of the Chinese women. What is worse, all the cheaper shoes, presumably for women who must be on their feet a great deal, have the highest heels, the trickiest cut-outs and the most uncomfortable lines. To get a good-looking so-called 'sensible' shoe a woman must pay through the nose. Now, if women are so emancipated in dress, why do they tolerate such a situation?"

"But think of the poor men in those long-sleeved shirts," said a girl reporter in a Gibson-girl outfit.

"Most of the long-sleeved shirts I see are on women," retorted Mrs. DeGoofey. "And why? Because long sleeves are 'smart' this summer—according to New York. Consequently we must wear long-sleeved blouses and dresses on the days when the humidity reaches 95. Is that 'sensible'?

"What else do you see all these sensible women wearing?" continued Mrs. DeGoofey. "Why, rubber girdles they have hoarded from the buying panic, and that are, without doubt, the hottest instruments of torture ever devised. Also tight rubber garters and heavy costume jewelry and birds' nests and Victory gardens in their hair. Are men burdened down with any such stuff?"

"No, but they are—or at least have been—with hot coats," remarked a Chesterfieldian correspondent for the Knobtown News.

Ladies Can't Remove Their Coats

"Yes, and there are plenty of women wearing hot coats around that they can't even take off without the police being called," replied Mrs. DeGoofey. "And all because they have fallen for that 'half a dozen dickeys to dress up your suit' line. Also look at the women sweltering in heavy rayon blouses! Why, I would as soon go around in a Turkish bath cabinet."

"But there are so many darling little cotton blouses," said an ingenue reporter.

"Where?" demanded Mrs. DeGoofey.

"We-ll er—I suppose——"

"Exactly," said Mrs. DeGoofey. "Moreover, where do you find women making any intelligent efforts to meet their summer dress problems. Tell me, do you know a woman who owns a dark, cool, washable, non-wrinkleable, nonpleated cotton dress that she does not have to resuscitate every night on the ironing board? Where do you find any women aware that they live in a virtually tropic climate in summer and hence need to adapt their apparel to it? Nowhere! That, I say, is crowning proof of their lack of sense—or, rather, sensibleness. And if any further proof is needed, I will produce it along about the fourth of July when we all come out in little black satins and crepes."

Young Chilean Authoress Here on a Literary Mission

Senorita Maria Luisa Bombal Is Also Working on New Book About Women

By Marie McNair

One novel is in the process of translation; a short story also being translated, will appear before very long in Mademoiselle; innumerable writings from her pen have been printed in magazines throughout South America. She is now at work on a new book. And yet Senorita Maria Luisa Bombal says she's lazy!

She hails from Chile, this pretty, bright-eyed young author. She's been in this country for almost eight months, dividing her time between New York and Washington, and she says she is thinking very seriously of staying here, if it can be arranged. "I love your Washington. Really, I think it is the most beautiful city I have ever seen. You see, I love trees and here there are so many. My story which will come out soon in Madamoiselle is called 'El Arbol'—that means the tree in Spanish."

Senorita Bombal came to the United States on a mission from the National Library of Chile to the Library of Congress in Washington. She is going to do something—what she hasn't yet figured out—to bring the two countries close together in a literary way. And she would like to accomplish something else while she's here. That is to make it possible for books by American authors to be sold throughout South America at prices which the average man can afford. Thoroughly familiar with many of our authors, Senorita Bombal is a great admirer of men like John Dos Passos and Erskine Caldwell. But these authors are unknown to the people in her country and in other Latin countries as well, owing to the prohibitive prices of American published books.

Senorita Bombal's latest novel is poetic in vein, touched with the romantic and through it all a thread of the metaphysical. It is called "La Amortajada" which translated mean "The Shrouded Woman" and it deals with what transpires in a woman's mind even though she is dead.

"How long were you writing the book?" I asked. "All my life," she answered with an engaging laugh. "It seems I have always been writing this book, it is that kind of a book. Why, since it was accepted by Knopf, I have added one hundred pages, and I could go on and on adding to it daily."

'Gone With the Wind' Is Great Novel

"But I'm lazy. I love to talk, to exchange ideas. I have to discipline myself in writing. My friends think it comes easily, they don't know how hard I work at it. First, I write it out in longhand, and then use the typewriter."

Her "La Amortajada," due to be on the bookstands in early autumn, won the prize in literature awarded by the Chilean government.

Frankness is one of the author's greatest charms. "I like my books," she says. "I may be very vain, but I am proud of my achievement."

Senorita Bombal is one who subscribes to the theory that all authors have bet one book which they feel must be written. What follows is simply new phases of the original plot in mind.

Mention of "Gone With the Wind" evoked a spontaneous flash of enthusiasm from the writer. "There is a truly great book. I believe it will come to be recognized as the great American novel. It has everything, something for everybody. It is epic, poetic, intelligent, and I don't agree at all with some of my friends that it is to be taken purely for light entertainment."

All of Maria Luisa Bombal's short stories are touched with tragedy. Her first book "La Ultima," was published in Argentina in 1934 and was subsequently brought out in Chile. Now an American publishing house releases all her work and second editions are printed in her own country.

New Book on Chilean Women

The women of Chile will be the subject of her next novel. Not at all like the picture we are apt to have of gay and fascinating senoritas who live only for dancing and fiestas, Senorita Bombal would like to paint a true portrait of her sex in her homeland. They are serious by nature. They reflect a great sadness make-up and they exhibit a great fortitude at all times.

When this young writer was a girl she was sent to France to be educated. A diligent student, a poetry lover, Senorita Bombal received her licence es lettres from the Sorbonne at the age of 20. She returned home and soon after went to Argentina to live, where she devoted herself to writing. Recognition of her gifts came early. In 1939 she was sent as Chilean representative to the annual meeting of the American Pen Club in New York, where she found herself the youngest of a group of men and women whose names were tops in the literary world.

Engagements

PINSON—SMITH: Mrs. Byron Eugene Pinson of Henderson, Ky., announces the engagement of her daughter, Irene Lucille, to Corpl. Everard Hall Smith, jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Smith of Washington. Corporal Smith attended George Washington University and the Washington College of Law. He is a member of Sigma Alpha Epsilon and Phi Delta Theta fraternities. The wedding will take place in Washington this month.

SULLIVAN—CARDEN: Mr. and Mrs. Walter J. Sullivan of New York have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Constance J. Sullivan, to Dr. George Alexander Carden, jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Carden, also of New York. Miss Sullivan, who is living in Washington, is the sister of Mrs. James Pomeroy Hendrick of 1327 Thirty-third Street. The bride-elect attended the Brearley School and was graduated from Bryn Mawr College. Since graduation she has studied music here and abroad and for the last year has been employed here in Government service. Dr. Carden attended Choate School and is a graduate of Yale University and Yale Medical School. He practiced in New York until a year ago, when he became associated with the National Research Council. The wedding will take place June 20 in New York and the couple will make their home at 1308 Twenty-seventh Street, Washington.

WARD—JEHLE: Mr. and Mrs. J. Garnet Ward of Hunting Hill, Md., announce the engageemnt of their daughter, Miss Jane Elizabeth Ward, to John Robert Jehle, son of Dr. and Mrs. Robert A. Jehle of Hyattsville, Md. No date has been set for the wedding. Miss Ward is a graduate of National Park College. Mr. Jehle attended the University of Maryland.

Newlyweds On Northern Wedding Trip

Currently on a wedding trip to New York and Pennsylvania, are Harold Eugene Hill, United States Army, and his bride, the former Miss Margaret Stuart Marshall.

Upon their return to Washington the bride will make her home with her mother, Mrs. John Edward Marshall, for the duration, and Mr. Hill will report for duty at his post.

Their marriage took place on June 8 at the Wallace Memorial United Presbyterian Church, with the Rev. C. E. Hawthorne officiating. The bride was given in marriage by her uncle, George E. Evans of Gainesville, Ga. Her gown was of white satin, fashioned with court train, and her finger-length veil was held by a juliet cap. She carried a bouquet of white roses.

Mrs. Malcolm Lee Padgette, jr., the matron of honor, wore blue chiffon and a headdress of blue maline and ribbon. Her flowers were yellow roses. The bridesmaids were Miss Duana Nelson and Miss Virginia Taylor, attired in pink costumes and carrying pink roses. William E. Smith served as best man, and ushering were William J. Armstrong, jr., and Gordon Crabill. Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held in the church rooms. The bridegroom is a graduate of Jefferson College.

Miss Lucinda Pratt, daughter of Col. Harold B. Pratt, U. S. M. C., is returning early next week from the College of St. Mary of the Woods in Indiana, where she has just received her degree.

Miss Royall Is Bride of James Davis

Of interest in Washington is the marriage that took place yesterday in Goldsboro, N. C., uniting Miss Margaret Best Royall and James Evans Davis.

The bride is the daughter of Col. and Mrs. Kenneth Claiborne Royall of this city and Goldsboro, and Mr. Davis is the son of Mr. and Mrs. D. Wilborn Davis of Goldsboro.

Their marriage took place in St. Stephen's Episcopal Church, with the Rev. John C. Frainger officiating. Colonel Royall gave his daughter in marriage. She wore a gown of imported white Nottingham lace, with a cap of the same lace holding a veil of illusion, and she carried a bouquet of white lilac.

Mr. Davis served his son as best man and ushers included John Lynch, William Winson, L. P. Base and Charles Diffondale. The couple will make their home in Philadelphia after a brief wedding trip.

The bride attended St. Mary's College and Gunston Hall. She received her degrees from Sweet Briar and Columbia University. Mr. Davis was graduated from the University of North Carolina and attends the University of Pennsylvania Medical School.

Dr. Concheso Returns Home From Russia

Upon his return from Russia, where he met Joseph Stalin, the fourth world leader of his acquaintance, which includes Winston Churchill, Franklin D. Roosevelt and the Axis leader, Adolph Hitler, Dr. Aurelio Concheso is back in Havana, Cuba, after having presented his credentials to the Soviet Union as Cuban Ambassador.

After a month's stay in Havana,, where Senora Concheso and their children have been since the Ambassador's journey to Kuibyshev, Doctor Concheso will return to Washington.

Capt. D. H. McKnew Goes to New Post

Leaving Washington this week for his new post at the Flight Control Command in Asheville, N. C., is Capt. Donald H. McKnew, U. S. A. A. F., and his family.

Accompanying him will be Mrs. McKnew, their daughter, Patsy, who was recently graduated from Bryn Mawr College, another daughter, Susan, who will be a senior at Madeira School in the fall, and Donald, jr. Captain and Mrs. McKnew have rented their home here for the duration.

Envoys Attend Bustamante Christening Here

In the Church of the Most Blessed Sacrament, where his parents were married, young Arturo Bustamante, jr., grandson of the Ambassador of Venezuela and Senora de Escalante, was christened at 5 o'clock yesterday.

Among those attending the ceremony and small reception that followed at the Venezuelan Embassy was the Ambassador of El Salvador, native country of the Bustamante family.

A sponsor, pale and nervous lest she should swing that traditional bottle of champagne without breaking it, trembled and swayed as she watched for the final signal . . . Thousands of workers, who had seen the keel laid less than a month ago, stood in the sizzling mid-afternoon sun to see their finished product slip down the ways with fitting pomp and ceremony . . . A white-garbed admiral, looking cooler and more collected than anyone else in the flag-draped visitors' stand, surveyed the scene as proudly—with as much interest—as if he had never seen a Liberty ship launched before.

In the final split second before the craft moved, a pin-drop quiet penetrated the fever-pitched atmosphere. Then somebody gave the signal. The sponsor swung with all her might. Applause thundered up from the throng as champagne splashed against the majestic prow of the 152d Victory Fleet ship as she moved out to sea.

These are a few highlights of the launching of the Robert J. Collier at Baltimore's Bethlehem-Fairfield Shipyard on Sunday afternoon.

Everybody Cries About It . . .

It was not "just another launching"—not for me, anyway. It was the first I had ever seen; an experience I shall never forget. Just why it was that tears rolled down my cheeks at the very moment the ship started down the ways—I cannot tell you. I know only that the tenseness of moment and the thought-in-a-flash, "There goes another eloquent symbol of American power," unleashed an emotional effluence that took me completely by surprise. Somewhat embarrassed, I glanced at others on the reviewing stand. I didn't see a dry eye anywhere. Veteran observers at launching ceremonies were as obviously moved as those of us on hand for the first time.

"It's always the same," said attractive Mrs. Howard L. Vickery, wife of the Maritime Commissioner. She has seen dozens of Liberty ships move down the ways and has also served as sponsor. "I think each time I won't cry this time . . . and I always do," she added.

Mrs. Robert J. Collier, widow of the founder of Collier's Magazine, the man for whom the boat was named, smiled through her tears. She was the sponsor for the occasion; and, by her own admission, had been "on the verge of collapse" for days . . . for fear the bottle wouldn't break, or she wouldn't swing it at the proper time, or something else would go wrong. "I'm so happy it all went well," she said, as friends clustered around to shake her hand after the ceremony was over. "You see, I've never been a sponsor before . . . and I've never seen a launching. It's all so different; so thrilling . . ."

'No Victory Without Liberty'

Doubly significant was that particular occasion; for it not only marked another big-league launching, but also a special presentation by the United States Maritime Commission to the Bethlehem-Fairfield Shipyard. Now flying over that yard is the coveted double-streamer Merit Eagle Award, first of its kind to be given to an Atlantic Coast shipyard.

With a few superbly chosen words, Admiral Howard L. Vickery, Vice Chairman of the United States Maritime Commission and chairman of the board of awards, made the presentation. Before and afterward, there were speeches. A. B. Homer, president of the shipyard, and J. M. Willis, vice president and general manager, pledged continued efforts—not for the awards that had been, and would be, received . . . but for still greater production of ships so essential to victory.

The official acceptance speech—in two parts—was given by G. J. McVicar, chairman of the Victory Production Committee, and Sheridan Albert, secretary, the latter a C. I. O. organizer, who concluded his remarks on the illuminating note that there can be "No liberty without victory . . . and no victory without liberty."

Dinner Rounds Out Events of Day

"Bethlehem-Fairfield always gives good parties," somebody whispered as the official party of guests climbed into long black limousines for the ride back to the Belvedere Hotel. The promise came true. The reception and dinner that followed in the cool top-story ballroom was a fitting climax for the afternoon's excitement. There was music; there were more speeches; there was a hasty exchange of addresses, and members of the party from New York and those from Washington promised to meet again.

Mrs. Collier, who declared the afternoon's event had been about all she could stand in one day, declined to talk at the dinner, but Thomas Beck, well-known New York publisher; Mr. Willis, Admiral Vickery and several others spoke briefly on behalf of Mrs. Collier, the Bethlehem-Fairfield Shipyard and the United States Maritime Commission.

Meanwhile, as official guests were enjoying the party that finished off the day's event, shipyard employes were back at the job again. By the time the dinner was over, another keel had been laid for another ship of the Victory Fleet. Some day!

Many Parties On Calendar For De Bayles

Busy days are ahead for the retiring Ambassador of Nicaragua, Dr. Leon de Bayle, and Senora de De Bayle who will leave Washington June 21 or 22 to return to Nicaragua.

One of the most popular couples in the Diplomatic Corps with friends the length and breadth of the town, they are being given a round of farewell parties to speed them happily on their way.

The Ambassador was honor guest at a luncheon yesterday given by Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles who entertained at the Carlton. This evening the Ambassador and Senora de De Bayle will be honor guests at a dinner at which the Ambassador of Ecuador and Senora de Alfaro will be hosts, entertaining at the Mayflower where they make their home.

Nelson Rockefeller will give a men's luncheon tomorrow for Dr. de Bayle and while that fete is in progress Senora de De Bayle will be entertained at luncheon by Senora de Recinos, wife of the Guatemalan Ambassador.

On Thursday the De Bayles will be guests of honor at a luncheon to be given at the Mayflower by the Ambassador of Honduras and Senora de Caceres and will dine that evening as guests of Paul Daniels of the State Department, and Mrs. Daniels.

Other farewell parties are a luncheon on Friday by the Mexican Ambassador and Senora de Castillo Najera at the embassy; a dinner Saturday evening to be given by Dr. and Mrs. Tomas Cajigas.

Three Washington Servicemen Take Brides in Recent Rites

Miss Martha Meteer Is Wed to Aviation Cadet George Tompkins

Three Washington servicemen took brides in ceremonies performed on Saturday.

The marriage of Miss Martha Meteer to Aviation Cadet George H. Tompkins took place in the post chapel at Williams Field, Chandler, Ariz. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Guy E. Meteer of Pascaquola, Miss., and Cadet Tompkins is the son of Brig. Gen. and Mrs. William G. Tompkins of Washington.

Cadet Tompkins is the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. George E. Hamilton of Stone Ridge, Bethesda, Md. He graduated from Tulane University and was a member of D. K. E. Fraternity. The bride attended the Sophie Newcomb College in New Orleans. Her father is vice president of the Ingalls Ship Building Co.

Wootton—Roberts

Miss Betty McMurray Roberts became the bride of Ensign William Turnor Wootton in the chapel at the United States Naval Academy, Saturday.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Roberts of Alexandria, and Ensign Wootton is the son of Mrs. John Boland Thomas of Bowie, Md. Chaplain William D. Thomas officiated at the 8 o'clock ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of duchess satin, with lace panels and circular train. Her finger-tip-length veil was of illusion and she carried a bouquet of white roses and orchids. Matron of honor was Mrs. Douglas H. Pugh, wearing pale yellow chiffon and carrying white roses. Miss Helen Pozzelles, the maid of honor, was attired in dusty pink chiffon, and the bridesmaid, Miss Helen Kunkel, wore aqua chiffon. Midshipman Palmer H. Rixey served as best man and ushers were Ensign John Trautman and Ensign Mac Maisorf, and Midshipmen Walter Lessman, Thomas Moran John Wash and John Mascenik.

A reception followed at the Annapolis Inn and the couple left later for a wedding trip to New York. They will make their home in Jacksonville, where the bridegroom is stationed.

The bride is a graduate of Mary Washington College and George Washington University. Ensign Wootton attended Randle Preparatory School and the Naval Academy.

Murphy—Talley

Now on a wedding trip to Ocean City, Md., are Pvt. Russell Monroe Murphy and his bride, the former Miss Evelyn Elizabeth Talley.

Their marriage took place in the Silver Spring Baptist Church at 4 o'clock on Saturday, with the Rev. J. Wesley Loftis officiating. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wayland Winfield Talley of Silver Spring, and Private Murphy is the son of Mrs. Glen Murphy of Bishops Head, Md.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white crepe, trimmed in white braid, a fingertip-length veil held by a tiara of seed pearls and carried a Testament and a bouquet of white roses. Miss Marjorie Talley, her sister's maid of honor, was costumed in yellow marquisette, with hat to match, and carried an old-fashioned bouquet. Miss Gloria Talley, the bridesmaid, was attired in white organdy worn over blue silk with matching hat. Sergt. William Wonneberger served as best man and ushers included Stanley Keyser and Marcus Rolls.

Katherine Perry Becomes Bride

The marriage of Miss Katherine Perry to Lieut. Stanley L Olinick, U. S. A. M. C., took place yesterday at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Edmund Ziman.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Perry and Lieutenant Olinick is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Maury S. Olinick of Fall River, Mass.

Purely Personal

Sir Owen Dixon, Minister of Australia, who has been on a trip to Australia, is expected to arrive in Washington tomorrow. He will be joined at the legation by Lady Dixon who remained in this country during Sir Owen's absence.

Mme. Ciechanowska, wife of the Polish Ambassador, entertained a small group informally at tea yesterday afternoon at the embassy.

Mrs. Hamilton Wright entertained at luncheon on Sunday at the Mayflower in honor of Air Marshal Sir William Welsh.

Miss Dorothy Ann Ellis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Luther Ellis, has arrived in Washington to be with her parents for a ten-day visit before entering summer school at Northwestern University, where she has just completed her sophomore year. Miss Ellis has been elected business manager of the University Year Book, the Syllabus, and has also been elected to the honor society for junior women. She is a member of Pi Beta Phi sorority.

Miss Katy Kasehagen of Chicago, has been the guest of her sister-in-law, Mrs. Leo Kasehagen, for a week and after a visit to her brother, Felix Kasehagen in Wilmington, N. C., she will return to Washington for another visit to Mrs. Kasehagen.

Bride-Elect Is Honor Guest at Buffet Luncheon

Miss Jeanne Kathryn Sorenson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Michael Sorenson, who will be married tomorrow to Lieut. Walter George Mitchell, U. S. A., was the guest in whose honor Miss Jane Wyatt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Wyatt, entertained at a buffet luncheon yesterday.

Other guests were Mrs. Walter Bastian, jr., who will be an attendant at the wedding; Mrs. Richard F. Cooper, Mrs. John Davies, jr., Miss Selma Ertegun, Miss Christina Michaels, Miss Indina Inthorathut, Miss Chentana Naganajara, Miss Nancy King, Miss Jean Sexton, Miss Virginia Wagner Birdsey, Miss Mary Howard Gillespie, Miss Barbara Simons, Miss Jane Wrather, Miss Anne St. Claire.

Stars Continue to Shine For the Men in Uniform

COME HEAT, high water or taxes, the cinema stars carry on and see to it that the men in uniform get their entertainment.

Which is by way of hinting that eight notables of the screen have volunteered for amusement service around the military posts the last two weeks in June, under the expansive auspices of USO-Camp Shows.

CAROLE LANDIS

Making her first personal appearance tour since her famous junket overseas with Mitzi Mayfair, Martha Raye and Kay Francis, Carole Landis will tour the Mississippi camp area, opening at the Jackson Army Air Base today.

Edgar Kennedy will play throughout the Southwest as another "Camp Show single," opening tomorrow at Fort Bliss, El Paso, Tex. Grace McDonald, also trouping alone, will cover the Middle West posts, beginning June 21 at the Dodd City AAF Facility, Kans., and closing July 3, at Fort Crook, Nebr.

Guy Kibbee will guest-star with the musical revue, "Show Time at the Roxy," and Anna Lee will tour California, guesting with "The Crazy Show" unit, which seems as inappropriate as possible, what with her fragile English beauty and all, which has never struck us as being even a little "crazy."

George Tobias will travel with the "Breezing Along" revue, in the New York military area, and Marjorie Main and Donald Meek, as a comedy team—and what a "wow" they should be!—will jaunt through the West with "The Band Wagon."

So, if you have been worrying about that vacation, just don't give it a thought! The movie people don't.

⁂

Speaking of vacations, this seems to be the open season for the Freres La Falce, actual and erstwhile factotums in the publicity department of the local Warner Brothers organization. The senior Frank is two-weeking with hammer and hoe on his Virginia place and I see by the note on the desk that the junior Rick has been furloughing from his duties with the colors and dropped by to say howdy, just after I'd stepped out of the door, or window, or something. "Hope to see you next time the bars get rusty on the cage," was the message.

An Author Takes Time Out

On the letterhead of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, dated Culver City, Calif., June 9:

"Dear Mr. Bell: I have just read your review of my picture, 'Bataan.' I say 'my picture' because I began writing the story and script while the Battle of Bataan was still going on—and for months after that I wasn't sure the picture would ever be made; and yet it seemed to me, honestly, that there were things that had to be said about Bataan. Thanks to Metro, and Tay Garnett, and Dore Schary—anonymous as the Executive Producer, but actually the one person who made production of 'Bataan' possible—we're on the screen now with all I had to say.

"It remains, now, to see if audiences wanted it to be said in our terms. And reviews like yours are my best hope that audiences will listen and understand.

"It's not often that a writer in pictures feels he should or can write to a critic. But I felt this letter should be writen. Thank you very much. Yours, Robert D. Andrews."

Pvt. Maurice Manson, director of the Washington Workshop production of "It's Up to You," announces that he has completed the sizable chore of casting the living-newspaper-with-trimmings that will be opening for its first extended Washington run in the Department of Agriculture Auditorium toward the end of the month. In addition to those already announced, those taking part in this musicalization of the food problem will include Ruth Cohn, War Production Board; Joseph D. Hillery, Office of Civilian Defense; Gene Cortez, Federal Works Agency; Edna Marge O'Rourke, Department of Agriculture; Bonnie Mary Neeley, War Department; Carolyn J. Gustofson, a Navy wife; Pvt. Paul J. Showstack, U. S. Army; Yeoman Johnson Smith Townley, U. S. Coast Guard, and Donald M. Bower, Ronnie Gilbert, Byron Rash and Walter Robbins. The youngest member of the cast is Elaine Joyce Sperling, 13-year-old daughter of Mrs. Edith Brusiloff Sperling, who, like her mother, will impersonate two characters in the piece.

⁂

I see by a presumably authentic bulletin that Mme. Alla Nazimova, distinguished actress of both stage and screen, will be returning to the cameras to appear as Paul Henreid's mother in the Warner Brothers' production of "In Our Time," in which Henreid will be costarred with Ida Lupino. The "presumably authentic, etc.," goes on to say that this will be Nazimova's first screen appearance in two years, her last having been in "Blood and Sand." Our guess would have been that it was in "Escape," three years ago, but we don't see them all.

The-City-That-Grows-In-a-Night Note

'Russian' Troop Sets Indoor Record

Hollywood—Hans Georg, noted Swiss professional, and a group of southern California champions recently set some kind of a skiing record at Warner Bros., where they portrayed Russian ski troops for scenes for "Mission to Moscow." Their skiing was done on Stage 8 at the Burbank lot, where Director Michael Curtiz had created a precipitate, sleek slope by grinding 39 tons of ice into snow, the ski run extending a total distance of about 200 feet.

Director and Stars Ride the Buses

Director-writer Preston Sturges, Betty Hutton, Eddie Bracken, Diana Lynn and all the other actors in "The Miracle of Morgan's Creek" were bus riders to and from work. When they worked on location at the Paramount Ranch every day for a period of several weeks, the whole cast and crew went out at the same time and returned to the studio together in two huge buses. This single round-trip a day keeps use of tires and gasoline at the absolute minimum.

Joan Goes A-Visiting

Hollywood, Calif., June 14.—Joan Crawford certainly didn't waste any time after she'd received Metro's permission to do an outside picture. She was seen lunching at Warners, and I'm told she'll do "Ethan Frome" for them. It was bought for Bette Davis. Well, one good picture will put Joan right back where she was before she made the last two at Metro. She was suspended for refusing to play "Cry Havoc" . . . If Frank McHugh is signed up by Twentieth Century as a director and actor, it will be because Merle Oberon put on the pitch for him with Joe Schenck. She thinks he's wonderful. So do I . . . Jean Parker will start her divorce action against Douglas Dawson in a few weeks. Then, 'tis said, she'll wed Curtis Grotter . . . Many friends think Norma Hall and Eddie Norris are secretly wed. Eddie was once married to Ann Sheridan . . . Now that Ben Blue has bought Maxie Rosenbloom's night club, Maxie's leaving for Washington, hoping to get into the army as a trainer.

JOAN CRAWFORD

About Time

Things are moving fast for Lynn Bari. I wrote that Michael Todd would star her in "The Ghost in the Woodpile" on Broadway. Well, the moguls read that, and then listened to the rave of Artist Arthur William Brown, who said, "Miss Bari sure has what it takes." Then they went into action, so now she's not going to New York, and Bill LeBaron will give her the lead in "Bird of Paradise." I like what a Marine from Quantico, Va., wrote about her, too: "Last night 'Hello, Frisco, Hello' was here. Why, O why, do they waste Lynn Bari in such roles as she had in this? If some smart Hollywood producer could have heard the O's and ah's, when she made her appearance, maybe he'd give her a decent part. It took her entrance to make the boys sit up and take notice." Well, wait till they see her in "Bird of Paradise."

What Price Magic?

Orson Welles will put on a couple of benefits of his magic show so civilians can see it, too. He may take it up to San Francisco, I said. "Any one would pay $5 to see you cut Rita Hayworth in two—or fall on your face, Orson." And he came back with, "Don't you think that would be worth 10? . . . Claudette Colbert's making two trailers at Twentieth Century—one for the Variety Clubs of America to help raise funds to build a hospital for premature babies, and the other for the Red Cross drive which is soon coming up. After which, she'll take a little holiday in New York. Leo McCarey will snip out the sequence for a live gorilla he wrote into "The Padre." He finds there are only 16 in the country, and nobody wants to lend. They're too precious and they catch cold easily.

Nice Going

I'd like to tip my topper to a little lady, Joan Leslie, who's 18 and who is to be graduated from high school on the twenty-third. She's played opposite such stars as Fred Astaire, Jimmy Cagney, Humphrey Bogart, Dennis Morgan, and never has felt it necessary to get publicity through whipping up a false romance or a touch of scandal. Hers is an example that should be followed by our other screen youngsters. . . . Chuck Mitchell, Gene Lester's assistant with the camera and flash bulbs, is being tested by Harry Rapf at Metro for an acting contract. . . . Tony De Marco's getting up. He's done 10 pictures without speaking a word. Now he's going to be allowed to say "Hello." . . . Virginia Van Upp's next will be "Gone Are the Days" for Harry Cohn.

He's Mighty Grateful

Eddie Cantor tells me that through a little story I wrote about his collecting funds for refugee children of foreign countries to be sent to Palestine, he's received more than $600—the largest check being $25 and the smallest $2 . . . More than half the guests at Eddie's twenty-ninth wedding anniversary saw the Cantors married. They had the same food, only more of it. Jack Benny was a great audience. George Burns a great entertainer. But it was Danny Kaye and Dinah Shore who licked the cream off the top, with Jimmy McHugh playing practically every song that ever had been written. What a memory! . . . Sheldon Leonard, acting as bus boy at the Hollywood Canteen, was cleaning off a table at which a group of soldiers sat. One of them said, "Didn't I see you in 'Lucky Jordan'?" "That's right," said he. "And many other films," added the soldier. "Gosh! And now you're working here, cleaning off tables. Gee! Things must be tough in Hollywood."

Loose-Leaf Notebook

New York, June 14.

FOREIGN DISPATCH: An American pilot who flies for Winston Churchill was given a two-week leave while they both were in this country. The pilot and his crew therefore flew the plane to San Francisco, where the pilot lives . . . No sooner were they all settled at a table at Fisherman's Wharf and prepared to partake of the rare sea food there, a message was delivered to them: "The Prime Minister wants you in London at Tuesday noon." This was on a Sunday morning . . . They canceled their sea food orders, rushed to the plane and flew across the continent and the ocean. Tuesday, at noon, the weary pilot appeared at 10 Downing Street. Churchill greeted him and said: "Now we'll have lunch" . . . Then came the awful truth: Churchill had forgotten about the two-week leave he gave the pilot and thought he was somewhere in London. That's why the Prime Minister had instructed his secretary to reach the pilot, just to invite him to lunch.

MOVIES: For a few days last week, Deanna Durbin, the screen star, worked at the Vega aircraft shop near Hollywood—to save her film studio the expense of building a factory set for her new picture, "Hers to Hold," in which she plays the role of a defense worker. So that the other workers would continue without the interruption which would have resulted from their natural curiosity, they were told that the cameramen were shooting scenes for a Government short.

⁂

EDUCATION DEPARTMENT: A British naval attache visited the Washington home of Col. Ed Kirby. "I say, sir," the attache began, "what is your native drink? I'd like to try it" . . . Colonel Kirby offered him some Bourbon and the navy officer drank it with a Scotch chaser. He tried it a second time, and than a third. "Well, how do you like our native drink?" asked Colonel Kirby . . . "Let's put it this way," the Britisher replied. "I came here by plane, flying the Great Circle. I thought I'd see Chicago, but the shades had to be drawn as we approached the city, so I never saw Chicago. Then I thought I'd see New York, but the shades were drawn as we neared the city. The same thing happened when we flew to Washington, and I never saw your Capital. And now, dammit, sir, I'm in your house—and I cannot see you."

⁂

POLITICS: This is a story told at Guadalcanal—of a new arrival who admired a souvenir necklace of Jap army emblems worn by a veteran Marine. "How can I get a necklace like that?" asked the newcomer . . . "It's easy,' the veteran explained. "Go into the jungle, get into a foxhole and holler: 'Hirohito is a soandso.' A Jap'll run at you, then knock him off" . . . The newcomer went into the jungle, but returned empty-handed. "Didn't you see any Japs?" the veteran asked him . . . "I did," replied the newcomer, "I dug a foxhole and yelled 'Hirohito is a soandso.' Then a big Jap jumped up in front of me and hollered 'Roosevelt is a soandso.' Well, man, I just didn't have the heart to shoot a fellow Republican."

⁂

TRAVEL DEPARTMENT: This is the ritual performed by Churchill during long flights. He awakens early, done an old robe, lights a cigar and moves to the front of the plane where he takes the place of the copilot. His valet enters, bringing some medicine. Churchill holds it in his hand—and the valet duly retires. Then the Prime Minister tosses the medicine away. The valet duly reappears. Churchill makes a wry face, as if he had swallowed the bitter medicine, then puffs his cigar and pilots the plane until he's called away to breakfast.

⁂

LOCAL NEWS: Daniel Arnstein, who was the United States Commissioner to the Burma Road and whose talents as a traffic expert saved 100,000 tons of armaments from falling into Jap hands, will return to the Orient shortly . . . Sylvia Bury, the 22-year-old school teacher who became the leading lady of the movie, "Corvette K-225," spurned a long-term contract, returned to Canada and enlisted in the WRENS . . . Now that Artie Shaw has gone to sea, his Navy band at Pearl Harbor has been taken over by Claude Thornhill . . . The Air Force doesn't expect Moss Hart to waste any time writing his play for them. A desk has been installed in his bomber.

Two Way Jiffy Crochet

By Alice Brooks

Wear this pert crocheted hat with its ruffle skirting your curls or standing up behind your pompadour. The dainty flowers that trim the hat are laid end-to-end to make the bag. Use straw yarn or two strands of cotton. So inexpensive—so quickly made! Pattern 7579 contains directions for hat and purse; stitches; materials needed.

To obtain this pattern send 11 cents in coins to The Washington Post Household Arts Dept., 259 W. Fourteenth Street, NEW YORK, N. Y. Write plainly name, address and pattern number.

It's About Time

By Dolores Boland

IT'S ABOUT TIME to start a habit which will give your supply of linens equal wear. Place freshly laundered sheets, towels, etc., at the BOTTOM of each pile instead of on top. You might try this with the children's underwear and shirts too.

Care Extends Life of Washer

Washing machines will not win the war but they play an important part in boosting home morale and conservation by helping to wash clothes clean. If they are to keep up this good work they need proper handling. The proverbial ounce of precaution will save wear and tear and essential war materials that might otherwise be needed for repairs.

According to a United States Government bulletin, the first rule is to become familiar with the manufacturer's directions. Different machines have different capacities and overloading may not only spoil the wash but strain the motor or blow a fuse. Too much or too little water may also cause trouble. Enough soap to make a 2-inch standing suds is usually sufficient but more may be added if the suds die.

Do—
Don't choose sleazy, clinging fabric, bold stripes.

Potatoes Back In Market To Stay

Potatoes as well as the circus are in town this week. But, what is more,we think the potatoes are here to stay. The market reporter of the U. S. Department of Agriculture says that the supply is liberal and probably will increase. You can expect to find potatoes of all sizes, more of the round whites than the Red Bliss and all at a slightly lower wholesale price.

Pennsylvania and New Jersey will no doubt start to ship more broccoli to offset the dwindling supply of asparagus. At the present time the broccoli supply is light but very good, and moderate in price. Menu planners can count on lots of green beans but very little sweet corn until the nearby areas get into full swing with their shipments. There is a price and size difference between Western and locally grown green peas. The California peas are high in price and large in size, while those grown nearby are smaller and more reasonable. Very good cabbage is selling at ceiling prices and the heads are so large that they would be a good buy for the large family.

You will find liberal supplies of the bunch vegetables, such as turnips, beets, spring onions and radishes . . . all very good quality and reaosnably priced. Now is the time to serve kale and collards to your family. Since the spring variety of these greens is so much more tender than the other you might be able to convert more of the family to the joys of eating greens. Spinach, rape, mustard greens and turnip tops, as well as collards and kale, come in fresh every day from nearby farms and sell for a reasonable price.

It would be a good idea to start getting more of your vitamin C from the raw salad greens and fresh tomatoes, because there are fewer oranges and they are selling at the ceiling prices. You will have no trouble filling your salad bowl with tomatoes, cucumbers, lettuce and romaine, and they are all good buys.

Strawberries are on their way out, but the cling peach, Cuba pineapple and Florida watermelon are all new arrivals and still priced for the carriage trade. Cantaloupe is rather high, too, but there is lots of good rhubarb and the price is most attractive.

Cut-Outs For Fun and Decoration

Making something out of nothing gives one a fine glow of achievement, especially these days when we're all conscious of the rebirth of old-time frugality—and finding the going more fun than we expected. And making something beautiful and eye-filling out of snips of paper, sharp scissors and paste is not only following in the tried and true footsteps of an ancient art known as decoupage but is a fine way to solve the problem of a hobby-gone-to-war. This is the art of decorating trays, furniture, boxes, screen and panels with designs cut out of paper and pasted on. If priorities have cut deep gaps in your leisure time homework (such as photography), and might turn your hand to this ancient art and achieve not only beauty—but practical results too.

You can go through your collection of old bird or flower prints, menus, music, valentines and samples of pretty wall paper and see if they don't suggest decorative ideas. Sharp, sharp scissos are necessary, as well as rounded nail scissors for particular detail, glue, shellac and infinite patience.

Right now you may be wondering what to do with all these tools, but let your eye wander about your home and your imagination will do the rest. For example, make a gay fireplace camouflage for summer living out of a piece of wall-board cut to fit the opening of pour fireplace; decorate this with a magnificent decoupage flower bouquet to hide the fireplace opening—and to bring summer indoors. There is no limit to the exotic effects you can achieve; with a sort of mad abandon you can mix your flowers with never a thought of climate, season or chemistry. Or try your hand at decoupage decoration for that three-way screen you've found so many uses for lately—or perk up an old dresser with a sort of Daliesque design of drooping stocking and lace underthings, an alarm clock and a time table, a crazy enough notion to appeal to your teen-age daughter!

You won't achieve true decoupage, of course, unless you are willing to spend hours and infinite pains in the doing—conceiving your designs beforehand, cutting with meticulous care, pasting as neatly as possible and covering all with a protective coat of shellac. Your first attempts may be on the messy side, but persistence will bring fun—and good results, too.

Baby Photos May Be Sent By V Mail Now

That servicemen may see in photographs the babies they have never seen in person, existing V-mail regulations have been amended to permit transmission of such pictures, the War Department announced yesterday.

V-mailing of photographs of children under one year of age of soldiers serving overseas or children born after their fathers had gone on overseas duty has been approved. The pictures may include mothers or other persons holding the child.

Amendment of regulations will mean, for instance, The Washington Post may V-Mail to servicemen duplicates of its Victory Baby features, which appear every Sunday on the Service Page. Heretofore copies of Victory Baby pictures had to be sent by regular mail, as the best permissible service.

Under the new ruling, baby pictures may be transposed to a V-Mail form providing the regulation form is not altered, treated or sensitized in any way. The photograph will be limited in size to not more than one-third of the space on the V-Mail form and must appear in the upper left portion of the space in order to prevent creasing. Usual personal messages may be transcribed in the space remaining.

Woman Indicted For Harboring Army Deserter

In one of 25 indictments returned yesterday by the District grand jury to Justice Matthew F. McGuire in District Court, Miss Helen Schramm, 25, 1303 Kenyon Street Northwest, was charged with harboring a deserter from the Army.

Assistant United States Attorney Sylvan Schwartz, who presented the indictments to the grand jury, said that the soldier had deserted from Fort Belvoir, Va., and had been concealed from military authorities by Miss Schramm.

An indictment for forging and uttering was handed up against Lila Stewart, 27, Negro, who was employed as a maid at 1312 Sixteenth Street Northwest.

Other indictments returned yesterday were: Housebreaking—Joseph W. Cooper. Housebreaking and larceny—Bernard Johnson, Joseph T. Martin, Emmett Miller, Joseph Jackson. Grand larceny—William G. Hubbard, Robert Young, James Hawkins, Atlean Milladge. Arson—Atlean Milladge. Robbery—Carlton Jones, Paul Gadson, Gertrude Clementa, Joy riding—Arnold E. Diggs, James A. Howard, Adolphus C. Davis, Douglas R. Stewart, Oswald G. Addison. Violation of the Selective Service Act—Nathan Auerbach, Dock Lee. Perjury—William J. Chipman. Carnal knowledge—Charles H. Gaskins.

Senate Group Starts Study of D. C. Budget Today

A subcommittee of the Senate Appropriations Committee will start hearings today on the $54,789,434 District appropriation bill for the fiscal year 1943-44 which passed the House a few weeks ago.

Senator O'Mahoney (Democrat) of Wyoming, chairman of the subcommittee, will hear the District Commissioners and department heads at an executive session today.

Spokesmen for civic organizations and others will be called at later sessions, although it is expected that all hearings will be brief because the bill carries funds for the fiscal year beginning July 1.

The bill provides for the appointment by the President of a people's counsel before the Public Utility Commission and allots a salary of $7500 a year to the post.

11 O'Clock Curfew Is Urged for D. C. By Busnessmen

A curfew which would make it unlawful for children to be on the streets after 11 p. m. was urged by the Southeast Business Men's Association last night meeting at 314 Pennsylvania Avenue Southeast.

Under the proposed law, pointed to curb juvenile delinquency, parents whose children are found guilty of violating the curfew, would be arraigned in court and subject to a fine. The unit placed emphasis on the fact that many young girls frequent beer parlors and later conduct themselves unbecomingly with servicemen after the parlors close.

The association also went on record asking for a junior high school at Thirtieth Street and Pennsylvania Avenue Southeast and construction of a bridge across the Anacostia River in line with Massachusetst Avenue.

Lieut. Col. Tufts Heads Emergency Welfare Service

The appointment of Lieut. Col. William O. Tufts, Reserve Corps, Washington manager of Rand, McNally & Co., as chief of emergency welfare services of the District Department of Civilian Defense was announced yesterday by H. C. Whitehurst, director of the District Civilian Defense.

Colonel Tufts, who served in World War I, is chairman of the budget committee of the Community Chest, and has long been active in welfare work. His new post, which he will occupy without compensation, covers the casualty information service, the civilian war assistance program, rehousing, and maintains close cooperation with the Evacuation Authority.

Also, he will coordinate the facilities of private welfare agencies during emergencies, it was said.

OWI Stages Black Market Film in Court

Lights and cameras, gesticulating directors, actors and sound recording engineers cluttered Judge Armond Scott's courtroom in Municipal Court yesterday.

The judge wasn't there, of course; he had agreed to give the courtroom over for the day to the motion picture division of the OWI which was shooting scenes for a movie short depicting the operations of the meat black market, from its inception to the prosecution of the malefactors.

In charge of the unit was William Castle, who is on leave from Columbia Pictures. He is assisted by David Lyon of the motion picture division of OWI, with technical advice being supplied by William H. Wells of the OPA.

OWI officials said yesterday that this was one of the first times an attempt has been made to dramatize an episode dealing with the war effort, explaining that previous movie shorts have been done on a documentary basis.

Yesterday's courtroom scene was concerned with the prosecution of five violators of the price ceiling regulations and manipulators of the black market.

The prosecutor swung into his part as though he were perfectly familiar with it, as indeed he was. Harry W. Jones, assistant general counsel in charge of food enforcement, took the part of the prosecutor. George B. Davis, senior attorney on the legal staff of OPA, played the role of judge—and looked the part.

Government workers, who have acted in amateur theatricals or have had some professional experience, handled other roles.

Contract Awarded For School Addition

A $64,817 contract for construction of a temporary addition to the James G. Birney School, Nichols Avenue between Sumner and Howard Roads Southeast, has been awarded to John Tester & Sons, Inc., 1427 I Street Northwest, the Commissioners announced yesterday.

Shoe Rush Overwhelms Salesmen

Washington shoe dealers mopped their brows yesterday and muttered "The sooner the 15th is over the better," as they attempted to cope with the biggest shoe-buying wave in hisory.

Sales have grown steadily each day, reaching a new peak yesterday, while coupon hoarders tried to convert No. 17 coupons into shoes before they become void at midnight today. Meanwhile stocks, especially in white shoes, were disappearing at an alarming rate with no anticipation of immediate replacements.

Unique Situation

"We've never seen anything like it," A. S. Misell, manager of the Queen Quality Boot Shop, 1221 F Street Northwest, said yesterday. "And tomorrow will be worse." He commented that when the store opened shortly before 10 a. m, yesterday, a line of 125 customers had already formed. The door of the shop was locked all day.

"Rationing has been a great boon to the shoe business," noted John J. Carroll, manager of John Ward Men's Shoes, 1327 F Street Northwest. He explained that his store had never received such great demands before rationing went into effect last February, adding that shipments weren't coming in quickly enough to supplant rapidly dwindling merchandise.

Last week's rush was terrific at Ross-Saturn, 1323 Connecticut Avenue Northwest, but "it's getting even worse every day," said William Ross, manager. "We always carry a large stock, but it's going rapidly. Our white shoes are practically gone."

No shoe exchanges will be allowed after today at Artcraft, 1101 Connecticut Avenue Northwest, a policy which has been instituted in many other District stores as a safeguard against customers who are buying anything available while their coupons are still valid with plans for exchange later.

Dealers, meanwhile, are wondering how soon adequate merchandise will be available to care for No. 18 shoe coupons which become valid tomorrow. The new stamp will have to last four and one-half months, through October 31.

White House Photographers Open News Picture Contest

Some of the best news and action photographs made in Washington since Pearl Harbor were shown yesterday in the National Press Club auditorium at a judging of the first annual White House News Photographers Association contest.

Representing the work of member "photogs" from newspapers, magazines and news services all over the country and abroad assigned to cover the Nation's Capital, the pictures cover a variety of subjects as exciting as the people and events brought here by a year and a half of war.

Nomura and Kurusu, the Japanese "goodwill" team, are pictured as they sat in the State Department, tensely studying their timepieces on Sunday afternoon, December 7, 1941. Another photograph shows them several hours later, their wait rewarded, leaving the State Department in a cloud of grieved surprise.

Elsewhere in the exhibit, John L. Lewis yawns in boredom with War Labor Board proceedings; the bodies of the six Nazi saboteurs leave the firing squad in an Army ambulance, while armed soldiers stand guard; Mme. Chiang Kai-shek addresses Congress, and a homeless family drifts helplessly on a raft during the Potomac floods last fall.

Judges were Alexander F. Jones, managing editor of The Washington Post; Ben McKelway, executive editor of the Evening Star; John O'Rourke, managing editor of the Daily News; Franklin Fisher of the National Geographic Society, and Bernard Harter of the Times-Herald. They agreed that the general excellence of the contestants made judging difficult. Three winning pictures, however, were selected in each of three groups—sports, feature and spot news, and one grand prize winner was chosen from among these.

Winners will be announced at the opening of a public exhibit of White House News Photographers Association pictures to be held in the promenade of the Mayflower Hotel, June 24 through 29, when Vice President Wallace will make the awards of a trophy for the grand prize winner and plaques for the other winning contestants.

This public exhibit will show, in addition to the photographs submitted in the contest, a group of the most exciting war action pictures to come out of the fighing on all fronts.

Victory Sidelights

Authority Of Auxiliary Police Fixed

Conditions under which auxiliary police may arrest persons, and periods during which they may officially serve, were explicitly outlined in a manual released yesterday by the Commissioners prior to distribution to the auxiliary force.

1. During emergencies created by enemy action as specified by the Director of Civilian Defense for the District.

2. When in the company of, and acting under the immediate direction, of a member of the Metropolitan Police Force, or

3. To enforce the regulations under the Blackout Act, or

"4. In such cases where private citizens possess the power to arrest."

Further, it was specied that no auxiliary policeman shall carry firearms without first having obtained authority from the Commissioners, under recommendation of the Major and Superintendent of the Metropolitan Police Force.

Medical attention will be provided the men only for injuries sustained in the line of duty, that is, during blackouts and air raid alerts, practice and otherwise, and emergencies created by enemy action, and periods of advanced training.

Social Security Topic

"Social Security for the Returning Former Serviceman" will be discussed by Dr. Ewan Clague, director, Bureau of Employment Security, Social Security Board, tonight at 8 o'clock at Cooley-McCullough Post's headquarters, 2437 Fifteenth Street Northwest.

Election of delegates to the department convention will be held and officers will be nominated.

Volunteers Needed

At least 450 more volunteers—men, women, and school children from 12 years of age—are needed to assist the OPA in the distribution of Number 3 Ration Book, Mrs. Harry S. Bernton, chief of the Civilian Defense Volunteer Office, declared yesterday.

The work is clerical and includes sealing, folding and checking of ration books, she reported. For further information call the Civilian Defense Volunteer Office, Republic 5105, or visit the CDVO branch booth on Post Square.

Ration Board Head Jailed for Sale Of Gas Coupons

Hartford, Conn., June 1 (AP).—Charles E. Ganter, 39, former chairman of the Marlborough Rationing Board, was carried from the United States District Court today in a faint after Judge J. Joseph Smith sentenced him to nine months in a Federal prison on charges of violating gasoline rationing regulations.

Ganter was convicted of possessing 56 sheets of C coupons, sale of 25 sheets of B and C coupons for $1 a sheet and sale of 14 sheets of C coupons for $1.50 a sheet.

Deadline Tonight for Dad Contest

Midnight tonight is the deadline for mailing nominations for the ideal father in Washington and its vicinity to the Father's Day editor—and the lucky winner will be chosen immediately in celebration of Father's Day Sunday.

Meanwhile the letters continue to pile up, from as far afield as Brandywine and Accokeek, Md., and Alexandria, as well as from the District and its more immediate suburbs.

From 11-year-old Roberta G. of Accokeek comes this description of her choice for the ideal dad:

"I believe I have the best father in the world. I have two sisters and two brothers. We all get the same. He's never bought something for one that he hasn't bought something for the rest of us. He's always been fair and square with us. If we are sick we go to the doctor. He gets us the medicine the doctor advises no matter the cost. He's always gotten us things for school, home and for piano lessons each week. He goes to work each day, rain or shine it doesn't matter. He's always supplied our needs. That's why I think he's the best father in the world."

Said J. W. P. of his dad:

"My father is the most even-tempered and the most kindly mind that I have even seen. Never have I heard him raise his voice in anger at my mother or the children, of whom there are five. When he speaks to us to correct us he does so with an understanding manner and a calm voice. When he is at home he is always 'fixin'' something either in or out of the house. This may be telling on him but he can cook, scrub and sew, too!

"He is always busy. Besides his regular job he finds time to visit the sick and cheer them with verse and song. He rules the house with love and will go to his children any hour, anywhere if they need him. He does not smoke or drink.

"He is a veteran of World War I and has taught us the fundamentals of being a soldier. Both my brother and I expect to join the colors this year."

OFFICIAL NOTICES 5

COMMISSIONERS OF THE DISTRICT OF Columbia, June 9, 1943. Notice is hereby given that under authority granted in Public Act No. 307, approved December 15, 1932, authorizing the closing of streets, roads, highways and alleys in the District of Columbia, and in accordance with the provisions of an item authorizing changes in the permanent system of highways contained in D. C. Appropriation Act for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1914 (Public Act No. 435, 62nd Congress), approved March 4, 1913, as amended by an Act approved April 30, 1926 (Public Act No. 158, 69th Congress), the Commissioners of the District of Columbia will give a public hearing in the Board Room in the District Building, Washington, D. C., on MONDAY, June 28, 1943, at 10 o'clock a. m. to interested property owners to determine as to any property rights which may be affected or as to the equity, justice or advisability of closing the streets, roads and alleys, and concerning the proposed changes in the permanent system of highways, all in the District of Columbia and described as follows: 1. Closing of streets and alleys in the Fort Reno area. Northwest section, bounded by Chesapeake Street, Nebraska Avenue, Fessenden Street and Belt Road, including a transfer of jurisdiction to the Commissioners, D. C., for the widening of Chesapeake Street between De Russey and Sheridan Streets, N.W. 2. Closing of streets and old roads in Piney Branch Parkway, U. S. Reservation No. 339, in the Northwest section, which includes the closing of parts of 14th Street Road, 17th Street, Spring Road and Mt. Pleasant Street in the area west of 16th Street and south of Shepherd Street, N.W. 3. Closing of streets, roads and alleys in the Fort Stanton Park area, Southeast section, which includes the closing of parts of 16th Street, 17th Street, 18th Street, 18th Place, 19th Place, 20th Street, Butler Street, Stanton Road, W Street, Grand View Place, Harrison Place, Capitol View Place, City View Place, Naylor Road and 27th Street; and the closing of parts of alleys and old roads in this area: including a transfer of jurisdiction to the Commissioners, D. C., for a connecting street between 15th and 16th Streets through Square 5797. 4. Closing of 30th Street between Hillcrest Drive and V Place, S.E., W Place between Hillcrest Drive and 31st Street, S.E., and closing public alleys in Square 5657, including a transfer of jurisdiction to the Commissioners, D. C., for a public alley in said Square 5657. 5. Closing of the part of the public alley in Square 5637 running south from S Street, between 29th and 30th Streets, S.E. 6. Closing of the part of the public alley in Square 5351 running east from Texas Avenue, between B and C Streets, S.E. 7. Closing of 10th Place between Mississippi Avenue and Valley Avenue, S.E., abuting Squares 5931 and 5932. 8. Closing part of 10th Place, including a dedication to provide a realignment of said 10th Place, between Mississippi Avenue and Congress Street, S.E.; and closing of street area at 11th Place and Trenton Place, S.E., including a dedication to provide a street realignment at this location, and for the establishment of building restriction lines in Squares 5933, 5934, 5935 and 5936. 9. Closing of New Jersey Avenue between M and N Streets, S.E., and closing M Place, Quander Street, N Street and Francis Place, all immediately east of First Street, S.E., and closing alleys in Squares 743 and 744. 10. Proposed change in the plan of the permanent system of highways in the Northeast section, providing for a change in the location of a proposed street extending south from 9 Street, proposed, between Brentwood Road and 13th Street, N.E. 11. Proposed change in the plan of the permanent system of highways in the Southern section of the District of Columbia covering area bounded on the north by Atlantic Street, on the east by Livingston Road, on the south by Southern Avenue, and on the west by the westerly line of First Street, S.W., and South Capitol Street, providing for the elimination of part of First Street, S.W., proposed, and for the elimination of other proposed streets through U. S. Reservation at this location. 12. Proposed change in the plan of the permanent system of highways affecting property in the Northeast section along the line of 50th Street between Washington Place and Grant Street. Maps showing the street, road and alley areas proposed to be closed and showing the proposed changes in the permanent system of highways are on file in the office of the Surveyor, D. C., Room 405, District Building (same being known as Maps 2871, 2872, 2873, 2874, 2875, 2876, 2877, 2878, 2879, 2880, 2881 and 2882) and may be examined by interested parties during business hours prior to the hearing. Said maps will also be displayed at the hearing and the Commissioners will consider any suggestions or protests concerning the proposed changes and the proposed street, road and alley closings as shown on above-mentioned maps. JOHN RUSSELL YOUNG, C. W. KUTZ, GUY MASON, Commissioners of the District of Columbia. 9-24.

IT'S LOU AGAIN! MAYBE HE'S NOTICED THAT I REVERSED THE "RIDING-LIGHTS" AFTER ALL....!
CLICK!
WELL--MR. VARZONI! HAVE YOU DECIDED TO BE SENSIBLE?
ODD! I CAME DOWN TO ASK YOU THE SAME QUESTION, PATTI!
WE'RE BOUND FOR A SMALL ISLAND I OWN, OFF THE SOUTHERN COAST! YOU MAY GO ALONG AS...A GUEST...!
AND...IF I REFUSE?
THE ATLANTIC IS VERY COLD...AND VERY DEEP!
I THINK YOU CAN GUESS MY ANSWER!

MAYBE WE OUGHTA TRY TO GET HIM OUT NOW, TOM!
WAIT!
I'M WARNIN' YOU, SAILOR! IF I HEAR ANOTHER PEEP OUT OF THAT BIRD, I'M GONNA SOCK YOU RIGHT IN THE SNOOT!
PEEP, PEEP—YOU HORSE-FACED COFFEE JERKER! YOU WOULDN'T MAKE A PATCH ON A NAVY COOK'S PANTS!
I DON'T THINK WE OUGHTA WAIT ANY LONGER, TOM!
NO—IT MIGHT GET SERIOUS!

MR. AND MRS. — From Bad to Worse — By Arthur Folwell and Ellison Hoover

WHENEVER WE DINE AT ONE OF THESE SPAGHETTI PLACES YOU ALWAYS MAKE A MESS OF THE TABLE CLOTH
I'LL TRY TO BE CAREFUL THIS TIME
HOW'M I DOING?
VERY WELL. YOU HAVEN'T SPILT A THING THAT I CAN SEE
THERE YOU ARE! HOW'S THAT?
WONDERFUL! I CONGRATULATE YOU! NOT A SPOT!
OH! TWO SPOTS ON YOUR TIE, THREE ON YOUR SHIRT, AND ONE ON YOUR COAT!
HEREAFTER I'LL LET THE RESTAURANT TAKE THE RAP!

Dempsey Divorce Bout Goes To N. Y. Referee for Decision

By the Associated Press

White Plains, N. Y., June 14.—The Jack Dempsey-Hannah Williams divorce bout went to a referee for decision today after a whirlwind final round in which the ane-time heavyweight king tossed a barrage of denials at his wife's charges of rough marital tactics.

Never, said Dempsey, had he so much as laid a hand on his wife, the Broadway musical comedy star of yesteryear; neither had he ever threatened her by placing the famous fists under her chin, nor had he threatened to kill her.

Before the former heavyweight champion took the stand Mrs. Dempsey's counter claim for divorce was dismissed because Yvette Colbert, whom Dempsey's attorney declared was named in Mrs. Dempsey's suit, failed to appear as a witness despite a court order to do so.

This left at issue only Mrs. Dempsey's separation suit—in which she charges cruel and inhuman treatment—and Dempsey's suit for divorce. He named Benny Woodall, a former fight trainer, and Lew Jenkins, once lightweight champion, as corespondents. Both Dempseys seek custody of their two daughters.

Dempsey testified that once at Hannah's request he ejected three young men from their Central Park West apartment and hurt his hand in the process. But he denied striking Mrs. Dorothy Gomez, his wife's sister, an act charged by Mrs. Dempsey.

As for his wife's charge that he was wont to parade around the apartment before his daughters in the nude or with just an undershirt, Dempsey declared, "I always had my robe on and my pants." There was no truth at all, he said, in Hannah's testimony that on Mother's Day, 1940, he threw her against a wall.

Dempsey Serious

Mrs. Dempsey's counsel sought unsuccessfully to make a part of the defense the testimony of three detectives who were witnesses for Dempsey in connection with a raid on a Los Angeles apartment in which Mrs. Dempsey allegedly was living.

According to testimony, Dempsey was quoted as saying: "I have caught you again you rat. This is the second time." Mrs. Dempsey's lawyer contended that if it were true, it constituted condoning adultery and he sought to add to the pleadings the technical "defense of condonation."

Dempsey, now a lieutenant commander in the Coast Guard, was serious as he made his first appearance on the witness stand and his eyes strayed occasionally to Mrs. Dempsey, 15 rows distant, who for her part kept her eyes glued either to the floor or ceiling.

Arlington Sailor, Listed as Missing, Killed in Action

Radioman Second Class, Bernard Clifford Parnell, 23, previously reported missing on May 17 as a result of an operational flight at sea, yesterday was reported killed in action by the Navy Department.

PARNELL

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur F. Parnell of 1817 North Wayne Street, Arlington, Va., he was one of 11 casualties, including six dead and five missing, announced by the Navy. Also listed were names of two men whose status has changed from missing to dead, and one whose status has changed from wounded to dead.

Parnell, a graduate of Washington-Lee High School, worked for an Arlington County surveyor before enlisting in the Navy in December, 1941. After training at Naval radio schools in Norfolk, Va., and Charleston, S. C., he served in the Caribbean area.

In addition to his parents, surviving are two brothers, Corpl. Arthur F. Parnell and Robert Parnell, and two sisters, Dorothy and Cecilia.

A Dempsey Kiss

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

FOR A DEMPSEY—Lieut. Comdr. Jack Dempsey kisses his daughter, Barbara, 6, after her first Holy Communion at White Plains, N. Y., Sunday, while his other daughter, Joan, 8, looks on. Dempsey and his wife, the former Hannah Williams, forgot their divorce court differences to attend the services, but sat in different pews on opposite sides of the chapel

Theft Suspect Faces Grand Jury

Charged with embezzling $1551 from the Manhattan Laundry Co., of which he was assistant secretary-treasurer, George P. Galliand, 42, of 1401 Sheridan Street Northwest, was bound over to the District grand jury yesterday after he was arraigned in Municipal Court and pleaded not guilty. Bond was set at $2000.

Police said an audit of Galliand's books led to his arrest Sunday. According to them, the extent of Galliand's thefts will amount to $24,000, taken over a two-month period.

Tax Plan to Add 10,000 New Jobs

The Internal Revenue Bureau will add 10,000 to 15,000 new employes as a result of the new pay-as-you-go income tax law which goes into effect July 1.

In announcing this yesterday, the Office of War Information said a majority of the new employes will be women. Most of them will be assigned to various field offices.

The average salary of the bureau's field and office personnel is about $2000 a year. On the basis of 10,000 new employes, the payroll would be increased 20 million dollars annually.

President Signs Lend-Lease Bill For $6,273,629,000

Stettinius, in a special report yesterday on shipments to Russia in the 19 months ended April 30, asserted that American weapons in Russian hands "have made themselves felt against the enemy with effectiveness."

The most important single contribution of lend-lease to the Soviets, Stettinius said, is completed weapons—tanks, planes and guns by the thousands.

"A close second in importance as a vital contribution to the Rusian offense," the report said, "has been the volume of raw materials shipped by lend-lease and fabricated into weapons of war by Russia's own industrial plants." To help feed the vast Russian army in the field, as well as the workers behind the line, lend-lease has shipped 1,077,000 tons of food.

Meridian Hill Easily Reached for Concerts Sponsored by Post

Though music-loving Washingtonians have proved that they are willing to walk or hitch-hike to any source of good music this summer—especially if in addition to quality they can find the pleasantly cool surroundings offered by trees and flowering shrubs—they will welcome details of the widely accessible transportation routes to Meridian Hill Park, Sixteenth and W Streets Northwest.

Here, starting Saturday, June 26, and continuing Saturday and Sunday evenings through August 22, The Post Starlight Concerts will present two series by the finest artists in the country. Albert Spalding, world-famed violinist, will open the series on June 26 and 27, when 100 members of the Government Girl Guard of Honor will be guests of The Washington Post.

Three bus lines and six trolley car lines take the concertgoer either directly to the park entrances or to within a few short blocks of them.

Buses Available

Along Sixteenth Street in frequent succession run the three S-2 buses, which stop directly at the park entrance. All begin at Twelfth and New York Avenue, Northwest, where cars and buses from outlying sections provide an excellent transfer point.

Cars marked No. 10 and No. 12, from Northeast, run directly to Twelfth and New York Avenue Northwest. The three buses reach the end of their run at Sixteenth and Sheridan Streets, Northwest, Sixteenth and Underwood Streets Northwest, and at the District line at Georgia and Alaska Avenues Northwest, respectively, they offer rapid, dependable transportation.

Two trolleys along Fourteenth Street, stop at Fourteenth and Florida Avenue, one block from the main Meridian Hill Park entrance. One, marked No. 54, travels the route from Fourteenth and Colorado Avenue Northwest to the Navy Yard and passes through the heart of downtown Washington. The second, marked No. 50, goes from Fourteenth and Decatur Streets Northwest to the Bureau of Engraving. It is equally accessible at transfer points along the principal downtown bus and trolley routes.

From Seventeenth and Pennsylvania Avenue Southeast, the Calvert Bridge trolley car, marked No. 90, runs along U Street. The stop at Sixteenth and U Streets leaves the rider within two blocks of the park. Also on the U Street route, the car marked No. 92 leaves from the Navy Yard, reaching Sixteenth and U Streets by way of Florida Avenue Northeast.

Other Lines Available

The Connecticut Avenue street cars, marked No. 42 and No. 42 run to within four blocks of the northern entrance to Meridian Hill Park, at Sixteenth and Colorado Road Northwest. They are called the Mount Pleasant and Thirteenth and D Northeast cars, espectively.

The enthusiastic response to The Post Starlight Concerts makes early purchase of season and single concert tickets advisable to insure availability of seats. Tickets may be obtained at the Cappel Concert Bureau, in Ballard's, 1340 G Street Northwest. C. C. Cappel is managing the concert series, which have been made possible through cooperation by the National Capital Parks Service. Reservations for season tickets may be made at The Post Starlight Concerts, in care of The Washington Post, 1337 E Street Northwest. Prices for these are $4.40, $8.80 and $13.20. Single concert tickets are priced at 55c, $1.10 and $1.65.
